Fire Guts House

Fire destroyed an abandoned home on Hintz Rd. west of Schoenbeck Sunday night. Prospect Heights Volunteer firemen managed to contain the damage to the building itself. A toy firetruck is in the foreground.

Suit Asked to Make Downtown Buildings Comply with Code

By Charles Mouratides

The village administration has asked Arlington Heights trustees to authorize a lawsuit for failure to comply with zoning standards against three owners of property in the central business district.

The village on Feb. 23 told eight property owners to indicate willingness to adhere to the ordinance on non-conforming buildings within 30 days or face a lawsuit.

Trustees will take action on the administrations' request at a special meeting tonight.

Property owners who have not responded, their place of residence and the location of the non-conforming property in Arlington Heights, according to Village Manager L. A. Hanson, are:

Ray Tucker, of Barrington, 33 S. Vail; Krause and Kehe Realtors, of Arlington Heights, 17 S. Evergreen, and R. G. Wolf, of Des Plaines, 13 W. Davis.

Ronald Petrolito of Palatine, owner of a house at 25 S. Highland, has refused to accept the village's mailed 30-day notice, said Harold Best, building commissioner.

BEST SAID HE will try to deliver the notice to Petrolito again and a lawsuit may be filed if he refuses to accept it.

The single-family houses in the central business district, south of Eastman and north of Sigwalt, will be razed or converted to uses permitted by the ordinance.

The allowed uses are commercial, office or limited apartments.

The properties subject to the lawsuit allegedly also violate an ordinance which prohibits wood-frame structures in the central business district.

Four property owners who heve told the village they will comply with the ordinance, their place of residence and location of property are, William Schoepke, Arlington Heights, 28 S. Vail; Samuel Alexander, Chicago, 27 S. Vail; Walter Aronson, Arlington Heights, 26 S. Vail, and Joe Barone of Arlington Packing, Arlington Heights, 115 W. Campbell.

The zoning ordinance passed in 1959 primarily was intended to encourage commercial development in the business district, Best said.

It prohibits structural alterations on non-conforming buildings and thus restricts renovations that would prolong their non-conforming use.

The ordinance states in part that any non-conforming buildings of an assessed valuation less than $5,000 "shall be demolished removed or remodeled (to conform) and converted" two years from the date they became non-conforming or five years from the completion of any construction.

NON-CONFORMING buildings of $10,000 assessed valuation must conform within four to eight years.

Thirteen non-conforming structures in the central business district heve been razed so far. Action soon will be taken on another 13, according to Best.

There are about 60 non-conforming structures in that area, Best said.

The property owners of the non-conforming structures, according to a village representative, are slow in razing them because they expect the land values to rise as time passes.

The assessed valuation of the eight buildings under consideration by the building department now is between $1,150 and $4,500. The real value of the land, however, surpasses any of the existing valuations because of the land's location in the central business district.

The present market value of some properties, land and building, could place their assessed valuation as high as $12,000, it has been estimated.

Mt. Prospect Police To Join Fraternal Order

The Mount Prospect police patrolmen voted overwhelmingly Sunday to join the Fraternal Order of Police, the second such organization in the northwest suburbs to do so.

The move was described by Detective Richard Yost, spokesman for the group, as an attempt to improve the village police force, and the community as a whole. The group, Yost said, is not being organized only to bargain with the village administration over working conditions and salaries.

The Fraternal Order of Police is an organization which supports police policies at the local, state and national level. The group has lobbied successfully at state level for improvements in the police pension fund and has influenced certain penal legislation. The group was instrumental in killing an attempt to eliminate capital punishment in the state.

THE 21 PATROLMEN decided to join the group at a closed door meeting in Village Hall. Even sergeants and lieutenants were excluded from the meeting, although they later were invited to join the organization.

Salaries of the patrolmen appeared to be the main motivating force for joining the group. Mount Prospect patrolmen are the lowest paid of any in the northwest suburbs, and there is provision for regular raises only up to three years of service.

Absent from Village Hall Sunday ware Police Chief Newell Esmond and Mayor Daniel Congreve. Congreve announced last week thet the force would be increased by three men and that salaries would be increased from $8,004 to about $8,300.

THE ANNOUNCEMENT of the vote to join the organization was received with little enthusiasm by village officials. Some felt that the move couldn't heve come at a worse time. The budget is being prepared by the village trustees, and some believe that regular raises and the proposed manpower increase could be jeopardized by too much publicity.

Congreve, when asked about the affiliation vote, said: "I cannot comment on something that I don't know about."

Village Trustee Robert Teichert said the organization is the result of a "harassment" by Congreve and administration against individual policemen. Congreve's order that the policemen may use MACE, a gas that temporarily renders suspects helpless, but have to pay for MACE out of their own pockets, and a ruling that policemen may not work in taverns when off-duty were both beyond the mayor's power. "They had no other recourse," Teichert said.

Bomb Damages Hood of Car

A home-made bomb caused damag to the car of a Niles residen, visiting in Arlington Heights Sunday.

Mrs. Joyce DeRamos of 424 S. Yale, told Arlington Heights Police that she and Mrs. Edward Jablonski of Niles heard an explosion in the afternoon, but thought it was a sonic boom.

When Mrs. Jablonski went to her car later, she found the hood damaged.

Dems Revamp Organization

James L. McCabe of Arlington Heights, Democratic committeeman of Wheeling Township, Monday announced a re-organization of the Township Regular Democratic Organization.

"The most important objective of our re-organization at this time is to establish an effective two-party system in Wheeling Township," said McCabe.

In a move aimed at greater effectiveness at the precinct level, McCabe revealed establishment of a new area chairman system. The township is divided into 13 areas. Each of the 78 precincts is assigned to one of the areas. Fifteen chairmen and co-chairmen, McCabe said, will take charge of the areas immediately.

ONE OF THE area chairmen is Rep. Eugenia Chapman (D-Arlington Heights). Others appointed are:

Areas 1 & 2 -- Russell Berndt, 288 N. 3d., Wheeling, and Harvey Sturman, 499 Isa Drive, Wheeling, co-chairmen.

Area 3 -- Howard Bernstein, 1700 Forest Dr., Mount Prospect.

Area 4 -- Edward Smetana, 201 Wolf Rd., Prospect Heights.

Area 5 -- Robert Meersman, 420 N. Russell, Mount Prospect.

Area 6 -- Nello Benedetti, 4 N. Russell, Mount Prospect, and Brian Crowe, 218 N. Main, Mount Prospect, co-chairmen.

Area 7 -- John Griffin, 415 N. Beverly Lane, Arlington Heights.

Area 8 -- Thomas McShane, 706 E. Clarendon, Arlington Heights.

Area 9 -- Mrs. Chapman, 16 Princeton Court, Arlington Heights.

Area 10 -- C. Joseph Sneed, 441 S. Belmont, Arlington Heights.

Area 11 -- Arthur Johnson, 202 N. Salem, Arlington Heights.

Area 12 -- Joseph Good, 506 E. Knob Hill, Arlington Heights, and Eugene Griffin, 603 Thorntree, Arlington Heights, co-chairmen.

Area 13 -- Lester Bonaguro, 327 S. Forrest, Arlington Heights.

THE NEW system was made necessary, McCabe reported, by the rapid expansion of population and increase in number of precincts which had occurad since 1966. Twelve new precincts heve been added in Wheeling Township in the last year and a half.

"The ultimate objective of any improvement in our organization," said McCabe, "is to give better service to the voters of Wheeling Township. We hope that increasing the communication through the new area chairmen with precinct workers and other members of our organization will result in improved contact with voters in the township."

Coins Worth $200 Taken

A collection of silver quarters, valued at $200, was taken from the home of Herbert C. Mittag, 302 N. Gibbons, Friday.

Mittag told Arlington Heights Police the home was entered while the family was away for a short time.

10 in Race For Harper Board

Ten men have filed as candidates for the five vacant positions on the Harper Junior College Board of Education.

To be eligible, candidates presented a signed petition of 50 voters or 10 per cent of the voters in their district by March 22.

Five of the 10 candidates are incumbents. They are, for a three-year term, James Hammil, Hoffman Estates; Milton Hansen, Palatine; John Haas, Prospect Heights; for a two year term, LeRoi Hutchings, Mount Prospect, and, for a one-year term, John Kuranz, Barrington.

New candidates for a three-year term are Raymond Sklencar, Arlington Heights; Robert Mayer, Palatine; Dr. Stanley B. Quinn, Elk Grove; Robert S. Lonze, Inverness; and, for a two year term, William Doggett, Palatine.

Elections will be held April 13 at 43 precinct stations designated by the college board.

Urges Voting Track Dry To Block Night Racing

BY DIANNE CLERIHAN

Retired committeeman James Stavros of the Wheeling Township Regular Democratic Committee has launched a campaign against a possible second attempt to have night racing at Arlington Park.

Stavros said Sunday that his stand is non-political. "I am just a citizen with five children fighting a ruthless woman," he said. "I am not representing The Democratic party, but the citizens, and am definitely not on the campaign trial."

Stavros is asserting that the bid for night racing has never been a completely closed issue and that the owner of the track, Mrs. Marjorie Everett, has not curtailed Her plans to install night lights at the track.

He also charged that a member of the racing board is on Mrs. Everett's payroll. "If Mrs. Everett can control the racing board what are we supposed to do?" Stavros said.

STAVROS HAS propose to block night racing b gathering enough resident together to vote the race track "dry." He is rallying residents from Mount Prospect, Arlington Heights, Rolling Meadows and Palatine. He indicated that his supporters number around 600.

"Today I've had calls from 200 people as a result of one article and they are all against night racing," he said.

"This proposal has grown into mushroom head proportions," he said. "It's time for the citizens of this area to stand up and do a job. In the end we are going to dry her (Mrs. Everett) up," Stavros said, "and if we can't block night racing, then we might as well consider ourselves to be going back to the days of Khrushchev."

James McCabe, committeeman for the Wheeling Township Regular Democratic Committee, supported Stavros' denial of political undertones.

"As a member of the community, he is entitled to his own opinion," McCabe said Sunday. "This was never discussed at any of our meetings. In fact, I'd never heard of the proposal until today," he said.

Francis Crosby, member of the Illinois State Racing Board, said that the charge that one of the board members is Mrs. Everett's payroll is "absolute rot."

Crosby said that he was appointed to the board by Gov. Otto Kerner in November, 1963.

"As far as that goes, as a member of the Illinois Bureau of Race Track Police, I am officially on every race track payroll in Illinois," said Crosby, "but I am placed there by the governor and not Mrs. Everett."

Village Leaders Express Anger at Stavros' Plan

An angry reaction from village leaders has greeted the announced intention of ex-Wheeling Township Democratic Committeeman James Stavros to force Arlington Park Racetrack owners to cancel plans for night racing by voting the two precincts involved dry.

Arlington Heights Mayor John G. Woods charged that there is "some motivation that doesn't meet the eye immediately." The fight, Woods indicated, may be more a personal one than a matter of principal.

"Where was he when we really had the battle?" Woods asked. The Village Board discussed the question of night racing about three months ago and succeeded in delaying the issue for a while. Members of the Illinois State Racing Board reportedly favor night racing and Woods said that it is possible that it might be approved at some later date.

"THIS ISN'T an above-board approach," he said.

Mrs. Albert Vidmar, 1232 S. Walnut, the chairman of a committee that first fought the night racing proposal, charged that Stavros was a "Rip Van Winkle. What was he doing when we were fighting over this thing? Sleeping?" she said.

Mrs. Vidmar said that Stavros is "spreading a smoke screen for something. I don't know what."

"I don't belong to the WCTU(Women's Christian Temperance League) and I wasn't aware that Stavros did," she said. Her committee, she said, was in no way involved with this latest attempt to stop night racing.

The chances of Stavros' success, she said, are not very good. As ex-committeeman of the township Democratic organization, she insisted he did not have the political power to make this plan a reality. "There are not enough Democrats to vote anything through," she said. The committeeman of the organization, James McCabe, said that Stavros' proposal did not have the endorsement of his group.

"The fact that a precinct can vote dry in order to hurt one businessman is another good reason for a constitutional convention," Mrs. Vidmar said.

Frances Lee Murphy, 4, of Lake Zurich, a patient at Northwest Community Hospital in Arlington Heights receives tender care from staff members Mrs. Gail Schauer, left, of 4979 Wilke Rd., Rolling Meadows, and Mrs. Jody Thomas, 2407 E. Cost of Life Safety Exceeds Budget

Bids for the Life Safety Remodeling of Prospect High School were made Thursday.

Architects Barger-Kelley-Unteed-Scaggs and Assoc., who were employed by the Dist. 214 Board of Education at the last regular board meeting, March 11, for the remodeling on a time and material basis, directed the bidding.

The lowest bids were: Fred Quinn Coostruction Co., $116,736 for general contract; R. C. Caruso Co., $6,475 for plumbing contract; Mid America Co., $21,996 for electrical contract; and American Piping Corp., $52,900 for heating contract.

The lowest total bid is $198,107. According to the architects, the total budget is $200,000. The budget figure also includes the architect's fees, so the remodeling costs exceed the budget.

Clear Field In High School Board Race

Two incumbents, Mrs. Leah Cummins and Richard A. Bachhuber, are running uncontested for three-year terms on the High School Dist. 214 Board of Education.

Candidates were required to file petitions signed by 50 voters by March 23.

Mrs. Cummins said she is running again because, "I've become even more interested in education now that I have been doubly exposed to it. I think 214 is a wonderful district and I would like to be a part of its future growth."

Beside being a housewife and mother of two, Mrs. Cummins is a disseminator for the Charles Kettering Foundation at Juliette Low School.

Mrs. Cummins, 109 Ridge Ave., has been a resident of Elk Grove Village for 7½ years. She is a member of the Elk Grove Village Plan Commission, the Business and Professional Women's Club, and a Girl Scout leader.

MRS. CUMMINS has a B.A. from Queens College and has attended the New York University Graduate School of Business Administration.

Bachhuber said he is running again because, "I've enjoyed work on the board. I think it is important. I think I can be more effective in a second term, because of my added experience."

Bachhuber, 625 S. Edward St., Mount Prospect, has been a resident of Dist. 214 for nine years. He has four children, two of whom are attending Prospect High School.

He is an electronics engineer for Sylvannia Electric Products. He received a B. S. in electrical engineering from the University of Wisconsin and is a member of the Institute of Electronic and Electrical Engineering.

Elections will be April 13.

Des Plaines Opposes Suburb Merger Plan

The Des Plaines City Council has taken an official stand opposing Arlington Heights Mayor John G. Woods' proposal to incorporate 10 northwest suburbs into the second largest city in Illinois.

The resolution, which is being prepared by the city attorney, was unanimously approved by the council.

Mayor Herbert Behrel said that the matter was not studied by any legislative committee before it was presented to the council, but merely reflected the opinions of the legislators.

FROSTY PIXIE DELIGHT

12 crushed Pixies
2 cups Whipping Cream
1 pint each Lime, Lemon and Raspberry Sherbert

Whip cream, add Pixie crumbs and mix gently. Spread half of mixture in 9 x 13 inch pan. Add scoops of sherbert in alternating colors—one layer (this can be done with ice cream scoop). Spread remaining creamed mixture on top. Put in freezer.

Frosty Pixie Delight can be made days or even weeks ahead of time.

MINTED BROWNIE PIE

14 Mint Cookies
3 egg whites
Dash of salt
¾ cup Sugar
½ tsp. Vanilla
½ cup Chopped Nut Meats
Sweetened Whipped Cream
(½ to 1 cup heavy cream)

Chill cookies in refrigerator a few minutes. Break, cut or roll between folds of waxed paper to even crumbs. Beat egg whites and salt together until soft peaks form. To Hear Song Stylist

SHIELA MCKENZIE

Sheila McKenzie, song stylist, will perform at 1 p.m. Tuesday, March 26 for the Allied Arts Association at the home of Mrs. Jerome Powell, 1603 E. Campbell, Arlington Heights.

Miss McKenzie will present an informal program of popular ballads and international folk songs, accompanying herself on the guitar. Her repertoire in nine languages contains songs from North and South America, most Eurpoean countries and the Middle East.

Sen. Everett Dirksen receives the first box of candy in the Chicago area Camp Fire Girls 1968 candy sale from Melissa Blaeser, 8, of Palatine. The sale opened in Chicago March 8. Melissa was chosen to meet the Senator after she won the recent Camp Fire Girls first annual recipe contest, using as an ingredient the candy being sold by the organization.

Camp Fire Girls to Sell Candy

One of the groups, Little Women from Des Plaines, under the leadership of Mrs. W. Oehlerking, had 100 per cent attendance and received a plaque for selling the most Camp Fire Girl candy last year. The girls sold 1,044 boxes.

The Camp Fire Girls of the Far Northwest District will start selling candy March 29.

Interest was stimulated for the sale at the father-daughter banquets held last month at the Old Orchard Country Club.

Slides of Camp Tiyalaka, Camp Fire Girl resident camp in Wis., and a film about day camp at Busse Woods were shown at the banquets.

Proceeds from the candy sale will be used to help girls go to camp.

PAJAMAS ON PARTY SCENE

Pajamas are what's happening on the current party scene. Their image has been revamped and they are now in a strictly entertaining league.

Exchange Brings Girls to St. Viator

Pretty girls are being taken in stride by students in the all-male enrollment of St. Viator High School in Arlington Heights.

Girls from Sacred Heart of Mary High School in Rolling Meadows regularly attend some classes at the school and "exchange" programs bring girls to the school too.

The student council is sponsoring an exchange with other suburban high schools this year.

John Allare Jr. of Mount Prospect, president of the student council, said 90 letters of invitation to visit the school were sent out at the beginning of the school year. He said response has been slow, but that a few exchange days have been held.

St. Viator was host to students from Prospect High School, Libertyville High School and Mundelein High School. In turn, the St. Viator boys spent a day in the other schools.

Thursday students from St. Viator will visit New Trier East High School in Winnetka.

"This gives us a chance to see how the other half lives," said Allare.

"But we realize there is not much radical difference in education," he said.

The exchange programs at St. Viator are held on days when the student council meets to allow the visiting students a chance for discussion with council members.

Japanese Tea Wednesday

A Japanese tea will be held at 1 p.m. Wednesday, March 27 at the Lutheran Church of Martha and Mary, Golf Rd. and Wapella, Mount Prospect. Baby sitters will be provided.

Mrs. Opal Payne will give demonstration of Japanese flower arrangement. Mrs. Payne is invitational chairman for the Mount Prospect garden club and teaches Japanese flower arrangement through Dist. 214 adult education. The public is invited to attend.

Dialogue

... with George Hamilton

"Well, I finally did it. I got up enough courage the other night and went to see the play 'MacBird.' "

"I'll bet it did take a lot of courage to sit through one of those Shakespeare plays. I'd fall asleep myself, because I don't dig the language."

"This isn't a Shakespeare play. Not completely, anyway. It's an adaptation of Shakespeare's 'MacBetb' with a little bit of 'Hamlet' and 'Julius Caesar' thrown in.

"But the need for courage was obvious. I never have thought much of 'composers' who write variations on a musical theme written by someone else. Likewise, I didn't expect much from a variation on three of William Shakespear's works."

"So why would seeing that require courage?"

"I'm coming to that. The 'Macbird' satire originated at an anti-Vietnam war rally when tha author, Barbara Garson, referred to LBJ's wife as Lady MacBird Johnson. Then ahe noticed some parallels between LBJ and MacBeth and also between President Kennedy and King Duncan.

"So the play 'MacBird' resulted and the satire goes the whola route, suggesting that MacBird (LBJ) engineered the assassination of John Ken O'Dunc (JFK).

"And of course, Lady MacBird, botbarad by the memory of it all, walks and talks in her sleep, just as in MacBeth."

"It doesn't sound too bad, as long as everyone knows it's a satire."

"It isn't too bad, when it is a satire. But the audience seems stunned every once in a while when an apparently unneeded four-letter word is shouted out.

"And after the first act (there are three), the satire is rather scarce and the play drags. There are a lot of social messages about the Vietnam war and 'Down with Whitey,' but that's about it."

"So that's why you weren't eager to see the play."

"Sort of. I knew it was popular as a college play and had read part of the script, so didn't anticipate too much. But there were some redeeming factors to it.

"For one thing, Jarry Harper as MacBird and Lolly Trauscht as Lady MacBird do a very good job of keeping their parts the spoof they are intended to be. They satirize the voices and mannerisms of LBJ and Lady Bird extremely well.

"Another redeeming point is that the play is performed at the Candlelight Dinner Playhouse in Summit. You sit at a table where you are served dinner and when the play begins you can watch the action while finishing your meal.

"All in all, it was a pretty good place to visit, and I undarstand tha playbill usually has something less controversial than MacBird.

"On the way out of the theater, we spotted the guest register where patrons can leave a record of their visit. But we didn't sign it. No one would believe 'Georga Hasailton and Linda ware here.' "

An audacious satire of modern times based on Shakespeare's "Macbeth," the hit political play "MacBird" is having its Midwest premiere at the Candlelight Dinner Playhouse. Jerry Harper plays MacBird and Lolly Trauscht portrays Lady MacBird.

Selective Service Answers Questions About the Draft

The Illinois headquarters of the Selective Service System, Springfield, has compiled a list of questions often asked about the selective service system. These are as follows:

Q. Can an only son qualify for the Sole Surviving Son IV-A classification?

A. No. He must be the sole surviving son of a family of which the father or one or more sons or daughters were killed in action or died in the line of duty while serving in the Armed Forces, or died of injuries or disease incurred during such service.

Q. Must a registrant return to his own local board for his Armed Forces physical?

A. No. He may transfer for physical examination or induction or both by requesting such action by the local board.

Q. Can a divorced man whose wife has custody of the children get a Class III-A deferment?

A. Such deferments will be granted only to those persons who can show a need for deferment by reason of extreme hardship to dependents.

Q. Who astablishes the mental, moral, and physical standards for entry into the Armed Forces?

A. The Secratary of Defense.

Q. Who conducts the examinations to determine an individual's acceptability?

A. Dept. of Defense personnel.

Q. What are the respective areas of responsibility in connection witb induction of personnel into the Armed Forces?

A. Congress prescribes the liability, the selective service system determines availability, and the Dept. of Defense decides acceptability.

Amendment Is Sought to Ban Non-War Draft

A petition seeking amendment of the United States Constitution to allow military conscription only after Congress issues a formal delcaration of war, is being circulated in the area by a Des Plaines resident.

James Ballowe, an attorney, said that he has 150 signatures on his petition so far, and hopes to get 10,000.

"I've been distrubed," Ballowe said, "about the anxiety of the people as to the war in Vietnam."

THERE IS, he said, "an uncertainty of the public as to what should or should not be done. Personal liberty comes into question with the peacetime draft."

The present draft law, if brought hefora tha U. S. Supreme Court, he said, would be upheld because the authority for the law comes from Congress. Baliowe suggests taking the power of military draft away from the President giving it back to the legislative branch,

If Ballowe receives 10,000 signatures on his petition, he will ask a legislator to introduce it in Congress. If the measure passes, it would be presented to the state legislatures for endorsement. If three quarters of the states approved it, it would become the Constitution's 26th Amendment.

No Quota for News

The other day a lady phoned The Day office requesting news coverage of an event being held by an organization with which she is associated. She was apologetic. "You have been generous in publicizing our activities," she said. "I'm afraid we've already had our quota of pictures and stories."

The lady was under the impression that publicity for civic, social, religious organizations and the like was meted out in our news columns according to some rigid formula -- two stories and a picture a year for this group, two pictures for that one, etc.

She was assured that our evaluation of such news is based on its current merits. If it is timely, interesting or informative, if it recognizes contributions to community welfare or combined or individual effort in a good cause, then it belongs in The Day.

Nothing so arbitrary and obviously nonsensical as "what have we done for you lately?" is a factor in the judgment.

Our lady caller seemed pleasantly surprised. This suggested that others also might have some misunderstanding about our policy in this area.

We like to think we have now eliminated that possibility.

Education's Wonderful – Hic

By Catherine O'Donnell

An elementary school in Dist. 25 has its own newspaper. In the newspaper is a gourmet column. The last issue contained the following recipe.

"Strawberry Ica Cream Punch: 1 qt. of ginger ale, 1 qt. of softened strawberry ice cream, ½ cup of bourbon. Beat together until it gets foamy. Garnisb with fresh strawberries and mint. Hold On To Your Hat Gourmet Chefs. La La La La Da De Da Da." End of recipe.

PROGRAM FOR MINER PTA

Program chairman Mae Zimmanck is urging all parents to attend the Miner Jr. High School PTA meeting on Tuesday, March 26, at 8 p.m. "Because over a quarter of a million teenagers in this country have contractad this disease we are trying to point out to parents the threat," said Mrs. Zimmanck. "It is particularly dangerous to young girls because detection is so difficult." The title of the talk for the program is, "Venereal Disease As Related To Family Living."

MUSIC BREAK

Robert Parsons, who is principal of Wilson Elementary School is also director of tha newly formed musical chorus called Parents of Note. The choral group is sponsored by the Arlington Heights Council of PTAs and is rapidly becoming more noted than it was expected.

It was an instant success for the parents who wanted a night away from the cares that infest the day.

"No ona has to be a wonderful singer," pointed out Sally Dodd of N. Kasper, "The group is made up of parents who just want to sing for fun. Anyone who is not in a PTA can join by paying the 50 cents it costs to join a PTA."

The volunteer accompanist is Miss Meryl Parchman, who teaches fifth grade at Wilson. The idea originated with Principal Parsons who just loves music.

It has already expanded to include members from the PTAs of Greenbrier, Ridge, Olive, Windsor and Miner as well as Wilson. They have performed for the Wilson parents and teachers and they will be on the program for the PTA Mock Convention to be held on April 15 at 7:15 p.m. in the Rolling Meadows Community Church. PTA Council president Fran Wenzel will be happy to supply more information. She can ba reached at Cl 9-2889.

Hall to Direct Play

Jim Hall, director of publications for School Dist. 25 and a member of the St. James' Theatre Group, will direct the groups' next production, "Twalva Angry Jurors."

Hall studied drama under Wayne Loule, a formar associate of TV's Playhouse 90 and now head drama coach at Webster Univarsity in St. Louis. His past dramatic experience, outside of the St. James' Theatra Group includes acting in such plays as "Inherit The Wind," "Hasty Heart," and the "Miracle Worker."

Chuck Smith, Captain Hoxie in the Groups' last play, "Rally Round the Flag Boys," will be tha show's producer.

Casting for the play will be held on March 31 in the St. James' School basement at 7:30 p.m. The play calls for seven male and five female roles.

"Twelva Angry Jurors" will be given on two consecutive weekends: June, 7 and 8 and June 14 and 15 at Prospect High School's Little Theatre.

Your Horoscope

FOR TUESDAY

ARIES (Mar. 22-Apr. 20)--This could well be the day that brings matters of special interest to Aries to a head. Meet difficulties head on.

TAURUS (Apr. 21-May 21)--You may not find it easy to tell the true story from the false one today. Make no decisions on your own.

GEMINI (May 22-June 21)--Though you may feel silly doing it, you might be wise to change horses midstream, as it were. Don't let pride stand in your way.

CANCER (June 22-July 23)--It is the small, seemingly unimportant detail that could trip you up today. Keep your eyes open to pitfalls.

LEO (July 24-Aug. 23)--Base all activities upon a firm, practical, profitable basis and you'll not go wrong today. This is no time to dream.

VIRGO (Aug. 24-Sept. 23)--The tone of another's conversation may be calculated to throw you off base. Listen to what is said, not how it is said.

LIBRA (Sept. 24-Oct. 23)--Plans laid months ago should be ripe for acting on now. The crop you reap will be as good or as poor as the seed you sowed.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22)--You may find yourself faced with an overly-romantic situation today as a result of yesterday's action. Think!

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 22)--A good day for advancing your suggestions. Those in responsible positions should be ready to listen now.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 23-Jan. 20)--Don't let uncertainty in the morning complicate things for you in the afternoon. Take yourself and your emotions in hand.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21-Feb. 19)--You may have to take the long way around but the sooner you change present circumstances the better off you'll be.

PISCES (Feb. 20-Mar. 21)--A good time for putting new policies into effect. At home or on the employment scene, it seems to be time for a change.

Host Maine E. Wins Last Race, Meet

Cards Get 3rd in Blue Demon Relays

Arlington's track team lost a lead in the last leg of the last race Saturday and had to settle for a third place finish in the Blue Demon relays at Maine East.

Going into the final event -- the mile relay -- the Cardinals had 40 points to 39 for Maine West and 38½ for Maine East. But Dave Dieters -- weakened by a flu attack during the preceding week -- couldn't hold a lead in the relay's last leg, and Jack Gilio led the host team to a first place finish in a record 3:28.0 to win the meet.

THE DEMONS ended up with 50½ points to 47 for Maine West and 46 for Arlington. Prospect was fifth with 25 points, Wheeling sixth with 18½, and Elk Grove 10th with 2½.

Arlington earned the only three first place finishes taken by Dist. 214 schools in the 14-event meet.

Dave Steele won the 50-yard high hurdles in 6.5 seconds, breaking a year-old record of 6.8 set by Niles East's Mike Rich. And the Cards' frosh-soph distance medley and varsity two-mile relay teams also won.

TIM TRUMMER, Ken Malcolmson, Jeff Kowalski, and Scott Butler team to win the distance medley -- legs of .2, .4, .6, and .8 miles -- in 8:35.2, another meet record and 13.2 seconds faster than the mark set in 1967 by Maine West.

The Cards' winning varsity two-mile team -- Rory Cassidy, Joe Hooker, Rich (Stork) Saxton, and Dave Dieters -- was headed for another record, but the last-lap gun sounded a lap too soon, so the race ended after 1.9 miles and without an official time.

Prospect's best showings were seconds by Steve Rohrback in the 50-yard dash and Gary Nicholson, Al Morrison, Pete Dumpke, and Keith Matthews in the frosh-soph distance medley.

Steve Holmes took a third in the mile run, which Gilio won in a record-breaking 4:19.3.

WHEELING HAD a second from Nick Silvestri in the 50-yard high hurdles, and Brad McKee high-jumped 5'8" to tie for second place with three other athletes, including Elk Grove's only point-getter Jim Opit.

Points were awarded on a 6-4-3-2-1 basis in the individual events and the underclass relays. In the three varsity relays and the class relay (two laps each by a freshman, sophomore, junior, and senior), the distribution was 12-8-6-4-2.

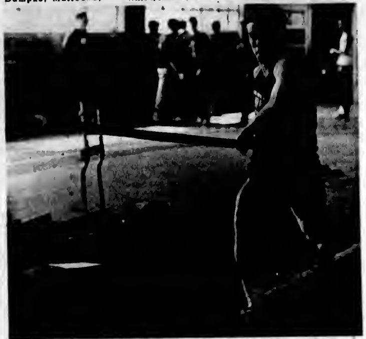
Steve Rohrbeck soars toward the long jump pit at the Blue Demons Relays Saturday. Rohrback's best effort was 19'11½", good only for fifth place, but he added a second in the 50-yard dash to account for six of Prospect's 25 points.



Wheeling's Stew Oakley starts a run Saturday at Maine East's Blue Demon relays. Oakley's best vault--12'--was good for fourth place.

Arlington Dominates MSL Gymnastics All-Star Team

Representatives of conference and state gymnastics champion Arlington secured five of the seven first-team spots in the Mid-Suburban League coaches' all-star team announced over the weekend.

The MSL all-star first team includes four of Illinois' seven individual champions. Trampolinist Terry Haines and tumbler Gary Drake, both from Arlington, side horse man Ken Barr of Prospect, and ring man Rick Orna of Wheeling all were named to the conference first team a week after taking state titles.

THE OTHER THREE league all-stars are all from Arlington: Jim Brousseau on the horizontal bar, Jack Finch on the parallel bars, and all-around man Wayne Crockett.

Drake, Haines, and Brousseau are juniors. The other first-team members are all seniors.

The selections paralleled the March 4 conference meet results, with all champions from that competition earning first-team spots.

Prospect, second in MSL dual meet standings but third in the league meet, dominated the second team, with Bruce Boult nailing down second spot on the horizontal and parallel bars and in the all-around class.

KNIGHT TUMBLER Bruce Benard also made the second team.

Crockett was chosen as the second-team ring man, joining Forest View trampolinist Gary Dimas and Wheeling side horse man Kim Butler to complement the two Prospect gymnasts.

The coaches also picked three honorable mention gymnasts in each category, giving Arlington at least two athletes every place except the trampoline ratings.

Arlington's Doug Atkins and Crockett received honorable mentions on the side horse, as did Gerry Withey on the horizontal bar, Crockett on the parallel bars, Rich Carlson and Kevin Lindsey on the rings, Pete Metz in tumbling, and Bob Gleichman as an all-around man.

THE CARDINALS took 14 of the 35 all-star spots. Prospect had nine, Wheeling six, Forest View four, and Conant and Fremd one apiece.

The selections:

TRAMPOLINE

1. Terry Haines, Arl.
2. Gary Dimas, F.V.

Honorable mention: Jay Bensen and Nick Peneff, Pros., Glenn Owsiany, F.V.

SIDE HORSE

Illinois Revises Fishing Guide

A new, revised edition of the Illinois Fishing Guide has been published by the Illinois Department of Conservation. Single copies are available free to anglers.

Information on 453 impoundments and 220 streams is contained in the publication. An angler may determine the average depth of a lake or stream, the shoreline length, and the kinds of fish living in it.

Fishermen may obtain copies of the guide from the Division of Fisheries, Illinois Department of Conservation, Room 102, State Office Building Springfield, Ill. 62706.

Over-30 Softball 'Liniment League' Forms

The Wheeling-Buffalo Grove-Prospect Heights park programs, in cooperation with the Community-School Services program, are planning a 16" softball league for men over 30-years-old.

Dubbed the "Liniment League," the group is looking for men interested in one night of softball per week, with the emphasis on the recreational aspect of the game.

Preliminary plans call for at least 12 teams of 15 players each. Directors of the league would like to have teams from neighborhoods or subdivisions enter, but individual applications will be taken.

Interested persons may contact Keith Vernon at the Community School Services, 999 W. Dundee, Wheeling, 60090, for further information. His phone number is 537-8270.

Cong. Donald Rumsfeld (left) and Brian B. Duff of Wilmette. Duff, Republican candidate for Secretary of State in Illinois, was in Washington last week to take part in ceremonies in which he was admitted to practice before the United States Supreme Court.

South Viets Must Want To Win: Rumsfeld

Cong. Donald Rumsfeld (R-13th Dist.) has issued a statement giving his views on recent developments in Vietnam.

While expressing dissatisfaction with the present handling of American involvement in Vietnam, Rumsfeld reaffirmed his belief that this country is a Pacific power and needs to maintain a "presence in Asia."

Rumsfeld opposes sending 200,000 additional U. S. troops to South Vietnam, but he left open the matter of sending a lesser number. Rumsfeld attributed the present difficulties in Vietnam to a lack of South Vietnamese willingness to "actively resist the pressures being applied by the Viet Cong and the North Vietnamese."

The Illinois congressman said that he co-sponsored a resolution calling on Congress to review its role in the conduct of American policies in Vietnam. Although there were 58 original sponsors and there are now nearly 100, Rumsfeld doubts if the resolution will pass in the near future.

THE TEXT OF Rumsfeld's statement follows:

"I certainly share the deep concern currently being expressed over the direction of events in Vietnam. There can be no doubt that many thoughtful Americans have strong and growing misgivings about our involvement, the conduct of our military efforts and, most significantly, about the efforts of the Administration to achieve peace.

"I question whether the United States, or any other country, can "win" this type of insurgency war for the South Vietnamese. I have been suggesting this since 1966 in several reports of the Subcommittee on Foreign Operations and Government information, on which I serve. A copy of my remarks from one of those reports is enclosed. Until the South Vietnamese develope a capability to sustain any measure of success that is achieved militarily with the help of U. S. forces, the wisdom of maintaining the level of our present involvement becomes highly questionable. It is my view that the U. S. had thus far been unable to provide meaningful assistance to South Vietnam to achieve political, economic and social stability and equally important, a sense of nationhood and a willingness as a people to actively resist the pressures being applied by both the Viet Cong and the North Vietnamese.

"I HAVE COME to the conclusion that without a considerably higher degree of co-operation and success on the part of the Government of South Vietnam to gain popular support and co-operation from the people, the prospects for progress under the present plan are minimal. Certainly, the fact that the VC were able to plan, mobilize for and successfully execute the many and varied operations which were conducted during the Tet offensive, without having been exposed by the hundreds of South Vietnamese citizens who had to have known in advance of the VC activities, indicates a lack of popular resolve and commitment to the South Vietnamese Government.

"If I am correct in the above statements--and I believe I am--then the proper course is to energetically seek a change in policy. Therefore, I personally do not favor sending 200,000 more American ground troops to South Vietnam at this time and have not seen any satisfactory justification for such a proposal by the Administration. The only reasonable justification would be to protect the U. S. Forces now in South Vietnam and such a commitment would therefore be temporary.

"Our interest in Vietnam, in my view, should be part of a broader interest in Asia. I do believe that the U. S. can help to provide a more stable and peaceful world by maintaining a presence in Asia. Undoubtedly, this was the motivation for the beginnings of our assistance to Vietnam. The present conduct of the U. S. effort in Vietnam, however, is not, in my opinion, a necessary or wise implementation of the desirability of a U. S. presence in Asia.

"Recently, various Congressional Committees have been calling upon officials in the Administration to clarify U. S. policies and the underlying premises. There is also a growing concern about the role of Congress with respect to foreign policy matters, a subject which has been of particular interest to me for some time. In 1965, in my testimony before the Join Committee on the Organization of the Congress, I urged that the matter be considered by the Committeee.

"IN THAT YOU may not be familiar with my other activities on this complex question, let me add that on Sept. 25, 1967, I co-sponsored a resolution (H.Con.Res. 508) calling on the Congress to review its role in the conduct of our Vietnam policies, in an effort to bring the entire Vietnam question to the floor of the House for debate. Although 58 Members of the Congress joined in that effort, the Democratic leadership has prevented the resolution to more than 100.

"I must admit that I am not optimistic that these recommendations will be adopted by the present Administration in the near future. I will, however, continue to work for an honorable and reasonable resolution of the war."

Cubs Set Tours

The Chicago Cubs and United Airlines are jointly sponsoring fan club tours to both coasts for the 1968 baseball season.

Shea Stadium in New York will be the first stop for the fan club. A Cubs-Mets series has been scheduled there for May 3, 4, and 5.

Later in the season, July 24-28, a tour to San Francisco for a series with the Giants at Candlestick Park has been scheduled.

Interested boosters may contact Dave Lamont at Wrigley Field, 281-5050.

Bright, articulate and self confident young men are needed for two progressive opportunities! Our well established firm has just opened new Mount Prospect offices.

We offer a total service to industry that is predicated on "Quality". Our company employs no conmen, pitch artists or slick operators. Our offices are not hole-in-the-walls, giant supermarkets or cold water flats. We do not hit gangs, give away motor-cycles or in any other way challenge the integrity of our business.

PARAMOUNT'S offices are ultra-modern, our bonus picture is the only one of its kind in our business and progression is from within.

These positions are inside personnel opportunities - representing a QUALITY SERVICE TO INDUSTRY. You will talk to people on all levels while learning and training for your career with our company. This is not a blind ad - or misstatement of what PARAMOUNT is. If hired you will receive a generous base plus commission. To start with the emphasize on "Growth".

2nd Big Week

Grand Opening

Bring The Family! They'll Enjoy A Trip To Jewel-Osco!

Your big, new Jewel-Osco is a great place to bring the family.

Dad is sure to appreciate the parking facilities — ample enough so it's always quick and easy to get in and out. The youngsters are bound to enjoy investigating Jewel-Osco's many fun-to-visit shops and the friendly people in them.

And you? Well, you're going to like lots of things about Jewel-Osco. The exciting bargains throughout the store. The convenience of doing your food and variety shopping all in one handy location. The nice-to-shop-in atmosphere of this big, new Jewel-Osco.

Now, during Grand Opening Days, there's also special excitement going on. So come. Bring the family. There's fun for all in store!

Automatic Unloading Check-Out Systems – Another A&P First In Arlington Heights

Shopping carts unloaded automatically; incredible as it may seem, it's true! All you do is wheel the cart into position at the check stand, then step aside and your entire order, large or small, is removed from the cart without you or the clerk lifting an item. After the cart is unloaded, the checker pushes a button and the cart is automatically released, turned and delivered to you along side the checkout. A youngster, in the safety seat, may go along for the entire ride—in complete safety. "The new checkout system is another in A&P's continuing "WE CARE" program aimed at constantly improving goods and giving speedier and more helpful service to our customers."

Berkley Residents Blast Farm Plan

Plans for the Arlington Heights Park District's proposed small farm zoo met with opposition last night in the form of petitions signed by 247 residents of the Berkley Square subdivision.

More than 30 residents jammed the meeting of the board of park commissioners to ask questions, to give suggestions for the development of the park site and to present the petitions.

The park site in the subdivision on north Arlington Heights Rd. is adjacent to Elementary School Dist. 21's Edgar Allen Poe School, now under construction. The park board and the board of education have arranged to share facilities for recreation programs. The school is expected to open in the fall.

Acting as spokesman for the homeowners, Ronald Ribe presented the paitions and said, "While the over-all idea many have appeal and some intrinsic value, a farm exhibit is neither desirable to us or supported by us. The money spent on the farm would only be a down payment on a future liability."

"I AM SORRY that all the folks made up their minds before they saw what we propose," said Charles B. Cronin, president of the board of park commissioners.

The main objections raised by the residents were: the type of animals, the cost of moving the farmhouse and barn, parking facilities, maintenance of the barnyard and animals and the sacrifice of a portion of the park site for the farm exhibit.

Cronin and Thomas Thornton, superintendent of parks, attempted to answer all the questions and explain the proposed plan.

Cronin said no plans were final with the board, but, since the buildings are on park district property, the idea of a small farm zoo was explored.

THORNTON SAID the park - school site was dedicated by the developers of the Berkley Square subdivision. He said the developer has plans to deed an additional 4.5 acres to the park development.

He said the plans for the park include full recreation facilities with three tennis courts, baseball diamonds, playground equipment and use of the school building gymnasium for indoor programs.

"The Poe School will have one of the best gym facilities we have to work with. We can maintain a program there all year," Thornton said.

He said plans for the school were developed in cooperation with the park so the facilities could be shared. Thornton said an ice rink would be available in the Berkley Square site when the tennis court are flooded in the winter.

According to the park officials, the farm complex could be smaller than one acre.

Thornton said the neighborhood park would serve the existing Berkley Square area and the 90-acre residential development addition to the subdivision. He said the land north of the subdivision is zoned for industry, but the citizens said the zoning could be changed to include more residential development.

Riba said there will be approximately 3,000 children in the subdivision area when it is fully developed.

"MY OBJECTIVE now is to preserve the buildings. They are very valuable buildings," Thornton said.

He said the farmhouse and barn would have to be moved from the present location to a place in the west section of the park. The barn is located in the center of a future street, Burr Oak.

A preliminary cost estimate on moving the barn and house, constructing new foundations for both buildings and remodeling work is $11,870. Paving, fencing and parking lots would cost an additional $5,267.

In reply to the questions on the parking facilities, Thornton said that the school parking lot would be available and that the Berkley Square

Woods Names Housing Board

By Charles Mouratides

Arlington Heights President John G. Woods yesterday announced the appointment of the five members of the newly-established real estate brokers review board.

The board has been formed to review alleged violations of the village's fair housing ordinance.

The village trustees unanimously ratified the one-year appointments. The same persons are eligible for subsequent terms in office.

The five members, all residents of Arlington Heights, are Howard L. Pollard, chairman, director of employe relations for the United Air Lines; Herb Carl, owner of Arlington Realty; Mrs. Edward R. Vogeney, housewife; Kenneth Dougan, assistant general manager of subscription services division of Time Inc.; and John Janzsen, owner of Arlington Furniture.

"We are very fortunate to have this distinguished group of individuals," said Woods.

CARL WAS ONE of three area Realtors proposed by the Multiple Listing Service (MAP), a pool-type service provided for properties in Mount Prospect, Arlington Heights and Palatine.

Woods said the selection of a Realtor for the board did not take under consideration his profession.

"I did not appoint Carl to the board for his professional affiliation with the Realtors," Woods said. "I know him personally and I believe he will do a good job."

The village president said he has known all the review board members for a long time and they are his personal selection.

The board has the power to subpoena witnasses and pertinent documents, and to take sworn testimony.

The fair housing ordinance makes it unlawful for any real estate broker in the village to discriminate against any prospective buyer because of the person's race, national origin, color, religion or ancestry.

It also requires Realtors to receive a special $40 license to handle any property within the boundaries of the village.

"ANY PERSON aggrieved in any manner by the violation of any provision of this ordinance may, within 60 days after the date of the alleged violations, file a written complaint setting forth his grievance with the real estate brokers review board," the ordinance states.

"The complaint shall state the name and address of the complainant and of the persons against whom the complaint is brought and the alleged facts surrounding the alleged violations of this ordinance."

The review board is authorized to investigate every complaint immediately and a conciliation hearing may be set if there are indications that the complaint is factual.

If conciliation attempts fail within 60 days, another hearing is to be set.

The board is to make a report and a recommendation to the village president. The board of trustees will study the case and the recommendation, and will make the final decision.

A Realtor may have his license suspended or revoked for up to a year in cases of discrimination. The village also may seek action against the state license of the broker.

Failure to acquire a village license may result in a fine of up to $500. The license is issued for one year.

$10,000 Price of Vandals' Spree at New Hersey High

BY BETSY BROOKER

Paint splashed on walls and spilt in pools on the floor, shattered windows and smashed heating ducts at John Hersey High School will cost about $10,000 for replacement and cleaning.

Between 10 a.m. and noon Sunday, vandals broke a window at John Hersey High School which is still under construction and entered the building. The break-in occured during the dinner break of the work man on duty.

The vandals went through the building, unhinging chained doors and leaving a trail of destruction.

All the windows on the top of the second floor and a skydome were broken. It takes eight weeks to deliver tempered glass.

Seventy-five gallons of paint were overtruned on the floor and smeared on the walls. A restroom, newly-tiled in pink, now features large blobs of black paint.

A battery-operated fork lift was used to smash heating ducts on the ceiling. The sheet metal and coils of the ducts were damaged. The boilers may have to be shut down and drained.

EVERY DIAL on a cran outside of the building was broken. Carburetors were taken off of another machine.

According to Eugene Chomer, superintandent for Engelhardt, the general contractor, it will take several days to access the full extent of the damage. Insurance will not cover glass breakage.

Construction of the new high school, which is already behind schedule, was set back by the incident and will not reach completion in September. When students attend classes in the fall, the auditorium and gymnasium will still be under construction.

R. W. Griesmyer, Dist. 214 supervisor of buildings and grounds, said the vandals probably were under 16 years of age, because no car was seen in the area. He also said they probably are from the immediate neighborhood because they were familiar with the hours of the workmen and knew when the building would be unguarded.

Griesmyer added that there had been trouble in the area during the Christmas season with destruction of decorations.

CHOMER URGED any parent who saw paint on his child's clothing or shoes Sunday afternoon to investigate the matter. He said there is a good chance that some evidence of the vandalism still would be on the child when he returned home.

There had been minor occasions of glass breakage for several weeks prior to the break-in Sunday. According to Chomer, they were relatively insignificant.

There has been no security guard on the construction site. Francis Coleman, Dist. 214 director of business services, said there was no need for a guard during the construction of the last three high schools. The only other comparable case of vandalism was a fire started at Elk Grove High School.

In the future, Engelhardt will provide a guard on evenings and weekends.

The Day To Salute Servicemen

We'd like to salute your serviceman.

The Day will publish, on May 17, a special section honoring area servicemen and marking Armed Services Day. The section will feature photographs and pertinent information about men from Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect, Rolling Meadows and Prospect Heights who are serving in the armed forces.

A form for submission of biographical information and pictures is on Page 7 of today's Day. The form and photograph must be mailed to The Day before May 6.

Trustees Approve Suit to Raze Non-Conforming Buildings

Arlington Heights trustees last night authorized the village attorney to sue four property owners for zoning violations in the central business district.

All four own frame houses in a district zoned for office, commercial or limited apartments.

The properties allegedly violate an ordinance which prohibits wood-frame structures in the central business district.

A zoning ordinance passed by the village trustees in 1959 obliges owners of non-conforming properties to meet the zoning standards within a specified period of time.

THE ORDINANCE prohibits structural alterations on non-conforming buildings and thus restricts renovations that would prolong the use of the existing structures.

The four property owners did not indicate to the village's satisfaction that they are planning to raze the houses, according to a letter sent out by the building department about 30 days ago.

The owners of non-conforming buildings are: Roy Tucker of Barrington, 33 S. Vail; Walter Krause of Arlington Heights, 17 S. Evergreen; R. G. Wolf of Des Plaines, 13 W. Davis, and an unidentified owner of the house at 28 S. Vail.

Three other property owners have said that they will raze their buildings.

Another Ronald Petrolito of Palatine, owner of the house at 25 S. Highland, reportedly has refused to accept the notification mailed by the building department.

Building Commissioner Harold Best said he has tried twice to contact Petrolito by mail and he is going to make a third attempt.

BEST SAID a lawsuit may be filed against Petrolito if the property owner continues to refuse the mail.

The owners of the non-conforming structures, according to a village spokesman, do not want to raze the buildings because they expect land values to rise as time passes.

The village believes the owners make enough rent from the houses to pay taxes while waiting for higher prices.

There are about 60 non-conforming structures in the central business district and 13 non-conforming buildings already have been razed without a lawsuit, according to the building commissioner

Action soon will be taken on another 13, Best said.

A bicycle ridden by Eugene Eberhardt, 62, of Palatine, lies in the center of Northwest Hwy. Monday after a collision with a car driven by Hans Wahl, 17, of Des Plaines. Eberhardt was admitted to Northwest Community Hospital with a fractured leg and is in fair condition. He was ticketed by Arlington Heights Police for operating a bicycle on the wrong side of the roadway. Wahl was ticketed for driving too fast for conditions and for not having his car under control.

Wind Topples Construction Wall at Center

Wind toppled a 25-foot construction wall at the Northgate Shopping Center on Rand and Arlington Heights Rds. Monday.

Police said they found 230-feet of concrete block and brick wall that was blown over by the wind.

There were no workmen on the wall at the time and no injuries were reported to police.

Condon Fills Park Board Vacancy

Edward Condon of 515 W. Fairview was appointed a member of the Board of Park Commissioners of the Arlington Heights Park District last night.

He was named to the five-man board to fill the vacancy left when Joseph R. Byerwalter resigned last month. Condon's term will expire in 1973.

An 11-year resident of the village, he is employed at Bankers Life & Casualty Co. in Chicago. He and his wife, Nancy, are the parents of seven children whose ages range from 20 to 8.

"We have lived here a long time and I always have been interested in community affairs," said Condon.

HE HAS BEEN active in the Arlington Heights Little League and is a member of the Chicago Postmasters Co-Ordinating Committee.

"With seven children in the family we always have been frequent users of the park facilities. I am looking forward to working with the commissioners and really was quite honored when asked to serve on the board," Condon said.

The other members of the board of commissioners are Charles B. Cronin, president; John Edwards; E. E. Ormshea, and Douglas L. Thompson.

New park board commissioner Edward Condon reviews plans for the development of a park site in the Berkley Square subdivision. Residents protested the proposed plans for a farm zoo at the site during Condon's first meeting as a commissioner last night.

Manpower Pool to Provide Emergency Police Aid

An almost split-second response in the event of a community disaster is a goal set by suburban police chiefs in an attempt to pool manpower for mutual aid.

Police chiefs and commanding officers from Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect, Elk Grove Village, Rolling Meadows, Wheeling, Barrington, Des Plaines, Palatine, Crystal Lake and Park Ridge, met in Arlington Heights Friday to take the first step in a program that would achieve their goal.

Lt. Jack Aldrich of the Arlington Heights Police Department was named to head a committee to develop plans for training personnel.

Mount Prospect Police Chief Newell Esmond, Rolling Meadows Police Chief Cy Campbell and Park Ridge Police Chief H. J. Ediger have formed a committee to work out a detailed plan for the organization.

CIVIL DISTURBANCES, natural disasters and other emergencies that occur without warning in the suburban communities would be the special project of the police pool.

"We are interested in immediate, on-the-spot reaction and response from trained men," said Lt. Aldrich.

He cited the tornado that struck Arlington Heights two years ago and listed a possible plane crash in the nearby town as two situations in which the special force of policemen would be used.

"We would like to train people for specific tasks. These tasks have not been outlined yet, but we are working on a general outline now. In two weeks we should have something ready," said Aldrich.

"Sometimes a real emergency or disaster is too much for one community to cope with. We must be ready to assist each other when we hear a yell for help.

"When the tornado hit, we had to use men from the Nike site to perform a basic police function. That was to keep people out of the damaged buildings and areas. But it took a certain amount of time for us to get the help.

"What we need is a response right now. Sometimes, five minutes from now could be too late." Lt. Aldrich said.

THE POLICE officials said the emergency unit of trained personnel would be able to provide aid to another community whenever additional manpower was needed.

Aldrich said the detailed plan may be ready this summer. The Nike site in Arlington Heights was suggested as a possible "training ground" for the police.

Discussions among suburban police chiefs on the formation of such a task force have been conducted in recent months, but the meeting last week was the first attempt by the chiefs to assign organizational tasks and reports.

Willow Bend Apartment Plan Gets Planners' Conditional OK

After much delay, the Rolling Meadows Plan Commission Monday night approved the $8.5 million Willow Bend 652-unit apartment complex provided that the developers, Multicon Co. of Columbus, Ohio, meet six conditions.

Willow Bend is to be built on the north side of Algonquin Rd., east of the proposed Barker Ave.

The developers had indicated at a recent public hearing that they would have working plans for the project completed and ready for presentation. However, Monday evening's "final plan" appeared to be contigent on assurances that Multicon officials had met and discussed specifics with various experts and that inaccuracies, if any, would be corrected.

According to Multicon representative Jack Kessler, "Multicon has met with every expert to make details correct, probably more so than any other Multicon project."

THE PLAN commission repeatedly pressed for details on such items as parking ratio, flood prevention and residential density.

Multicon agreed to provide two parking spaces for each single dewelling as opposed to 1.8 parking spaces for each unit originally proposed.

This is to be accomplished by converting grassy areas into parking lots.

Streets in Willow Bend will be 36 feet wide with parking allowed on one side only in accordance with demands made by the Rolling Meadows fire chief. Chief Thomas Fogarty voiced his demands in an earlier session with the developers, expressing a concern for access for fire trucks.

Plan Commission member Joe Meyer, introduced the subject of flood control, asking Multicon representatives "How can this area (Willow Bend) be brought above the flood point with the fill you're taking from the land?"

Multicon officials replied they will raise the School District land only two feet.

MEYER PRESSED the issue for a more current statement, inquiring "Is there a way to get a plan to coordinate flood control?" Multicon officials pointed out that the flood problem belongs in the hands of the Rolling Meadows city engineer and not those of the developers. However, they assured the plan commission members that Multicon was working toward the city engineer's specifications.

Meyer also brought up the question of density in Willow Bend. Without using land from a proposed school site and lake area, Multicon plans to build approximately 16 units per acre. Current blueprints show the Willow Bend development covering 47 acres minus the school and lake regions. There will be 7 acres of streets and 10 acres of pavement.

After the question and answer exchange, the commission voted unanimously to approve the Willow Bend project subject to the following conditions:

--That approval be received from the city engineer;

--That Multicon furnish a plan for elimination of on-street parking in accordance with the 2-1 ratio;

--That the final plan shows existing streets 36 feet wide;

--That mounding and screening be provided for the benefit of adjacent single family dwellings;

--That the minimum lot area per dwelling be in accordence with the R-5 residential district classification;

--That the plan commission be furnished with a detailed drawing for flood control methods in the Multicon development and surrounding vicinity.

CITY ATTORNEY Don Rose also said that before any building permits are issued Multicon must deposit a sum of $25,000 to defray costs of a roadway and a bridge over Salt Creek.

The Multicon project now needs only the final go-ahead from the Rolling Meadows City Council, which meets tonight.

The Ohio form moves on to projected ground-breaking April 1 of this year.

4 Persons Injured in Car Crash

Four persons were treated at Northwest Community Hospital in Arlington Heights Monday for injuries received in a three-car accident at Northwest Hwy. and Vail.

The driver of one car Mrs. Sally Elder of 907 E. Thomas, Arlington Heights, and her two children, Janne, 9, and Maureen, 8, were treated and released from the hospital.

The driver of another car, Edward Rehfeldt, 19, of Palatine, also was released from the hospital.

The third car involved in the accident, driven by Rita Lee, 46, of 3901 Eagle Ln., Rolling Meadows, was stopped near the Intersection according to Arlington Heights Police.

Rehfeldt was ticketed for disregarding a red light.

3,000 Plan to Continue School During Summer

BY BETSY BROOKER

Summer will not mean an escape from the books for 3,000 Dist. 214 students this year. Beginning June 20, they will attend classes, just as if it were still wintertime.

However, their ambition will enable them to either accelerate, make-up, or up-grade their education.

First semester of summer school will be in session from June 20 to July 12. Second semester will last from July 15 to Aug. 2. Tuition is $20 per semester because summer school is not tax supported.

According to William Randle, director fo summer school, registration will begin as soon as the course brochures are out, probably May 1.

Some 95 per cent of the teaching staff is part of the regular winter session staff. There will be 90 teachers in all.

Forty-five courses will be offered this summer, ranging from American history to band. The majority will be "single classes" (only one of a kind), conducted at Prospect High School. Students will attend the school where a course they want is offered.

Most classes will meet from 8 a.m. to noon. Exceptions are typing classes which last two hours, and lab courses, which meet three additional two hours a week. There will be also a few afternoon classes for students who want to take one and a half units of credit. One credit equals four hours.

New courses offered this summer are a tennis class, and a combination weight lifting and gymnastics class at Wheeling High School. The speak on last year's schedule.

One thousand summer students and approximately 23 teachers will be involved in the driver education program.

This high enrollment is a result of a new state driving law requiring six hours of behind-the-wheel instruction for a driver's license before the age of 18.

Also, there is a 15 per cent reduction in most insurance premiums, if a driver has completed successfully both the class and behind-the-wheel driving instruction.

Driver Education will be in session from June 17 to July 12, and from July 15 to Aug. 9. It will include two Saturdays, June 22 and 29.

Students from outside of Dist. 214 may attend after paying an additional fee of $5.

Store Owner Half-Changed By 2 Youths

A front half of a $10 bill, glued to a $1 bill was received Monday by Leonard Weidner when two youths came to his store at 15 E. Eastman and requested change.

Weidner told Arlington Heights Police he gave the two boys two $5 bills for the money. Then, he said, he noticed the front half of the $10 bill was glued to the back of a $1 bill.

The bill was sliced razor-thin and only the front side of the $10 bill remained intact.

Police said Stephen Heyer, 18, of 651 E. Clarendon Ln., Arlington Heights, admitted being one of the boys who passed the bill. He made the $10 restitution to Weidner Monday night.

Arlington Heights police did not charge Heyer.

Obituaries

Henry L. Williams

Henry L. Williams, 70, of 1119 Wedgewood Ln., Mount Prospect, died Sunday in Northwest Community Hospital. He was a resident of the village for 12 years.

He is survived by his wife, Annette; two daughters, Mrs. Nancy Johnson of Mount Prospect, and Mrs. Marion Carlton of Inverness; four grandchildren; and a brother, Fred Williams of Milwaukee.

Visitors may call at the Lauterburg & Oehler Funeral Home in Arlington Heights.

Services will be Wednesday at 1:30 p.m. in the funeral home chapel with the Rev. Gilbert Bowen officiating. Burial will be in Ridgewood Cemetery.

Township Surplus May Benefit History Societies

BY RICHARD CRABB

The historical societies of Wheeling Township are almost certain again this year to share in the distribution of surplus township funds.

Wheeling Township is to distribute, subject to the vote of the citizens, nearly $230,000 at its annual town meeting April 2. Under Illinois law historical societies may received up to $10,000 from surplus township funds.

The major share of the surplus funds is certain to go to the elementary school districts of the township and to the mental health institutions serving the Wheeling Township area. The township board will recommend that three-fourths of the surplus funds go to the schools and mental health institutions. Also likely to receive surplus funds are the Over Fifty Clubs in the township.

UNDER ILLINOIS law the township tax collector retains 2 per cent of all taxes collected locally as a fee for collection services. The excess, after the expenses of collection are deducted, is paid into the general township fund. It is this excess which is distributed at the annual town meeting.

The Wheeling Township Board, with Supervisor Albert Peters presiding, met Saturday with representatives of the two historical societies of Wheeling Township. Virgil Horath represented the Arlington Heights Historical Society. John Koeppen spoke for the Wheeling Historical Society. Both societies have in the last year begun development of museums and are investing all funds they receive in the improvement of these first museum facilities to be developed.

The Arlington Heights Historical Society is developing its museum in a structure that was one of the oldest homes in the village. The Wheeling Museum is being developed in the village's first town hall erected in 1897.

It was also reported at the meeting that the citizens of Mount Prospect are in the first steps of forming a Mount Prospect Historical Society.

PETERS INDICATED that since the two historical societies are now in a period of great financial need while they are establishing museums, the Wheeling Township Board will consider recommending the maximum of $10,000 in surplus funds to be divided equally between the Arlington Heights and Wheeling organizations.

On Tuesday evening the Township Board will hold a public hearing on the annual township budget. The present estimate of surplus funds is based upon the adoption of the new township operating budget. The public has the opportunity to make proposals, about the budget at the hearing.

Berkley Home Owners Blast Farm Proposal

park would have more parking facilities than any existing site in the district.

Cronin said the board of commissioners will make the final decision on the preservation of the buildings, but said the wishes of the residents of the area would be considered.

He said a decision must be made by April 15 so the buildings can either be destroyed or moved. The board is expected to make that decision at its April 9 meeting.

When Cronin asked how the residents would feel about preserving the existing buildings, most members of the audience urged abandoning the farm idea and destroying the buildings.

Riba said the money that would be spent to refurbish the farm buildings could be used more effectively to provide park facilities in other areas.

On Honors List

Two Arlington Heights students have been listed on the President's Honors List at the University of Colorado in Boulder.

They are: Judith Ann Carlson, 204 S. Derbyshire, and Gregory Don Galyon, 110 S. Yale. Miss Carlson is an arts and sciences student and Galyon is an engineering student.

Vandals Hit

Mount Prospect Police report that vandals broke into the railroad station over the weekend breaking a glass showcase and littering the waiting room with waste paper.

Vandals Hit Park Offices

Recreation Park in Arlington Heights was the target for burglars and vandals this weekend.

Saturday Allen Nemeth of the district told Arlington Heights Police the offices in the park were entered and damaged.

Police said a file cabinet was pounded with a hammer, the desk drawers were pulled out and the contents spilled on the floor, an office window was smashed, a ring of keys taken and the soft drink machine in the basement of the fieldhouse was smashed and the money taken from the coin box.

Park District officials have not submitted a damage estimate to police.

Police found a 24-inch pry bar inside the office of the building.

Time May Be Running Out For Suburb Merger.. Woods

BY RICHARD CRABB

"It may be much later than we think", Mayor John Woods told Des Plaines civic leaders in two talks explaining his proposal for consolidation of several villages in northwest Cook County. Woods spoke Thursday evening before the Des Plaines Lions Club and on Friday before the Des Plaines Rotary Club.

A month ago, Woods suggested that in order to be in a position to preserve home rule for the area, a study should be launched immediately of the consolidation into one large municipality of Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect, Des Plaines, Elk Grove Village, Wheeling, Prospect Heights, Buffalo Grove, Rolling Meadows, Palatine and Schaumburg.

WOODS SAID that the Chicago suburbs are constantly being pushed toward metropolitan government that would shrink the participation of citizens in local government and wipe out the opportunity for home rule.

"How many people know that the City of Chicago now has a common boundary with the northwestern suburbs of Park Ridge, Des Plaines, Elk Grove Village and Mount Prospect?", Woods asked.

"How many people know that as long ago as 1965 the proposal was seriously made to merge and combine the City of Chicago and Cook County?

"How many people know that the federal Highway Act of 1962 makes it a condition of any federal grant for highway funds to be used in this area that there be secured the approval of a public planning agency of the Chicago area? This means that in order to get any kind of federal highway in our villages right here in northwest Cook County, the recommendation and approval must be secured from NIPC, the Northeastern Illinois Planning Commission, or CATS, the Chicago Area Transportation Service? These are at present the only two such public planning bodies in the Chicago area.

"EVEN THE highly respected United States Chamber of Commerce urges its members to support consolidation of local government units to avoid duplication of services and the resulting high costs?

"It has seriously been proposed by state and federal planning agencies that even the combining of Chicago and Cook County would not be large enough to bring about an effective local government. They have proposed that the six northeastern Illinois counties be placed under one government", Woods reported.

One of the great problems, Woods said, is that the people have so little opportunity to learn about these developments as they occur. Referring to the major decision of NIPC this past week to adopt its "modified finger plan" as the pattern for Chicago area development for the next generation, Woods said.

"When NIPC announced this decision within the past week, The Arlington Day gave more coverage to this major development than all the Chicago newspapers combined".

WOODS SAID HE had given years of thought to this problem. He said that his proposal for consolidation into a municipality of 250,000 with a potential for a million population was the most effective means of keeping control of the northwest Cook County area in the hands of the people who live there.

"I moved to Arlington Heights 15 years ago when it was a village of less than 9,000. Frankly, I wish it had been possible for it to have remained a village of that size. The fact is that we are experiencing a galloping urbanization. The process is going to continue for years to come. If we are to preserve home rule, we are going to have to take some well thought out and very positive steps".

WOODS EXPLAINED that he made his suggestion, before the Northwest Municipal Conference late in February. Immediately that body appointed a committee to study the possibilities of consolidation.

Bomb Tossed On Front Porch

James Rush told Arlington Heights Police Monday a home made bomb was thrown at the front porch of his home at 204 S. Yeie.

Police said a protion of a box was found and there were burn marks on the concrete steps of the home.

Day by Day

Thanks from Vietnam

By Catherine O'Donnell

"Dear Mrs. Beckius," the well typewritten letter began, "I received your package today and wanted to express my thanks to you and the members of your club.

"It was most generous of you and your club to think of me. I presume you've learned of my whereabouts from someone associated with Maryville Academy where I was raised.

"The package did indeed brighten up the day as it's a common practice among my group to share with each other. Since I've got a squad it was a real treat."

THE LETTER sends along a few suggestions about items the young service men especially like. It continues, "This is the first time that I've ever been the recipient of anything in almost 16 months that I've been here."

The letter ends, "Once, again, on behalf of my squad and myself, we'd like to thank you for your thoughtfulness, generosity, kindness and consideration. Respectfully, Jim Kamaryt."

Jim is one of the boys who spent their growing up years in Maryville, a home and school for orphans, and children from broken homes. He is typical of the youngsters who grow up in Maryville.

He is a fine, decent and lonely boy. Many of the servicemen are lonely but for boys without families, the Arlington Heights Junior Women's Club has been a godsend.

"DEAR LADIES:" starts another letter from Marine Corporal George Heid. George, another boy from Meryville Academy says, "Really, it would be very hard to try and explain how much your thoughts have been appreciated.

"Your efforts and thoughts did more for my morale than you would believe. There's no way I could thank you enough."

George sends along a description of the area he is in that marks him as an imaginative and sensitive young man. "As for being in a country where there is no snow - It's true that it seems funny but when we were in Chu Lai for awhile I really started thinking about snow and home because the sand in Chu Lai is pure white.

"At night when a full moon is on it you have to reach down and feel it because it looks so much like snow. So you see we're not totally without snow. All I have to do is let my imagination go and there's snow everywhere."

GEORGE expected to be coming home soon when he wrote. His year was almost over with. "It's really a great feeling," he writes. "After spending an entire year over here, getting shot at, getting mortared, no food or water at times and coming through it all in one piece is rather hard to believe.

"I've learned to appreciate life more for one thing. I've also learned how hard it is on a person to see a close buddy cut down in front of him.

"Another thing, very important, that I've learned through actions such as yours is that there are people that care and appreciate what we're doing over here. There could be no better morale booster for any G.I. than to know that people are rooting for them.

"To all you ladies and to all those like you I say for all of us -- Thank you from the bottom of our hearts. Believe it or not, you play a very important part in this war. You're our inspiration and backbone. Without you it would be hard to carry on."

THESE ARE JUST two of the letters the Junior Women have received since they began a year ago to make the service men past and present their particular project. Joanne Beckius is chairman and there are fifteen women on her committee but the entire club assists.

They sent 41 packages to service men in Vietnam and they visit Great Lakes Hospital and Hines Veterans' Hospital to play cards, chat, conduct bingo games and do whatever they can to make life a little brighter for the patients.

The next mailing of packages goes out on April first. In order to fill the boxes, they've placed large cartons in the two local Jewel Stores and in the Elm Grocery where customers can put any small items they'd like to send overseas.

The women were horrified last week to discover that a thief had taken some of the items from one of the boxes at the Vail Jewel. The box since has been placed in a spot that is easier to watch.

There is still plenty of time for local shoppers to drop an item in one of the boxes. The Junior Women will be glad to pay the postage on 10 times the amount they've already sent. The letters of thanks make it all well worth while.

Joanne's committee consists of Jene Behrens, Alyce Cagenn, Pat Gwyn, Ruth Hertzog, Audrey Reider, Arline Setikas, Kethy Thackery, Doris Upshaw, Bea Sonderegger, Sharla Rustemeyer, Bunny Polenzi, Jenet Hanson, Helen Gauvreau and Betty Cook.

Dialogue

... with George Hamilton

"There are some days when I wonder about our 'public servants' as they are called. It's difficult to determine who's side they are on."

"That's usually what someone says when they get a traffic ticket. Is that what happened to you?"

"Not exactly. But yesterday was what you might call a 'Blue Monday.' For a while it seemed like nothing would go right.

"It started out when I went out to get the mail. In it I found a letter telling me I had won a four-day vacation in Florida."

"And that's bad?"

"For me it was. In order to claim my prize, I was supposed to notify the people who awarded it by 9 p.m. Sunday. The deadline expired nine hours before I received the notice."

"Well, did they send it out too late, so you couldn't possibly get in on time?"

"It shouldn't have been sent too late. The letter was mailed in Chicago last Thursday, and it was delivered in Rolling Meadows four days later. It might have arrived sooner if it had been mailed from California."

"Oh yes. I have heard that cross-country mail goes faster because it's sent by air evan if you don't pay for air mail service."

"Maybe the Post Office will air mail me to Florida to make up for the vacation I lost out on. But that wasn't the only problem I had with the mail service yesterday.

"Since I moved to Rolling Meadows, the Post Office insists on sending me mail that isn't mine. Last Thursday, I mailed a check to someone who lives in the apartment I had in Chicago.

"It was important that the check be delivered, so I called the Post Office that handles the mail where I used to live. I talked to the superintendent, his assistant, two of the clerks and the carrier on the route.

"They all assured me they would not forward mail that wasn't addressed to me. So they forwarded the check I mailed last week. It was in my mail yesterday."

"I guess that would tend to ruin one's day."

"That isn't what did it. I went to my car, parked in a private parking lot, and found a ticket on the windshield. At the Rolling Meadows police station I was told the ticket was a warning that I would get a real one if I didn't buy a Rolling Meadows vehicle sticker.

"I protested that I had just moved here and had paid my vahicle tax for the year already in Chicago. They told me:"

"That doesn't matter. When you move here you have to buy one of ours, too."

"But that's double taxation."

"We can't help it. That's our ordinance."

"Well, why was a ticket placed on a car in a private apartment parking lot?"

"That's a semi-private parking lot."

"What does that mean?"

"It means it's not private."

"How did you know I wasn't just visiting there?"

"The car was parked there all night."

"Can't visitors stay all night? That isn't against the law, is it? What if you ticket a visitor's car?"

"Well, they can ignore it, then."

"I never heard of having to pay a second vehicle tax in a year if you move. Could you show me the ordinance?"

"Yes, it's right here in this book"

"Hmm - it says here that if I moved in before Feb. 1 I would pay six dollars, but because I moved here now I will have to pay oine dollars."

"No, it's 10 dollars. That ordinance is obsolete."

"Do you have a copy of the new ordinance?"

"No, but if you stop by tomorrow, we can get a copy of it to show you. You can't keep it though. It's the only one we have."

"Just for fun, let's stick a pin in a place where there is NO potential crisis!"

The Town Marshall Makes a Comeback

BY JOSEPH STUBENRAUCH

If the latest suburban trend in recruiting law enforcers catches on in our communities, this area may go down in history as the Wild Northwest.

The recent revival of the post of town marshal in Glen Ellyn may trigger -- excuse the phrase -- the appointment of badge-wearing facsimiles of heroic figures similar to ones made familiar by the boob tube.

The appearance of a marshal and a full staff of deputies in our sister community resulted from the state Supreme Court ruling that prohibits the use of part-time auxiliary police officers.

THE VILLAGE board of Glen Ellyn recently met this situation by appointing Jack Bremer as town marshal and making his staff of 22 part-time reserve policemen his deputies. Bremer had been captain of the Glen Ellyn reserve unit, "a well-trained group of men," according to village manager William Galligan.

Galligan pointed out that the village budget didn't allow for full-time regulars and the new setup of the marshal and his men preserves intact a unit of men who perform a badly needed function, just like the volunteer firemen in Glen Ellyn, and in many northwest suburban towns.

The Illinois Municipal League and the Illinois Association of Fire and Police Board Commissioners at this point seem headed on a collision course.

THE LEAGUE has forwarded a letter to suburban communtities which outlines a model ordinance useful in creating the new posts.

Many mayors have been reported unhappy about the state court decision of 1967. Municipal legal advisors have helped frame the model ordinance.

The new deputies do not fit into the civil service commission picture, but are hired, directed, and if necessary, fired, by village officials. Regular policemen's employment is governed by the boards of fire and police commissioners or the civil service commission.

The appointment of new part-time police officers and commissions affiliated with the state association of fire and police board commissioners.

MEANTIME, word of the Glen Ellyn's marshal's appointment has been passed around suburbs with problems similar to Glen Ellyn's.

Nobody expects a shoot-out at high noon in any of the interested suburbs. With the majority of area communities afflicted with traffic and parking problems as it is, it's doubtful whether champions of either side would survive long enough at any hour of the day if they started to pace slowly towards each other along the highway dividing line.

The problem also arises as to who would be legally allowed to arrest the survivor.

When the legal gunsmoke is cleared away, we are sure the finale will show law and order triumphant; as always, in the past. Especially on TV.

Scanlan to Speak At GOP Women's Meet

Ted Scanlan, mayor of the village of Wheeling will be the guest speaker tonight at the meeting of the Wheeling Township Democratic Women's Organization. Scanlan will discuss the possible merging of 10 northwest suburban communities.

The meeting will be held at 8 p.m. at the Democratic headquarters, 735 W. Dundee Rd., Wheeling.

Also, on the agenda will be the introduction of organization officers for 1968-69 who are: Mrs. Wilburt Thiele, Prospect Heights, president; Mrs. Robert Meersman, Mount Prospect, vice president; Mrs. James S. Poulos, Wheeling, secretary; Mrs. George W. Dorsey, Arlington Heights, treasurer; Mrs. William B. McCrea, Wheeling, membership; Mrs. R. B. Yadon, Arlington Heights, publicity; Mrs. Elaine Williams, Wheeling, ways and means; and Mrs. Andrew Poulos, Wheeling, hospitality.

New residents of the township who are interested in participating in party activities may call Mrs. Thiele, 537-2099.

Why Police Recruits Are Hard to Find

There is concern these days among law enforcement officials over the difficulty of recruiting qualified candidates for police jobs. Although salaries are not high they are adequate, and they are improving. Physical, mental and moral eligibility standards are necessarily high, but not unreasonably so.

Arlington Heights Police Chief L. W. Calderwood speaks for most police officials when he says that the ideal recruit is the man who likes police work -- the man who believes in it as a worthy and dignified service and wants to make a career of it.

But candidates of this type are becoming increasingly hard to find. Why?

Some excellent clues to the answer are offered by two stories in the news last week.

"Cop Arrested for Shooting of a Suspect," said a headline in last Friday's Chicago Tribune over a report that Circuit Court Judge Jerome Slade had issued a warrant for the arrest of a policemen in suburban Lemont.

The Tribune reported that the officer was seeking to arrest a man wanted for two aggravated assaults. When he saw the suspect leap from the window of a house and flee, the policeman ordered him to halt and fired a warning shot in the air before finally shooting him in the leg. The suspect, it developed, had a record of 12 arrests and three convictions.

THE JUDGE, the news story said, admitted he was unsure of the facts in the case when he issued the arrest warrant for the policeman and indicated that he would set things straight at the scheduled hearing.

The officer's comment: "I feel it is almost impossible to do police work when something like this can happen."

His reaction undoubtedly is shared by the Chicago policemen involved in the case reported by the Chicago Daily News Saturday under the heading, "Cussing Out Policeman Just Free Speech: Judge."

U. S. District Judge Hubert I. Will declared that a citizen has the constitutional right to incite a crowd, to quarrel with police and even swear at them.

The judge's remarks were made in a hearing on an injunction petition brought by a man and woman arrested during a "tent-in" last September protesting housing conditions on the West Side.

Police testified that the defendants, in addition to attempting to incite a crowd, had quarreled with them and screamed obscenities at them.

"Swearing at police is not a violation of the law," Judge Will is quoted as saying.

THE OBVIOUS inference is that a policeman who is made the target for obscene names and other verbal abuse may take no action. Dwell on that. See if you can even apply it to a like situation involving only private citizens.

Add these two police cases to the problems created by recent court rulings severely restricting procedures for the arrest and questioning of crime suspects, the increasing disrespect for law and order, then you have gone a long way towards understanding the shortage of eligible recruits for police jobs.

Letters to the Editor

Suggests 'Capt. Daniel Schueren Park'

Editor:

May I suggest that a park be named for Captain Daniel Schueren, who was recently killed in Vietnam.

I recognize that Arlington Heights has had other heroes and other men killed in Vietnam. Not many however have volunteered for a second tour of duty. Vietnam may not be the most popular war in American history, but I don't think we should forget our neighbors who have died for our country in that far off land.

Captain Schueren was obviously motivated by what he conceived to be his duty to his country. That may be a powerful lesson to us all.

Educational News Important

Editor:

As president of the Arlington Teachers' Association, I wish to thank the Arlington Day for its cooperation and the coverage it gave during both our salary negotiations and during the Dist. 25 tax referendum.

The importance of news regarding our educational system and its operation requires that there be complete and accurate reporting in order that citizens in a community be properly informed.

The ATA also wishes to express its appreciation to Richard Crabb for his cooperation in working with us. He had also taken the time to offer suggestions which will be helpful to the ATA in the future.

James E. Monroe, President

Liked Gymnastic Coverage

Editor:

I would like to thank the Arlington Day and especially Ralph Novak for the excellent coverage during the recent gymnastics season. The gymnasts certainly deserved the publicity and I'm sure it contributed to their success.

This fine sport has needed more recognition and following and I sincerely feel that your articles have made many people in the area aware of gymnastics for the first time.

Thanks again for some fine reporting.

Fresh Spring Look

BY MARILYN HELFERS
Woman's Editor

With March blowing gentle "lamb-like" breezes, thoughts of spring and spring fashion have top priority on the feminine mind. Never has shopping for spring clothes been so appealing. The feminine look is as popular with the ladies as it is with the men.

Ever popular navy remains as a fashion leader. Teamed with sparkling white and patriotic red, white and blue, it presents a lovely spring silhouette.

Brown also continues its role as a fashion leader and looks extremely smart when combined with white. Ruffles, gathered skirts, flowers, belts and stripes are available in easy-care fabrics that keep their fresh, spring look well into summer.

Left – Stripes and belts are leaders in new spring fashions. Stripes on this cowl neckline take a different direction from those in the dress.

Brown continues its role of a fashion leader. Solid brown is combined with brown and white plaid and the waistline is outlined in sparkling white.

Delicate daisies covered with airy chiffon create the Empire bodice – reflecting spring's feminine and fitted look.

Spring's truly romantic look is achieved here with rows of ruffles on the scoop neckline and edging the skirt.

Gamma Phi Beta to Aid 3 Schools

Northwest Suburban Alumnae chapter of Gamma Phi Beta sorority will again aid three local schools for mentally retarded children: Clearbrook School, Countryside School, and Northwest Suburban Aid to Mentally Retarded Children in Park Ridge, with the proceeds from their annual "Have a Heart" bridge benefit, which raised over $400.

The three high bridge hands were awarded to Mrs. John Sally, first, Mr. Kurt Carlyle, second, and Mrs. James Shedden third.

FINAL REPORT from the benefit will be presented at the next regular meeting, Wednesday, March 27 at the home of Mrs. Alvin Reitz, 7 Indige Court, Coach Light Manor, Mount Prospect at 8 p.m. Cohostess will be Mrs. Al Edwards, and Mrs. David Nank.

Newly-elected officers will be installed; President, Mrs. Al Edwards, Vice-president, Mrs. Gerald Schloemer, Recording Secretary, Mrs. Michal Cuthbert; and Treasurer, Mrs. Alvin Reitz.

A movie presented by the WAA MU will be presented with a book auction following the meeting. Everyone is asked to bring paperbacks for the auction.

New alumnae in the area are invited to call Mrs. Page Engelke, 437-4391.

Homemakers Notebook

Some Cooking Suggestions

Here is a page of cooking suggestions to add to your Homemaker's Notebook:

Use a 3-lb. shortening can for flouring chicken. Add salt and pepper to flour, place several pieces of chicken in at one time, cover with plastic lid and shake.

The container can be stored with leftover flour mixture ready to be used next time.

AN EASY WAY to split cake layers is to make a cut about ½" deep around the cake where you want to divide it. Then lay a piece of sewing thread in this cut, cross it in front and gently pull.

Drain cooked macaroni or spaghetti into a colander or strainer placed over your serving bowl. The hot water will warm your bowl and keep spaghetti from cooling so quickly.

Before adding nuts to cakes or cookie batter, put them in a bowl of water. Many of the little pieces of shell will float to the top and can be easily skimmed off.

NO MORE broken teeth or bitter taste from biting into a piece of shell. Remember to dry the nut meats before adding to batter or it might be too moist.

Dried beans will cook more rapidly and are less likely to crack if you salt them near the end of the cooking.

Here is an unusual way to decorate an iced cake. Wash and dry some leaves.

Melt two squares (two ounces) of semi-sweet chocolate with one teaspoon of butter.

PAINT CHOCOLATE on backs of the leaves about one eighth of an inch thick, bringing chocolate just to edge of the leaves. Chill until firm. Peel off the leaves and trim your cake with chocolate leaves.

For quick and easy company dessert, roll scoops of ice cream or sherbet in grated semi-sweet chocolate made by grating chocolate squares onto waxed paper. It is especially good with raspberry sherbet.

125 Years for Clarke

Working on plans for the 125th anniversary party of Clarke College, Dubuque, Iowa are Mr. and Mrs. Edward M. Joyce of Arlington Heights.

Clarke College is a Catholic women's college with an enrollment of about 1,000 and draws students from all areas of the United States and many foreign countries.

Southminister Sewing Day Wednesday

The women of Southminster United Presbyterian Church, 906 E. Central Rd., Arlington Heights, will participate in a Sewing Day from 9:30 a.m. to 3 p.m. in Fellowship Hall, Wednesday.

Refreshments will be served both morning and afternoon. Those attending the entire day will provide their own sandwiches for lunch.

Mrs. Donald Stoll of Mount Prospect is world service chairman. The sewing and craft projects are donated to Presbyterian Home in Evanston, Christopher House, Presbyterian-St. Luke's Hospital, Christian Industrial League, all in Chicago, and leprosariums throughout the world.

'Is Smoking Worth It?'

At 8:15 p.m. tonight South Junior High School will show the film "Is Smoking Worth It?" in the school cafeteria. The film, being shown through the courtesy of the American Cancer Society, will also be seen by students at South to enable parents and children to discuss the hazards of smoking.

Pancake Day Saturday

A Pancake Day sponsored by Bethel 107, Job's Daughters will be held from 6 a.m. to 2 p.m., Saturday, March 30 at Palatine Masonic Temple, 1 N. Plum Grove Rd., Palatine.

Admission is $1 for adults, 50 cents for children under 12.

Mrs. Peterson In Sigma Alpha Concert Sunday

Mrs. Douglas E. Peterson, 401 N. Derbyshire, Arlington Heights, will represent Park Ridge Alumnae Chapter of Sigma Alpha Iota in the Chicago area interchapter musicale on Sunday, March 31, at 4 p.m.

The program will be at Nelson Hall of the Chicago Conservatory, 7th floor, 64 E. Van Buren, Chicago. The public is invited and no admission will be charged. Mrs. Peterson will play "Sonata for Flute and Piano" by Poulenc.

Other performers will represent college and alumnae chapters of this professional music fraternity.

2 Local Youths To Perform in ISU Frat Cricus

Two Arlington Heights students will participate in the Illinois State University's Gamma Phi Circus March 29 and 30.

Lee Combs, 622 S. Dryden, son of Mrs. Florence Combs, will perform vaulting and parallel bar routines; and Arthur Weidner, 1131 N. Dunton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Weidner, will perform parallel bar, ring, horizontal bar, and adagio routines.

Performances are also scheduled for Dixon High School on April 20, and Colfax High School on April 27.

New Prospect Coach Cites Pitchers as Question Mark

The hopes of the Prospect varsity baseball team rest on the shoulders of their pitching staff, according to Larry Pohlman, the Knights' new head coach.

Pohlman comes to Prospect after being assistant baseball coach at Wheeling High School last year. He's replaced Bill Slayton, now Arlington's head basketball coach.

"Pitching, right now, is our biggest problem. Our pitchers are going to have to do a better job than they have been doing," said Pohlman.

CATCHING WILL also be a problem as Bob Romme and Tim Gilek, both seniors, and Jim Carroll, a junior, try to fill the void left behind the plate by the graduation of Tom Lundstedt.

Gone from the mound are the talents of Dave Kingman, who last year was one of the brightest pitching stars around. Three seniors will be assigned the task of hurling for the Knights this spring.

Pat Schwinn, Bob Johnson, and Steve Schawhann will be the moundsmen Pohlman chooses from when the Knights open their season April 4 against Niles North on the Niles diamond.

BERTHS ON THE first string are still up for grabs as Pohlman has made no decisions as to the starting nine.

"It will probably be a senior team," he said, but he hasn't made up his mind yet.

Practice for the Knights started March 12, and Pohlman said he is pleased his team has had the chance to practice outside as often as it has.

Forty candidates showed up for practice the, but the squad has since been cut to 20. Pohlman said he also has six or seven juniors who will practice with the varsity after spring vacation and the jayvee games are over.

First baseman Jim Gumz is one of five returning Prospect lettermen who form the basis of coach Larry Pohlman's first Knight squad.

POHLMAN PREDICTS that Fremd will have a strong team this year because all of last year's Viking team will return for a second season of varsity ball. Conant and Wheeling may also give the Knights a rough tima Pohlman said.

Pohlman will hava five returning lettermen in Butch Leonard, Joel Thaiss, Jim Gumz, Shawhann, and Schwinn. Leonard will take on outfielding tasks, Theis is a shortstop, and Gumz will handle first base chores for the Knights.

Other seniors on the squad are: Doug Olson, 3b; John Musial, 2b; Bob Spore, 1b; Norm Klein, of; Marc Schillinger, of; Bob Romme, c; Tim Gilek, c; and Johnson, p.

JUNIORS ELEVATED to varsity status so far are: Jeff Suss, lf; Dave Lemmon, lf; Bob Kline, p; Ron Dolejs, p; Jim Carroll, c; Mike Wulbecker, of; and Steve Grant, if.

Prospect's schedule for the season includes 18 regular games, four of them out-of-league encounters, plus, the District and Regional games.

The varsity schedule:

Date	Opponent	P

5-17	Arlington	H
5-20	Regional
5-24	Elk Grove	A

Maine East's Jack Gillio bursts into an early lead in the mile run at the Blue Demon relays Saturday. Gillio went on to win the mile in a meet-record 4:19.3, with Prospect's Steve Holmes, running behind Gillio here, taking third. Gillio also ran the anchor leg on the Maine East varsity mile relay team that won the meet's last race to take the team championship.

4 Returning MSL Champs Feed Cards' Tennis Hopes

BY TOM WALSH

Arlington High School may just have its third state championship of the year in the making -- at least it has all the ingredients necessary on its tennis courts.

Head coach Tom Pitchford has four 1967 Mid-Suburban League individual champions back this year, including the nucleus of last year's third-place state team, Bill Von Boeckman.

The 1968 season will be the fourth varsity season Von Boeckman has seen while at Arlington. Last year, the stocky senior handled the number-one doubles chores with how graduated Jim Esser, the pair finishing first in the MSL and in the runner-up position in the state finals.

VON BOECKMAN will do battle in the number-one singles spot this year.

Matt Weeg will shun his number-two doubles role of last year and assume the number-two singles spot for the Redbirds. Last year, Weeg teamed with John Brost, now graduated, to win the MSL number-two doubles title and advance to the quarter-finals of the state meet before being ousted by a Rock Island tandem.

The number-three singles spot is still open, seniors Bob Gallagher and Chuck Gibbel and junior Bob Crockett battling for the berth.

TWO SETS OF junior duos are currently trying to top one another for the first doubles position. Bill Stelling and Paul Stevens, both juniors, come into the season with a varsity MSL number-two doubles title under their belts, while juniors Ken Jorgensen and Greg Harris, returning with a MSL sophomore number-one doubles crown to their credit, are doing their best to dethrone the experienced Stevens-Stelling team for the number-one spot.

Other candidates working with the varsity team are juniors Dennis Conrad, Don Bieber, and Rick Tindall.

Pitchford has high hopes for his entire team, but won't commit himself with predictions. Von Boeckman looks especially promising to the veteran coach, however, Pitchford pegging his number-one man as "probably one of the top four players in the state."

VON BOECKMAN worked under the direction of Grant Golden, who teamed with Barry MacKay in 1957 and 1958 for the mens' national indoor doubles championship, throughout the winter, playing in a special development program designed to prepare Chicago-area tennis talent for national competition.

Pitchford pinpointed New Trier and Hinsdale as the tougher teams the Cardinals will have to contend with and Evanston's Mike Medere, Niles East's Mark Bishop, and East St. Louis' Jimmy Connors as the stumbling blocks in Von Boeckman's way to state honors.

Aside from his 12 varsity candidates, Pitchford and assistant coach Bob Knilans are sifting through 45 freshman and sophomore hopefuls. The Cards will open their season Saturday, April 6, when they travel to do battle in the annual New Trier Quadrangular.

Date	Opponent	P
4-6	New Trier Quad	A
4-11	Hinsdale	A
4-13	Evanston Inv.	A
4-18	Forest View	H
4-23	Fremd	A
4-25	Palatine	H
4-27	Arlington Inv.	H
4-30	Conant	A
5-4	District Meet
5-7	Wheeling	A
5-9	Elk Grove	H
5-10	New Trier E.	H
t-13	Evanston	A
5-15	Oak Park	A
5-17-18	State Meet
5-21	Prospect	A
5-25	Conference Meet

Bill Von Boeckman will be opening his fourth year of varsity competition when Arlington begins its season April 6 in the New Trier Quadrangular. Card coach Tom Pitchford says Von Boeckman is "probably one of the top four players in the state."

Pat Schwinn is one of three seniors Prospect baseball coach Larry Pohlman is counting on to handle the Knights' 1968 pitching work. Schwinn and the other two top pitchers, Bob Johnson and Steve Shawhan, are seniors.

Three Area Teams Seek To Better Track Marks

Prospect, Forest View, and Wheeling will try to better their track records this afternoon in a series of dual meets.

Prospect hosts Palatine at 4:30 in an attempt to better a 2-5 dual mark. The Knights have had better luck in large meets. So far, they've won two triangulars.

Forest View will try to end a losing streak, taking on Wheeling and Conant at Wheeling. The Falcons are 0-5 in dual competition. The best they've been able to do so far is to place third in two triangular meets. They were last beaten by Arlington and Niles East.

Wheeling's Wildcats will take an overall record of 2-5 into a triangular meet with Conant and Forest View on Tuesday before hosting the Wildcat Relays on Saturday, March 29.

The Cats have had good luck in their two large meets, placing second in one triangular, and winning the other, from Fremd and Elk Grove.

Wheeling and four other area schools, Prospect, Arlington, Forest View, and Elk Grove, will participate in the Wildcat Relays this Saturday at Wheeling.

'Kits Messed Up

The only Illinois high school to win two state athletic championships during the 1966-67 school year -- Evanston Township -- has already lost its chance to repeat in both sports, and lost both chances to Arlington.

The Wildkits were 1966 cross-country and 1966-67 gymnastics champions, and the Cards have dethroned them this year in both sports.

Elk Grove Aims To Escape Golf Rough in 1968

There's only one way that Elk Grove's golf teams can go this season -- up, and the chances of improving on last season's dismal 0-10-0 varsity record are good.

Head Coach Grant Ahlberg has two returning lettermen to build his young team around. Out of thirty varsity candidates, only three are upperclassmen.

Returning lettermen junior Bill Eitzenhoefer and senior Frank Schultz will be the only returning regulars. Experience may prove to be a deciding factor for the Grens in golf this spring.

Elk Grove will hold its golf practice sessions and home meets at the Indian Lakes Country Club.

Steve Chernicky is in his fourth -- and last -- year as Wheeling's head baseball coach. Next season he'll be head coach at Hersey High School, which opens next September. Chernicky, who is also a Wildcat football assistant, spent a year at Arlington as a baseball and basketball assistant coach and was head baseball coach at Benedictine High School in Cleveland, his hometown, before that. He graduated from Purdue University, where he was an outfielder and first baseman in baseball and a football teammate of two now-professional standouts, quarterback Len Dawson and end Lamar Lundy. He was an assistant freshman football coach at Purdue for a season before he entered high school coaching.

Ecker Sets 6-Senior Lineup in 'Cat Tennis

Wheeling's varsity tennis coach, Ted Ecker, is confronting the 1968 season with a set, six-senior lineup and optimism about the Wildcats' chances of improving their fourth place Mid-Suburban League finish last season.

"All our kids practiced over last summer, and everyone has shown a great deal of improvement," Ecker says. "We could be right up there near the top of the conference."

Sophomore Mike McLain, who Ecker has chosen to team with Ron Kensli at no. 2 doubles, is the only member of Wheeling's probable starting lineup who isn't a senior.

Ecker, entering his fourth season as Wheeling's head tennis coach, lists his singles contingent as Jim Cuca at no. 1, Reid Hansen at no. 2, and Tom Kreis at no. 3, with Scott Decker and Dan Den Beste forming the Wildcats' no. 1 doubles team.

Two juniors, Mike Menia and Bob Carlson, will be Wheeling's top reserves, Ecker says.

Senior Scott Decker is scheduled to team with Dan Den Beste to form Wheeling's no. 1 doubles team when the Wildcats open their 1968 season April 8 at Maine South. Decker is one of six seniors in coach Ted Ecker's probable opening lineup.

Daggett Wins Fencing Letter

Dean Daggett of Palatine was one of six fencers awarded letters for the winter sports season at Michigan State University at East Lansing.

He was one of two Illinois boys to receive varsity letters at MSU in fencing.

Two other boys from Palatine have made the varsity baseball squad at the University of Illinois. Sophomores Ken Johnson and Barry Yurtis are two of the fifteen sophomores on the Illini thirty man roster.

Johnson is listed as an outfielder while Yurtis is listed as the squad's no. 2 pitcher. The Illini are scheduled to play 28 games this spring.

Career Minded
READ THIS
Bright, articulate and self confident young men are needed for two progressive opportunities! Our well established firm has just opened new Mount Prospect offices.

We offer a total service to industry that is predicated on "Quality". Our company employs no conmen, pitch artists or slick operators. Our offices are not hole-in-the-walls, giant supermarkets or cold water flats. We do not hit gongs, give away motor-cycles or in any other way challenge the integrity of our business.

PARAMOUNT'S offices are ultra-modern, our bonus picture is the only one of its kind in our business and progression is from within.

These positions are inside personnel opportunities - representing a QUALITY SERVICE TO INDUSTRY. You will talk to people on all levels while learning and training for your career with our company. This is not a blind ad - or misstatement of what PARAMOUNT is. If hired you will receive a generous base plus commission. To start with the emphasize on "Growth".

Your Horoscope

FOR WEDNESDAY

ARIES (Mar. 22-Apr. 20)--Activities planned for this day may not jibe with what you personally had in mind. Set your own interests aside

TAURUS (Apr 21-May 21)--This is a day which should bring spiritual and material rewards to the Taurus who works for the success of another

GEMINI (May 22-June 21)--Present your plan as concisely as possible if you would impress those who could be of aid to you Don't be overly aggressive

CANCER (June 22-July 23)--Take your suggestions to the right place and you should meet with agreeable response. It is not in your power to change another now

LEO (July 24 Aug. 23)--Common sense is your most negotiable trait today. You should be able to parlay it into success with little trouble.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 23)--Begin to prepare for the week end. Now is the time at midweek, to clear the decks for free time to come

LIBRA (Sept 24-Oct 23)--The more cheerfully you enter into th spirit of things on the employ ent scene, the more lik you are to be able to tak harge.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22)--The wise Scorpio will turn his attention away from business or professional affairs for the moment and see to matters on the domestic scene.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 22)--Be wise; stick to routine. The Sagittarius who attempts to begin new things now may be in for a setback

CAPRICORN (Dec 23-Jan. 20)--Don't make your demands too heavy or too pointed. The less you ask of others now the more you should receive from them later.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21-Feb. 19)--Don't be taken in by deceptive qualities of the day. Estimate carefully the amount of work you will be able to do in a given time.

PISCES (Feb. 20 - Mar. 21)--Any business or professional matters at a distance that need attending to should be taken care of now. Achieve by proxy.

Elk Grove Twp. Budget Shows $67,131 Increase

BY RICHARD CRABB

Elk Grove Township officials will recommend a record $461,131 budget at the annual Town Meeting April 2. The budget is up from $393,500 approved for the current year.

The budget includes the general operation fund, $167,460; the transfer fund, $162,421; and the road and bridge fund, $131,250.

The recommendations were disclosed at a public hearing Tuesday evening in the Elk Grove Township Hall. Most of the increase is in the general operating fund where two non-recurring items account for most of the hike. The items are a $17,000 budget for an aerial survey and $11,000 budgeted to meet the cost of 1968 elections.

Township officials projected record receipts for the year beginning April 1. The projection totals $342,232, excluding road and bridge fund receipts. Receipts include the following: excess commission, $249,000; interest on treasury bills, $2,152; vehicle stickers, $1,000; secretarial reimbursement, $3,600; treasury bill investment, $77,847; and cash balance on April 1, 1968, $8,632.

The largest item is the commission on the collection of taxes. Under state law the townships in Cook County are allowed to retain 2 per cent of taxes collection by the township tax collector.

THE TOWNSHIP board next week will recommend to the electors, who are the residents of the township, transfers totalling $162,421. Transfers approved at the 1967 Town Meeting totaled $136,500. The elementary school districts in the township would receive $100,000 if the Town Meeting approves the township board recommendations. The township's general assistance fund would get $33,000. The mental health fund would get $29,421 under the board's recommendations.

Practically all of the increase in the proposed budget comes in the general operating fund. The total proposed is $167,460. This compares with $125,285 approved by the Town Meeting last year and $89,939 actually spent during the year closing this week.

There are increases in seven of the nine catagories of the general operating fund. Compensation of town officers remains the same at $36,850. The township development fund also is unchanged at $10,000.

The election fund budget for the year beginning April 1 is $11,500. There was no election fund budget a year ago.

THE TOWN HALL expense budget for 1968 is $16,100, up from $13,600 for the current year. Repairs and improvements account for the entire increase, totaling $6,500 compared to $4000 this year.

The town offices' expense section of the operating budget accounts for $39,700, up $37,025.

The largest increase in any item of the general-operating fund is in the "other services and expenses". The total recommended is $34,310, up from $16,310. The entire increase of $17,000 would pay for a proposed aerial survey. Aerial surveys are conduced to locate new construction not previously reported for real estate tax purposes.

THIS IS THE first aerial survey ever proposed for the entire area of Elk Grove Township. An aerial survey was made six years ago for that part of the township in School District 59. A member of the school board reported that the school district has received annually an increase in tax funds resulting from the aerial survey amounting to five times the cost of the survey. It is estimated that the $17,000 aerial survey may result in a first year increase of $50,000, the increase to be realized each following year.

The item in the general fund budget for reforestration for the coming year is $2,000, up from $1,500 in this year's budget. Township clerk George Busse explained in the hearing Tuesday that property owners may secure reimbursement up to two-thirds the cost of replacing trees removed from the parkway under the Dutch elm control program.

The "provision for disaster" item in the budget is $10,000, up from $5,000. This increase is made necessary by a court ruling that the township is required to help persons in need from the first day they are in the township. Previously the township did not have the responsibility until a person had resided within its limits for 90 days.

The Elk Grove road and bridge proposed budget is only slightly changed from this year. The proposed budget for the coming year is $131,250 compared to $130,835 for the current year. The largest item in the proposad budget is $47,000 for oiling township roads. The second largest item is $34,000 for maintenance of roads, down from $36,000 in the current year's budget.

Youthful Suspects Missing

Two 15-year-old Arlington Heights boys who have been implicated in the weekend burglary of Recreation Park fieldhouse, have been reported to the police as missing from their homes.

The parents of the youths told Arlington Heithts police Tuesday evening the boys were missing since 8 a.m. that day.

Neither attended their classes at Arlington High School.

A third boy, aged 14, told Arlington Heights police Tuesday night that he and the other two boys committed the burglary of the fieldhouse.

The 14-year-old youth said one of the 15-year-olds entered the building by climbing a fence and crawling through an open washroom window. The climber then admitted the other two into the offices.

AN OFFICE window was broken, file cabinets damaged, and the drawers and contents were spilled on the floor of the building.

A soft drink machine in the basement of the fieldhouse was destroyed and the change from the coin box was taken.

Thomas Thornton, superintendent of parks, told members of the Board of Park Commissioners Monday only $4 and the change from the soft drink machine was missing.

Village Expected To Face Lawsuit On Sewer Taps

The Metropolitan Sanitary District (MSD) soon may file two lawsuits against the village of Arlington Heights for illegal connection of sewers to the district's network.

Earl Knight, who issues the district's sanitary permits, said it has been determined that the village has violated standard requirements of the district in the installation of sewers at John Hersey High School, Dist. 214, and at the Scarsdale Estates.

The two lawsuits will demand from the village $1,000 in each case and compliance with the district's regulations.

The village has failed to ask for a permit for the connection of sewers at Hersey High and to invite an MSD inspection of the connection of the sewers in Scarsdale Estates, according to Charles Boyd of the sanitary district's engineering department.

THAT DEPARTMENT originally intended to recommend to the sanitary board of trustees April 4 to sue the village, according to Knight, but the action was postponed pending talks between a representative of the district and Jack Siegel, the village attorney.

Siagel said the village's position is that the school district claims it is not obliged to obtain a permit because it is an independent body.

A 1965 Appelate Court decision stated that the school districts do not have to comply with the local building codes.

Boyd said that decision does not affect the sanitary district's permits and the school should have received one through the village.

"We deal with the municipalities," Boyd said. "The village would be the one to apply for a sewer connection permit."

IN THE CASE of the Scarsdale Estates sewer connection, Siegal said, the village maintains that the sanitary district was notified but nobody came to make the inspections so the work was completed without them.

Boyd said that while the high school's apparent refusal to comply with the regulation may be beyond the powers of the village, there is no apparent good reason for failing to comply in the case of the Scarsdale Estates.

Few of Public at Hearing

Wheeling Township Supervisor Albert Peters faced mostly empty seats as he presided over the public hearing on the 1968 township budget held Tuesday evening at Miner Junior High School in Arlington Heights. Less than 40 of the more than 100,000 citizens of the township attended the hearing to consider the general township budget and road and bridge budget for the new year beginning April 1. The general budget of $119,000 and the road and bridge budget of $198,800 have been on public display during March and will be acted upon at the annual Town Meeting April 2.

Vandalism's Aftermath

Both Schools and Culprits May Have to Share Bills

BY LINDA GAMMILL

The full extent of the damage to John Hersey High School over the weekend probably will not be realized for quite some time yet.

But one thing is certain: involved with it will be many agencies, both public and private.

The police, of course, have been dealing with the incident from the beginning, but there is little they can do without a suspect.

The school's insurance company will bear the brunt of the cost of the damage, unless the vandals are caught. The broken windows and glass bill will have to be paid by High School Dist. 214 since they are not covered by the insurance.

Some of the cost of the windows may be "absorbed by the contractor," according to Francis Colaman, business manager for the dist. if the vandals are caught, it will probably be a "negotiated item" with their parents, he said.

"In any large case of vandalism, the insurance company would handle the details," said Coleman. "If the parents of the vandals have insurance, then it is a case of the insurance companies battling it out."

WHETHER THE parents have insurance or not, if a complaint is signed against the offenders, they can be in for a rough time. If the vandals over 17 years of age, they will be sent to an adult court, charged with criminal damage to public property, and can be fined and sent to jail.

If under the age of 17, the vandals will be taken to Family Court in Chicago.

At least one case of vandalism has been settled between the school district and the parents of the vandals without going to court.

That incident took place at Forest View High School three years ago, according to Principal Lawrence Jenness.

"Window panes and lighting fixtures were shot out as in target practice," Jenness said.

Two boys were caught after one boasted to a teacher of their escapade.

The Arlington Heights police were called in.

"But the best decision seemed to be restitution by the parents" said Jenness.

THE $1,000 damages were worked off by the students, seniors at the time, by doing tasks around the school. The parents in this case were "highly co-operative," Jenness felt.

He didn't think that the boys were repeated offenders. "I think that was a one-shot deal," said Jenness.

Sgt. George Ekblad of the Arlington Heights police said that the police department had done "pretty good" in catching vandals in the past. The police department is, however, enlisting the help of police from surrounding communities in the case, in the event the vandals are from out of the village.

Study Outlines Improvements For Two Streets

An engineering study prepared by the village's consulting engineers, DeLeuw, Cather & Co., proposes improvements of Magnolia and Clarendon between Ridge and Highland.

The Village Board's legal committee, which is preparing a recommendation on the possible vacation of the two roads, did not take any action last night.

Frank Palmatier, chairman of the committee, said a decision may be made on the vacation of Magnolia by Monday. Preparing a recommendation on Clarendon will take longer, Palmatier said.

LOU BOLUS, a resident of the Northwest Highlands who has been advocating vacation of Clarendon, said that a petition circulated among residents of that street indicated five residents oppose and seven favor the vacation.

Mrs. Robert Bruhnke said she contacted residents living near Clarendon who would be affected by a special assessment to put in the street.

She said 54 out of 70 families living there want the street vacated.

Bolus said that some homeowners are prepared to go to court contesting the assessment. He did not say who would take legal action.

The engineering report also suggests that a mid-block crosswalk be constructed on Clarendon and the area be graded, filled and seeded.

The section of Clarendon considered for vacation is four blocks long. Totaling approximately 1050 feet.

A similar proposal for Magnolia has been suggested by Deleauw, Cather & Co.

M. F. Rupp, a representative of the engineers, said that the proposed sidewalk in the middle of the streets would reduce the amount of traffic while not vacating them.

PALMATIER SAID the street either should be vacated or extended without the crosswalk.

Sam Rudder, chairman of the Board of Local Improvements, said he will ask the engineers to prepare plans showing extention of Magnolia east of Highland, but not between Ridge and Highland.

He said, if village trustees decide to extend the street through that area as well, the plans would have to be changed.

Vacation of both streets recently has become a controversial issue in the village.

Homeowners have been represented before the board of trustees asking vacation of Clarendon and extention of Magnolia.

This bill was received by the Arlington Heights Chamber of Commerce from a California directory publishing firm. The bill is almost identical to that sent out by the Reuben Donnelley Co. for listing in the Chicago and suburban classified telephone directory.

Company's 'Proposal' Confused With Phone Directory Bills

Arlington Heights and Mount Prospect merchants have been receiving bills from a California directory service which resemble closely bills sent out by the Reuben Donnelley Corp. for listing in the classified telephone directory.

According to a spokesman for the Donnelley firm, many merchants throughout the state have sent payment to the California firm believing that they were paying for listing in the Chicago classified telephone directory.

"Actually, these bills are almost exact replicas of the bills sent out by our firm," said H. J. Walker, an official of the Reuben Donnelley firm. "The California outfit is smart enough to put details in fine print so we can't take any legal action against them for fraud," he said.

HAROLD BELL, executive director of the Arlington Heights Chamber of Commerce, said that he has received numberous reports of local businessmen receiving the bill from the California firm. The company, called the Directory Publishers Service Co., even sent a bill to the chamber offices at 103 N. Arlington Heights Rd.

In fine print on the front of the bill, which is typed on a computer card, the California company notes that the card is a "proposal" and not a bill or invoice. However, payment of the amount listed on the card constitutes acceptance of the proposal.

On the back of the card is a list of terms and conditions. According to these, the firm publishes a complete listing of businesses in "most major cities." No display advertising is accepted, the text says, and all ads appear in one type size.

If Bell had paid the bill, it would have cost the chamber $73 for listing in this year's directory. The chamber would have received one free copy of the directory, but could purchase extra copies for $2.50 each, according to the text on the back of the bill.

A SPOKESMAN for the Illinois Attorney General's office said that his office has received "numerous complaints" about the California company, but added that there is little action that can be taken against the firm.

"The only thing we can do," he said, "is warn all businessmen to carefully read all bills that they receive before approving them for payment."

Flute Taken

Mount Prospect Police report that a flute was taken from the band room at Prospect High School.

Thieves Take Samples

One hundred samples of women's slacks and dresses were stolen this morning from the auto of James Finnegan, 416 Braeside, Arlington Heights, a salesman for Cole of California.

Finnegan, who said the slacks and dresses have a retail value of about $1,400, told Officer Griff Dye that the auto was locked, but the garage was not.

The samples were all size 10. Police have notified area storeowners to be on the lookout for anyone attempting to sell the wearing apparel.

Youths and Parents to Pay For Damage

Restitution for approximately $2,800 in vandalism damage to Pioneer Park will be made by the parents of nine juveniles.

Several thermopane windows in the park fieldhouse were broken three weeks ago when the group of youths threw marbles at them.

Arlington Heights Police caught the juveniles and talked to the youths and their parents in a station adjustment.

Thomas Thornton, superintendant of the Arlington Heights Park District, Monday told members of the Board of Park Commissioners that the parents of the youths involved had offered to pay for the damage.

The commissioner discussed the possibility of having the juveniles "work off" some of the damage themselves, in addition to the payment, so the youths could have a share in the restitution.

Board members made no decision on any action involving the juveniles.

State to Install Traffic Signals Near Hersey High

State Rep. Eugene F. Schlickman (R-Arlington Heights) said yesterday that the Illinois Division of Highways has decided to install traffic control lights at Rand Rd. and Thomas.

Schlickman, who represented High School Dist. 21 in an attempt to secure the lights, said that the lights are needed to facilitate student traffic to the new John Hersey High School, which will open in the fall.

In a letter to Schlickman, George Marsh, state district engineer, said that the Cook County Highway Superintendent's advice is being sought on the lights.

Charles Tower, village engineer for Arlington Heights, said last night he knows that the county highway department also wants the traffic lights there.

MARSH SAID in his letter that Buffalo Grove Rd. may be made one-way northbound in order to reduce by half the cost of the lights.

Rand, Thomas and Buffalo Grove meet at that intersection. According to Schlickman, $80,000 will be needed if Buffalo Grove remains a two-way road. The state will pay for the lights.

Tower said that making Buffalo Grove one-way creates traffic problems that must be solved by making a curve on Thomas and Buffalo Grove, a plan that may be very expensive.

Homemakers Topic is Floors

"Your Floors-Carpets and Rugs" will be the topic presented to the Arlington Heights Homemakers when they meet at 1 p.m. Thursday in the Arlington Heights Federal Savings and Loan Assoc. building.

Mrs. Lucretia A. Thomason, Cook County Home Advisor, will present the lesson.

Any woman interested in attending the homemakers meetings is welcome. For more information contact Mrs. C. Hill at 253-2118 or Mrs. G. Pierre at 253-5188.

O'Rourke Vows Campaign To Publish Secret Report

BY RICHARD CRABB

Robert J. O'Rourke, GOP candidate for state's attorney in Cook County, told members of the Elk Grove Township Republican organization Monday evening that he would do all in his power, even as a candidate, to secure a release of the secret Blakey report.

The report, retained by the U. S. Justice Department as classified material, deals with ties between Chicago and downstate Illinois politicians and organized crime.

O'Rourke and Sen. William C. Harris (R-Pontiac), who seeks in the June primary, the Republican nomination for the office of Illinois auditor of public accounts, spoke to Elk Grove Township Republicans at the Mount Prospect Country Club.

O'Rourke is without opposition in the primary. He will oppose the Democratic candidate, Edward Hanrahan, in the November election. Harris is opposed in the primary by Sen. Terrel Clarke (R-Western Springs).

"I've seen a number of pages of the Blakey report", O'Rourke told his Mount Prospect audience.

"The names were blanked out. Life Magazine editors have seen the entire report and the magazine did two articles on the importance of the report last fall.

"Among its revelations is a close link between Chicago 1st Ward politicians and persons prominent in the Chicago crime syndicate.

CANDIDATE O'Rourke reported that he had talked with Dr. Robert Blakey of the Notre Dame University staff.

Although Blakey retains a copy of the report, he considers that it is now a document of the federal Department of Justice and that only the President and the Department of Justice can make it public.

"Violence in the streets will be an issue in this year's political campaigns from the office of President right down to the local officials", O'Rourke said Monday evening. The issue centering around the Blakey report takes on greater importance because of this.

The Cook County GOP candidate for state's attorney reported that he is having campaign buttons prepared, which will read, "What Happened to the Blakey Report?"

"If we can generate enough public demand for its release, perhaps we will be able to get it made public", O'Rourke said.

HARRIS REVIEWED the highlights of his 14 years in the Illinois General Assembly. He has served six years in the Illinois House and eight years in the Senate. One of two assistant majority leaders in the Illinois Senate, Harris also is a member of several Senate committees, including the powerful Committee on Committees.

Day by Day

Skip the Bourbon

By Catherine O'Donnell

Monday's Day by Day contained a recipe borrowed from a local school newspaper. The school is close enough to be considered local but Parent Teacher Association Council members in the main Arlington district will be happy to know that none of their youngsters are making their strawberry fluff stuff with bourbon.

Council president Fran Wenzel called to make sure that abject apoligies would be made to the wronged district. It seems kind of sad to have that cooking editor attend school in a different district.

CENTER STAGE

Young Jack Mongan, who works in the High Low on the weekend, will be happy to show his press notices to anyone who asks. Jack played Adriano in a musical at the Center Stage theatre and the Chicago papers called his performance "appealing" and "fine".

When he isn't working or singing onstage, he is a sophomore at Mayfiar Jr. College. His dad is the former assistant manager of the High Low, Jack Sr.

MORE ABOUT THE JUNIOR WOMEN

The Arlington Heights Junior Woman's Club under President Marylou Crounch has to be the busiest group of gals anywhere. Not only are they sending packages to Vietnam but they are regular visitors to Great Lakes Naval Hospital and to Hines Veteran's Hospital.

They have been making "scuffies" for the patients at the latter hospital besides conducting bingo games. The next game is scheduled for April 10.

Joanne Beckius is chairman of the Veteran's Committee. They are still collecting warm clothing for men so if anyone wants to send clothes they can call Joanne at Cl 9-4790.

As if that weren't enough, Joanne tells about a gal from Chicago who has opened up a new USO in Kam Ranh Bay. She has written home saying that the men do not have even the barest essentials such as stationery and ball point pens.

The Juniors sent a gross of ping pong balls and they would like to collect playing cards, paper back books, chess and checker games. They need the games the most.

Now that spring cleaning time is here again, as soon as you look at those games that no one ever uses, call Joanne. One company called Jaw-Teasers Inc. of Mass. sent 540 of their product for shipment to Vietnam.

There is another young man, Sergeant Ed Kedera who writes to Bunny Polanzi. He is asking for soap and clothing for the villagers who live near his station. He is a buddy of the son of Dolores Reagle who can supply anyone with his address. Her number is 259-4950.

ON THE HOMEFRONT

There will be a fund-raising party for Gene Schlickman, state legislator who will try for a third term from the third district. Lou Walton and Joan Walsh will be co-chairmen for the April 19 cocktail party and auction to be held at 8 p.m. at the VFW Hall on Northwest Hwy.

The tickets to the party will be sold for two dollars, but the big event of the evening will be the auction. "We would like anyone to send anything that they think would be a usable item for an auction," Lou said, "We would particularly like any handcrafted things."

Most of the auction pieces collected so far are new, but articles dear to the hearts of antique collectors will be welcomed. Lou can be reached at 392-9415, Joan at Cl 5-7377.

Other members of the committee who will be happy to pick up donations for the auction or to sell tickets are Jane Toot, 392-3186 or Lu Gustafson, 392-6320.

Springtime in Store

Shopping Is for Colors

BY BETTY AINSLIE

Spring is more than "bustin' out all over" in the local stores where I've been shopping. It's fun to see the new bright colors which are livening up everything from bedspreads to bunny rabbits and to know that the nicest time of the year is almost here.

Strong colors are evident even in the new stationery found on store shelves. G. C. Murphy Co. in Mount Prospect Plaza has some of this vivid writing material at nice and easy prices.

Care for the brilliant greens or oranges? You can brighten the day for someone by penning a newsy note on some of this gay colored stationery with envelopes lined with bright, flowery inserts. A big pad of paper is 59 cents and the spring-flower envelopes to match sell for the same price.

Have you been hunting for those giant-sized knitting needles? You can find them in the one inch size for quick, lacy looking outfits to be made quickly. The cost is $1.99 for the pair.

Or do you feel in the mood to organize that jumble of needles and thread thrown together in a shoebox? You can find a really big sewing chest in either clear plastic or tortoise shell for $3.87 at the Murphy store.

There are two organizer trays. The second tray is for your sewing table, or to be placed as an organizer in a sewing drawer. Each chest contains two pin cushions, 30 spindles for thread and 18 compartments, besides the roomy bottom section for patterns, material and other stitching needs.

Has your son or husband been attracted to the popular turtle neck shirt sweaters that are worn for everything from formal occasions to sports? And have you been hunting for them everywhere, especially for the larger sizes?

"We have a real problem keeping them in stock," said the very nice clerk at Jack's Men's Shop in the Mount Prospect Plaza. But now the store has a fresh supply in a double-knit texturized acetate in long or short sleeves put out by Playboy for $12. They are light weight and dressy in a soft, smooth-fitting material, and blend perfectly with a sport coat or suit, as they are avilable in many colors.

The college crowd is really going for these and I even noticed one with French cuffs, no less: a real evening dress turtleneck, also by Playboy, with a real flair, for $15.

Do you get discouraged about entertaining because you have to wash your good dishes twice -- once before the guests arrive and again afterwards? You can eliminate the pre-company wash job by putting your fine china in dinnerware cases. They last indefinitely and are well worth the small price asked by Goldblett's in Mount Prospect Plaza for a set.

A set consists of one 12 inch case for dinner plates, a nine and one half inch case for salads, an eight inch one for bread and butter plates, and a seven inch case for saucers. All hold a dozen plates and the price is $4.99 a set, with foam separators to keep dishes from breaking.

The cases are made of quilted gold print plastic with zipper tops, and keep your dishes dustproof and cupboards attractive. There's an additional circular cup case to match, for $3.99, to hold a dozen cups.

Just have to mention that if you've been intrigued by this new hair control pillowcase, which will keep a hair set in place without the aid of net or pins; you can buy a yard of this magical 100 per cent acetate fabric (ample for a standard size case plus wide hem) for $1.50 at Mary Ann Silks and Woolens at Golf Mill Shopping Center. For the cost of a can of hair spray you can whip up a case and keep your hair lovely from set to set.

Guest Speaker

Dr. Margaret Crumpacker will be guest speaker at Arlington Heights Evangelical Free Church tonight. Dr. Crumpacker is speaking in conjunction with the church's "Month of Mission." She is presently preparing for service in Hong Kong as a medical doctor.

MARCH 27

Dialogue

... with George Hamilton

"Well, here it is almost the end of March and we appear to be safe from a recurrence of the 'big snow' we had last year."

"But you never know when it'll hit again. This time I'm not going to be caught short of reading material. I'm laying in a supply of good books in case I'm marooned again."

"You mean you didn't have anything to read when you were snowed in last year?"

"Oh, some magazines and advertising circulars, but not what you would call real reading matter. If the power lines go kaput, and there's no radio or TV, I'll just cozy up to some immortal literature, get a candle going and wait the storm out."

Just what books do you plan to stockpile?"

"Well, I'd really only need one. I'd want a book entitled, "How to Build a Helicopter and Fly It."

"You are just adapting to your own emergency the famous reply of Gilbert Keith Chesterton, who said that the one book he would prefer to have if stranded on an island would be a volume on practical shipbuilding."

"I suppose if I was trying to impress you or whoever is within sound of my voice, I'd declare for a copy of The Bible, and the complete Shakespeare in one volume, and a tome of Liocola's speeches or Plato's utterances...."

"You're not going to impress anyone. Just rattle off the first five books you think will keep you from falling out of your tree while you're marooned."

"No book on making a helicopter?"

"Not even a single diagram."

"Don't rush me. It's not easy to make a good choice. Oh yes, an up-to date manual of hints by some golf pro on how to improve one's stance or putting technique--you know, the best advice from a top golfer, Palmar or Nicklaoa. And a catalog listing the latest items in fishing tackle."

"A catalog isn't really a book--but, okay, we'll let it in."

"Well, I might as well settle for a book like 'The Complete Handyman' or 'How to Fix It Yourself' type of thing. As long as I'm going to be stranded in my suburban manor, I might as well get that bathroom faucet fixed, and the cedar closet paneling put in and..."

"Wait a minute. Even if you had a manual of instruction, you'd still have to get out and pick up the parts and supplies to do those jobs. You're stranded, remember?"

"Oh yes. And in the snow, too. Okay, I noticed that you took up skiing recently. What if I get a book on how to ski? Then I can use those skis I got for Christmas 15 years ago and have been too chicken to try out."

"Since you waited so long, you ought to get a book to go with the one on skiing. 'What to do Before the Doctor Arrives, or Will Chicken Soup Really Help a Broken Leg?' "

"Shh! Daddy's thinking!"

Program Permits Students to Select Classes

BY JAN BONE

Janet Dieck's school schedule at Holmes Junior High may call for her to study language arts in the second period.

But she may not be there with the rest of the class.

Instead, she might be in the gym, practicing on the trampoline, or in art class, finishing a project.

She might be in the science lab, doing an experiment on paper chromatography.

She might even be in the cafeteria, if she decides she doesn't want to go to English class that day.

And this is fine with her teachers and principal.

Janet and others in her eighth-grade class at the Mount Prospect Dist. 59 school is taking part this spring in a program called "self-selected independent study."

"It gives them the opportunity, under control and guidance, to practice making their own choices, to take individual responsibility, and to live with their choices after they've made them," says Richard Jenoess, Holmes' principal.

JENNESS SET the program up in January, and wrote to parents explaining its objectives.

"Traditionally, today's school moves a student about from room to room, checking him in and out wherever he goes," he says.

"The student has very little control over his actions. If he is not where he should be, he is at fault and is disciplined.

"The student gets very little opportunity to take the responsibility for deciding what daily activities are most valuable to him, how he might most profitably spend his time, and which choices of teachers and classes will take precedence over others.

"Definite controls are being designed to evaluate and adjust the program as it is developed in its early stages."

Holmes has certain rules its students on self-selected independent study (StS) follow.

First, no child is taking part unless his parents have agreed. The 60 Holmes students who were chosen to test the program come from both "academically superior" and "average" groups.

If a student wants to use the SIS privilege, he must stop at the school office and fill out a card indicating where he's supposed to be, and where he plans to go instead.

He doesn't have to give any reasons.

He doesn't have to ask permission.

HOWEVER, HE is held responsible for all the work done in the regular classroom, whether he's there or not, and for all required written work, and for all tests.

Mrs. Janet Flapan, who coordinates the program, just completed a survey showing how the students used their SIS privileges during the first six weeks.

Of students with "limited SIS privileges," 13 worked on special projects, five studied for tests, 11 caught up on homework, eight practiced in the gym, and five sat through extra classes they felt they needed in some subjects.

They said their chief reasons for liking the program were better grades and more comprehension, more time to study, and more time to work on projects during school.

Of those students on "unlimited StS privileges," six used the time for projects, 10 caught up on homework, 13 went to extra classes, two used time for Student Council activities and 11 practiced in the gym.

Some mentioned that they didn't have to waste time in classes where subject matter comes easily.

ONE MOUNT Prospect family has a magazine rack made by their son in time he gained through the StS program.

Larry Nikodan, 603 S. Carol N., signed out of study hall for several weeks to put extra time in one his industrial arts project.

Dave Schuman, 303 W. Trowbridge, Elk Grove Village, is using his SIS privileges to complete a wood-and-metal duck for his parents' family room.

Other studnets, under the direction of teacher Bruce Klein, are putting an extra time to finish their party trays.

Janet Dick, 905 S. Waverly, Mount Prospect, likes the SIS idea.

When she came back to school after being absent, she used the SIS time to get special help from math teacher Mrs. Patricia Sugalski.

"It helps me to make up my work," she said, "and to understand math better."

Holmes students on the program come from Arlington Heights, Elk Grove Village, and Mount Prospect.

Other Dist. 59 schools are Juliette Low, in Arlington Heights; Dempster, Jay, Frost, and Forest View Elementary in Mount Prospect; Brentwood, Einstein, Devonshire, and High Ridge Knolls in Des Plaines and eight additional Elk Grove Village buildings.

What's Bugging Jimmy?

What does James Stavros have on his mind?

The former Wheeling Township Democratic committeeman has declared his intention to lead a campaign to deprive Arlington Park of its liquor license in order to block night racing there.

Like almost everyone else, we're a little startled and considerably puzzled. What has touched Stavros off?

Arlington has made no effort to press the case for night racing since it withdrew an application months ago in the face of strong opposition from the towns surrounding the track. Why is Stavros seeking to revive the issue now?

And where was he when all the shooting was going on, when citizens were circulating petitions and municipal boards were discussing the controversy?

Stavros' warning that the heavy traffic night racing would bring to the community would endanger the safety of children echos one of the protests made when it had some relevance. He sounds like a man who got hold of an old newspaper and didn't notice the date.

Or did he just now discover that he is "a citizen with five children" whose duty it is to fight Mrs. Marge Everett, operator of Arlington Park, whom he feels privileged to describe in uncomplimentary terms.

And why the liquor license revocation route? Why not a direct assault on night racing itself without something as discriminatory as denying a single establishment the right to sell liquor?

Following the Stavros logic further than he has projected it, if the lack of a liquor permit could prevent night racing wouldn't it have the same effect on day racing? Wouldn't that knock off Arlington Park completely?

And where did he come up with the rather ingenious--and no doubt, unworkable--plan for a prohibition vote restricted to those two county precincts which include the race track? Stavros isn't noted for that kind of involved thinking. The switch from politician to indignant citizen seems to have confused him as well as the rest of us.

Perhaps as his campaign unfolds some light will be cast on all these questions that baffle us. We're waiting.

University Class to Hear Mayors Speak

Three northwest suburban mayors and a member of the Cook County Board soon will lecture a class at the University of Chicago on intergovernmental problems of suburbia.

Mount Prospect Mayor Daniel Congreve, Elk Grove Village Mayor Jack Pahl, Arlington Heights Mayor John G. Woods and County Commissioner Floyd Fulle will be among 19 suburban officials who will address classes in the university course.

Woods is slated to deliver an address April 29 on municipal relations with state government. Congreve will speak April 22 on municipal relations with the township and county and Pahl will talk May 13 on the Cook County Council of governments of which he is president. Fulle will talk on metropolitan government May 20.

Homeowners Group Asks Action on Speed Limits

National Safety Council,
Highway Dept.
425 North Michigan Avenue
Chicago, Illinois

Dear Sir:

On Monday, Feb. 19, at 3:20 p.m. a tragic auto accident occurred on Arlington Height Rd at White Oak St. in the Village of Arlington Heights, that resulted in the death of a 26-year-old mother of three children and serious injury to her husband and two of her children.

This is not the first accident nor the first fatality that has occurred on this stretch of road between Central Rd. on the north and Illinois Rt. 58 on the south.

Because of the character of the area being residential, the speed limit of 40-45 mph south of Central Road is not consistent with the 30 mph speed limit north of Central Rd.

This wide variation in speed limits on this road is, in our opinion, a contributing factor in the increasing accident rate and we submit in addition to the fact that this is a residential street, the following reasons for a reduction of speed:

1. The approved half clover-leaf at the Northwest Tollway and Arlington Heights Rd.
2. Dunton Elementary School crossing at Cypress St. and Arlington Heights Rd.
3. The curving nature of the road preventing sufficient warning of heavy traffic.

In addition to the above, a similar situationis presently developing on Central Rd. between Arlington Heights Rd. and Ridge Avenue in the same village.

Your immediate action is requested.

George J. Kempsell, Jr.,
President Arlington Heights Gardens Home Owners Association

HAVE A SPRING fashion FLING!

HOW TO GIVE YOU AND YOUR FAMILY FASHION-"ABILITY"

Color in this spring's Easter Parade will rival the Easter Bunny's most elegant tinted eggs. Mom will be feminine and frilly in pale tints of pink, peach and aquamarine along with slightly deeper, brighter tones of clear light green, soft roses and cobalt blues.

Dad's new Easter suit will be selected from vibrantly colored mixtures, whites, grays and blues--boldly patterned, neatly striped or plain.

Patterns will be a favorite with the boy and teenman for spring. Clear bright shades will be a prime choice for a twill or hopsack fabric that will be teamed with patterned slacks.

The romantic mood has filtered down to the clear brights and frosted pastels of the young miss. Wispy polyester, cotton voile, dotted Swiss and airy embroidery turn up in fitted shapes, belted in chains or beads or bright patent. Ruffles add a pretty look at sleeves, neck or hem.

Perfect for a bright Easter morning the tunic shirt of Orlon bonded knit (left) has hip-riding tortoise link belt that adds a newsy touch. Satin stripe of polyester and cotton, belted high in patent (right) is perfect for a dress-up occasion such as Easter. Just drop in the washer, spin dry and it's ready for another day. These are Cinderella fashions.

Easter Togs For Little Miss

The feminine contingent in this year's Easter parade will win its usual applause -- but with a difference. The little girls themselves will take top billing instead of their mothers wearing the "little girl" look.

No longer does children's Easter finery consist of the tried and true pink and blue shades. Even classic styling takes a back seat to avant-garde fashion looks. And color has taken on new importance. Fabrics have more diversity and prints are works of art.

THE CLEAR bright and frosted pastels that will turn up in the line of march on Easter Sunday will rival mom's best efforts with the dyed eggs in the Easter basket. And for the sophisticated small-fry there are the neutrals -- brown with white and natural with navy.

The romantic mood in this season's fashions filters down to the very young in fabric and styling.

Wispy polyester, cotton voile, dotted Swiss and airy embroidery turn up in fitted shapes, belted in chains, beads or bright patent. And ruffles add a pretty look at sleeves, neck or hem.

ENSEMBLES are still in the fashion spotlight for Easter -- coats and dresses and jacket dresses. And there are coats with top fit and hemline flare that can be worn with more than one dress and still constitute a costume.

Jacket dresses are the biggest news with side-closings, center zippers and double-breasted styles teamed with a dirndl or A-shape skirt.

Easter this time around should be a great day for the fashion-conscious youngster.

Correct Dress? Pre-Planning Helps

Just how important is this togetherness business when it comes to fashion? Should a man and woman attempt to coordinate their dress each time they're seen together?

Yes, insofar as possible and practical, advises man's clothing manufacturer, Hart Schaffner & Marx.

If a wife turns up for a dinner-at-8 party in her best basic black (or equivalent) adorned with rhinestones or diamonds, tha hushaod would ha definitely out of place in a blazer-and-slacks combination (although this ensemble might be the ultimate in good dress for another occasion).

If the husband and wife wore the same outfits mentioned above to a casual affair, the tables would be turned -- the wife would be considered inappropriately dressed while her husband was correct.

A little pre-plaoolog eliminates such gaffes.

It's relatively simple for a husband and wife to compare notes about dress for social situations both at home and out.

Clothes compatibility is a little more difficult for the unmarrieds but definitely worth the trouble for very special occasions.

A rula-of-thumh, always altered by local custom and circumstaoces, is that a "dressy" dress for a woman requires nothing less than a dark suit, plain-color shirt and tie for the man. If the man is a traditionalist, he will wear only a white shirt after 6 o'clock. The man with more liberal laanlogs -- fashino-wise, that is -- will wear one of the new pale pastels for an evening event.

Spring's double-breasted suits make the scene all the way to a Mexican hacienda near the '68 Olympic site. Left—A 4-button in subtle glen plaid with a miniature checked shirt, club tie and light-weight felt. Right—A chalk striped, shaped 6-button, double-breasted model with wide lapels, teamed with a mustard colored shirt, woven tie, silk square and contour-shaped felt hat.

For spring rains (left) a light colored twill model with slant pockets. Right, earth-toned twill with extra flap on the chest. Both in polyester and cotton.

Many Colored Things

From his swim trunks to his any-color canvas sneakers, the boy and teenman will be wearlog lively colors this spring.

And to keep the big splurge of color from going past the bounds of good taste, many manufacturers catering to the youogar man hava mada sportswear tops and bottoms that coordinate but still give a number of choices as to what to wear with what. The thread of connection is identical or harmooious colnr, fahric nr pattaro. For instance, a striped parka can be mated with any number nf solid color jean or "Ivy" model pants or walk shorts that are the same color as one of the shades in the jacket.

AND THEN there are knit shirts -- either solid color or with a bit of contrasting colnr at the crew or mock turtle neck -- or woven fabric sports shirts that can round out an outfit. In swimwear there are many mlx-aod-match parts, but all add up to sets that are a far cry from dad's old-time cabana set.

The young man can also pick from many white walk shorts or trousers, the better to wear with his vividly colored and patterned shirt and jacket.

Young men are casually coordinated in bright sportswear for 1968. On the left—bright yellow and green striped mock turtle knit, striped belt and solid walk shorts; (right) the knit boom continues in horizontal stripes on a high mock turtle with coordinated walk shorts and belt.

Shirts, Ties Explosion

The most obvious evidence of the "color explosion" in men's fashion is to be found in the new spring shirts and ties, according to the American Institute of Men's and Boys' Wear.

In both business shirts and formal shirts, the strong trend is to daep tonas of hlue, malon, mulherry, pink, yellow, gray, tan and coffee. There are also spruce greens and reds among the new super looking shirts.

It is notable that for that super wardrobe the trend is to deep-tones, and a wide array of collar styles.

Some of the deep-tones are uopatterned and some ara woven with neat chacks, plaids or stripes io aither contrasting or harmonizing colors. Snma of the newast striped shirtings carry as many as three vari-colored stripes on grounds of deep to medium hues.

Graph checks on tlotad grounds appear in drassy shirts and windowpanes and tattersalls are gettiog a new lease on fashion life.

MANY OF those new high fashion fabrics will be made in washwear constructions or will have parmanent press finishes -- a big help io keeping them fresh and neat on the most humid summer deys.

Whila shnrt-sleeved business shirts will be popular for the warm weather season, there will be quite a few men who will insist on long sleeves. This is particularly true among traditional men. For them, the favnred long sleeve models come lo the lightweights as well as the regular weights.

It is also noted that some natural shoulder fans are wearing modified spreads and pin collars as well as their standard buttondowns.

SPRING TIES go to varied textures as well as their usual big assortments of color and pattern for that super touch this spring. Rough surfaced "raw" silks, heavily textured cottons, sluhhy llnans and linen-types are all part nf the new textures that join the reps, satins, twills and other familiar fabrics.

Here's a fashion tip: With those deep-tone shirts, wear medium to light tone ties -- unless you are consciously striving for a somber effect.

‘Mod’ Tamed by Romance

Fashion makes a woman look like a woman this spring, and underlines the pretty look with pretty lingerie.

In both daywear and sleepwear, colors are softer, prints are subtle, shapes are beautiful, trims are lavish -- and a romantic air exists that has been lacking for a long time.

The picture is quite different than it was a year ago, when the "Mod" and somewhat kooky prevailed in all areas of the fashion world. Striving for elegance rather than an electric effect, lingerie is returning to delicate colors and designer details.

CONTINUING, of course, to coordinate with outer silhouettes, lingerie continues to spotlight the chemise; however, there is developing a return to the shapely: to the slip with fitted top traced with lace, to wear under "pretty girl" blouses.

Both the body shirt and the belt are encouraging this trend to closer fit.

Slips for knits are extremaly popular, as are pettipants and other items of intimate apparel related to pantsuits and mini-skirts.

Half-slips shape up for the shapelier state of things in outer fashions. For fitted waistlines and flared skirts, there's the dirndlette -- first cousin to yesterday's bouffant petticoat but more restrained, more in keeping with fashion today.

SLEEPWEAR this season derives its inspiration from movies both past and present, and is romantic as a result. Such costume dramas as "Gone With The Wind" have produced ruffled sleep shirts and long gowns sashed high beneath tiny cover-up tops.

Plunging necklines and clinging culottes are contributions of stars and films of the Thirties to the current scene, and earlier heroines like Mary Pickford are responsible for little girl lingerie adorned with buttons, flounces and bows.

THE SHIRT is widely interpreted, in gowns and pajamas, lounge dresses and robes, long or short. Some versions are tailored, others frilly.

As colors go gently, in white and pastels, so do lingerie fabrics encourage the feminine feeling of spring. They are fluid and relatively sheer, with many variations on voiles and danty cottons.

Eyelet, embroidery and crochet treatments, used discreetly, enhance the pretty look.

Separates once strictly matched feel free to wander into new arrangements, but always combine in harmony for spring. Here, a striped blazer of polyester-cotton chino pairs with solid-color culotte in the same fabric and coordinating knit shell. The complete outfit by Sportempos.

Merry Mixing Of Separates

"Put on, play with, pair off sportswear and separates," reads the fashion maxim for spring. This sporting life calls for a relaxed approach, a mixing of shirts and skirts, vests, pants and tops, capes or jackets to create friendly go-togethers of separate-minded separates.

Little sport dresses play with the hug-the-body shape but promise plenty of active movement. Pantdresses, culottes, shirt looks, belted shapes and basic shapes lead the way.

Blouses and shirts pair off with the shapely look of spring skirts. Styles range from the curve-fitting body shirt, the Russian cossack style, bowed and tie-added styles to the more feminine and frilled Edwardian blouses.

THIS SPRING, "feminine and frilled" most often means "ruffled." Ruffles are rampant at the neckline, on the sleeve or cascading down the front of many new blouses.

Skirts find a new importance as separates able to choose their own partners. Pleats, panels, dirndls, A-lines, circles and divided skirts shape up for the active silhouette.

The fresh-faced look of the country girl gives her big city cousin a chance to gambol in peasant blouses and small-waisted dirndl skirts displaying calico prints, dots, splashes of field flowers. Embroidery and smockings complete the innocent look, which may be topped by a babushka.

KILTS DEPART from the traditional plaids to appear in florals, canvas and a variety of colorful solids.

The vest joins skirts and shirts to form a fashion triumvirate. Blouse vests, elongated sweater-vests and sleeveless jacket-vests take the winning line in the mix-and-match score.

Pants put on a raft of sweaters and knit tops in cardigans, pull-ons, shirt shapes and long, loose belted styles.

Knickers hitting below the knee, shorts and bermuda shorts play with the new length of the tunic top.

The longer jacket borrowed from the canvas pantsuit plays in the rain on wet spring afternoons or doubles as a quick cover-up for swimsuits.

JACKETS OR capes pair off with pants and tops, skirts and shirts. A cut-up combination may play with matching skirt, shirt, hat and coat all neatly packed in matching suitcase.

Leather leads in the active life with soft and supple pants, knickers, capes, jackets and skirts in unusual shades and surprise styling, as well as the classics.

Knits are a cinch for belted styles that cling closer to the body. They show off ribbed and raised surfaces, or, in the combination of slinky long top and slim skirt, they make the most of smooth and supple textures.

Often, the belt binds together all the parts of the sportswear set. It may be almost as thin as a strand of spaghetti, or as wide as fashion imagination. It may be loose; it may be cinched. It may rise high, drop low or mark the natural waistline. In every variety, the belt is fashion's partner.

Shirtwaist

The shirtwaist has done it again. This time it returns with the look of an Edwardian dandy. The collars are broadened but softer, sleeves longer, often ruffled and ruffled jabots. Belts definitely circle the waistline but there are a few available in button-all-the-way-down shift style.

Wheeling's Nick Silvestri (far right) kept his half-step lead to edge Forest View's Mike Messer (second from right) in the 60-yard low hurdles at the Wheeling - Forest View - Conant triangular Tuesday. Silvestri won in 7.4 seconds, while Messer was clocked at 7.5. Wheeling's Tom Johann (far right) was fourth in 7.7, while the Wildcats' Skip Peterson, running out of the picture, was third. Wheeling took the meet's team title, with 67 points to 42 for Conant and 28 for Forest View. (Photo by Bob Richardson)

Knights in Summer Baseball Program

BY LINDA GAMMILL

Freshman, sophomore, and junior boys on 1968 Prospect High School baseball teams will be given the chance to play in a league with their high school teammates this summer.

The Board of Education of Dist. 214 has already approved a summer baseball league for Prospect, according to Knight coach Larry Pohlman. Elk Grove is reportedly also considering starting the program, which is approved by the Illinois High School Association, but the board has not yet given them the go-ahead.

THE PROGRAM IS to be a forerunner of a state-sponsored summer program climaxed by a state tournament. At present there are about twenty high schools entered in the leagues. These include the Glenbrook, Niles, and New Trier schools as well as Conant, Barrington, Deerfield, Maine East, and Evanston.

Eighteen games will be scheduled during the summer with three games played each week. The program will be run as a summer school course with tuition paid to the school, and school insurance and facilities being used.

The coaches will also come from the high school.

The biggest problem with Prospect's joining the league, Pohlman says, will be the cost to the individual participants. As things stand now, the boys will have to pay $40 to join the program.

THE MOUNT Prospect Park Dist. has offered its support for the program, and this will help defray the cost. But Pohlman is looking for more backers, saying that he would like to get the cost down to "about $20 per boy."

The games will be played during a six-week period starting June 24. They will start at 6 p.m. as will practices on non-game days.

Any boy who will be returning to Prospect next September is eligible to join. They may also participate in Colt League or American Legion ball, but their first responsibility will be to the school team.

POHLMAN SAID that this will probably not interfere with Legion teams in the area because they are usually made up of high school seniors and first-year college students.

The Prospect coach contended that because no seniors will play, the summer games will benefit the younger members of high school teams by giving them a chance to play against varsity players from other schools.

Anyone interested in participating in the league or in contributing to it as a sponsor should contact Pohlman at Prospect High School, 255-9700.

Golf Course Opens Saturday

The Mount Prospect Country Club Park golf course will open Saturday with temporary greens, Tom Cooper, director of the Mount Prospect Park District, said Tuesday.

Cooper said that the course had "survived the winter snows and winds remarkably well."

'Cats Outrun Falcons, Conant

Wheeling granted six first place finishes to Conant Tuesday, but still had enough depth to take a triangular indoor track meet from the Cougars and Forest View.

The Wildcats collected first-place points in five events, and backed that up by adding nine seconds, earning 67 points to 42 for Conant and 28 for the Falcons. Nick Silvestri accounted for 11 Wheeling points by winning the 60-yard low hurdles and taking seconds in the high hurdles and 50-yard dash.

FOREST VIEW HAD two firsts, by shot putter Spence Dreischarf and half-miler Tom Vaughn.

Wheeling's Tom Johann won the high hurdles, Mike Mitchell took the high jump, and Tom Nelson added a pole vault first. Johann also teamed with Skip Peterson, Stew Oakley, and Steve Schuler to gain a first in the four-lap relay.

The win was Wheeling's second straight in triangular meets against one second-place finish. The Wildcats are 3-4 in dual meets.

Forest View has placed second once and third twice in triangulars, and is 0-5 in duals.

WHEELING ALSO won both underclass meets Tuesday, its sophomores beating Forest View, 59½-47½, while Conant trailed with 25 points. The Wildcat freshmen rolled up 78½ points to 43½ for Conant and 13 for Forest View.

Forest View had six sophomore firsts -- two of them by hurdler Dave Long -- but Wheeling again had the depth, taking five firsts and eight seconds.

Long won the high hurdles in 8.7 seconds and the lows in 8.3. The Falcons' other individual winners were Mike Keen with a 5.9-second 50-yard dash, Rich Cousins with a 17'3¼" long jump, and Rich Miller with a 5'2" high jump.

Forest View's 12-lap relay team -- Ray Bowersox, Ray Rochelle, Mark Antkowics, and Keen -- won in 4:24.6.

GARY GARDELL'S 41'11¼" shot put won for Wheeling, as did Tim Di Spain's 2:10.4 half-mile, Bill Hopkins' 57.8 quarter-mile, Bob Keyes' 10' pole vault, and a 1:14.3 by the four-lap relay team, Mike Hart, Gary Kawell, Glenn Rathke, and Kurt Kieffer.

Kawell also earned two of the Wildcats' second place finishes, in the long and high jumps.

Wheeling won nine of the 13 firsts in the frosh meet, Mike Soucy winning both hurdles events, with a 9.8-second run in the highs and a 9.0 in the lows.

Whistle Stops

2 State Tourney Puzzlers

BY JOHN KATZLER

The story of the 1968 state basketball tournament--too much Lackey, too much Jones. In the eyes of 16,000-plus fans, including me, it was obvious from the start that Evanston was too strong physically for the rest of the teams that reached the finals. Although two of the three teams that they devoured were taller than the Wildkits overall, Evanston's brute strength was overwhelming.

Before outling a couple of plays that occurred during the tournament, I'd like to comment on the officiating.

Being a grand-stand official for a change, I found it a challenge to refrain from second-guessing. In spite of this, and with my natural bias for the officials, I thought that the overall officiating was excellent.

This judgment was the consensus of a multitude of other officials I talked to about the officiating. The only thing that surpised me somewhat was the general tendency to let the boys "play a little."

ALTHOUGH THIS is the recommended interpretation for board play and related incidental contact situations in past years officials have tended to keep contact to a minimum. So much for the officiating.

Other than a couple of plays, the tournament was not marked by much controversy or confusion. Without doubt, the number-one play occurred during the Crane-Carbondale quarter-final game Friday. It went this way:

PLAY NO. 1--With the score tied and four seconds left to play, Carbondale had the ball out of bounds in its back court. The ball was thrown in to Carbondale's fine guard, Doug Woolard.

He started down court, but due to defensive pressure, jumped and threw a pass to a teammate. Jerome Freeman, Crane's all-tournament guard, planted himself in front of Woolard before Woolard left his feet. Contact ensued.

What did we have? A Player-control foul, a defensive foul, or a common foul by Woolard?

RULING--Since Freeman established a legal guarding position, no foul could be charged to him. Accordingly, it had to be charging by Woolard either before or after releasing the ball.

The official, who was less than two feet from the play, ruled that Woolard had released the ball before contact was made. The rest is history.

With no time showing on the clock and the score tied, Freeman coolly stepped to the line and dropped in the free throw, advancing Crane to the semi-finals.

Other than this, the only play I thought worth mentioning occurred during the final game between Evanston and Galesburg.

PLAY NO. 2--During a free throw by Evanston, Bill Battinus, Evanston's shooting forward, lined up in the second land space. After the ball was handed to the shooter, Battinus noticed that teammate Bob Lackey was in the fourth lane space.

Battinus then stepped behind the Galesburg player in the third space and tried to switch spaces with Lackey. Lackey just waved him back, but at this point the official blew his whistle, took the ball from the shooter and gave it to Galesburg at the side line. Why?

RULING--As soon as Battinus stepped directly behind the Galesburg player, he committed a free throw violation by breaking the boundaries set up by the lane space markers. Had he stepped directly backward and three feet from the lane, it would have been a legal move. Since he violated, the official correctly blew the whistle and took the ball from the shooter.

Well, this does it for today and for the year. It's been fun sharing my views with you over the past few months, and we sincerely hope we've added to your understanding of the game of basketball, as well as your enjoyment of it.

See you next year.

Meet The Coach

Tom Walthouse, 34, is both the coach of Arlington's 1968 Illinois gymnastics champions and head golf coach for the Cardinals. He holds a b.s. degree in physical education earned at the University of Illinois at Chicago and Illinois State U. and an m.s. in physical education from Northern Illinois U. Walthouse lettered in track, football, and gymnastics while in college, and was Glenbard East High School's head gymnastics coach for a year and a gymnastics and track assistant at Willowbrook for two years before coming to Arlington in 1962. He's been the Cards' head gymnastics coach and a football assistant since then, but this will be his first year directing the Arlington golfers. His golf background includes working as a caddy for golf Hall of Fame member Chick Evans at the Edgewater Country Club in Chicago. He teaches physical education and health at Arlington.

Arlington Faces 2 Niles Schools

Arlington's varsity track team will be after its fourth triangular meet win in five tries this afternoon, battling Niles North and Niles East at Niles East.

The Cards have one second and three firsts in four triangular meets so far this season, with a win in their only dual outing.

Career Minded

READ THIS

Bright, articulate and self confident young men are needed for two progressive opportunities! Our well established firm has just opened new Mount Prospect offices.

We offer a total service to industry that is predicated on "Quality". Our company employs no conmen, pitch artists or slick operators. Our offices are not hole-in-the-walls, giant supermarkets or cold water flats. We do not hit gongs, give away motor-cycles or in any other way challenge the integrity of our business.

PARAMOUNT'S offices are ultra-modern, our bonus picture is the only one of its kind in our business and progression is from within.

These positions are inside personnel opportunities - representing a QUALITY SERVICE TO INDUSTRY. You will talk to people on all levels while learning and training for your career with our company. This is not a blind ad - or misstatement of what PARAMOUNT is. If hired you will receive a generous base plus commission. To start with the emphasize on "Growth".

RECEPTIONIST
COMPLETE TRAINING

Very different & fun! This job is so unusual we call it the "gadabout" receptionist. A really big company with offices on several floors need you to fill in for their SIX other receptionists when they go to lunch or out for coffee. You get to know everyone in the whole place! Some typing. It's alertness & friendliness that count. $433 Free IVY. 7215 W. Touhy, SP 4-8585, 4942 N. Milwaukee. AV 2-5050.

Secretary to V.P.

Your Horoscope

FOR THURSDAY

ARIES (Mar. 22 Apr. 20) What you consider intolerable may be just the necessary evil that accompanies good to come. Be patient with others

TAURUS (Apr 21-May 21)--Be guided by family needs rather than business or professional pressure. A satisfying day for the Taurus who leads at home

GEMINI (May 22 June 21)--The more selective you are about your activities today, the more chance you have to make profits and gain satisfaction

CANCER (June 22-July 23)--Collect what is due you at the same time that you pay your debts to others. Remember, however that not all debts are material

LEO (July 24-Aug 23)--Act with great deliberation. Choose words carefully; the tale you tell to one today may well be told to many tomorrow

VIRGO (Aug. 24-Aug. 23)--Make this day and the next the time for cleaning up affairs on the employment scene. Earn your right to a relaxing week end

LIBRA (Sept 24-Oct 23)--Loose ends of unfinished projects may be piling up at this point. Select a few and do something about them.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22)--A day of decisions which could have an important hearing upon your financial future. Don't let emotion lead you.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 22)--Prevent mistakes; take no action that is not the product of more than one person's thinking. Consult others

CAPRICORN (Dec 23-Jan. 20)--As far as your personal life is concerned, keep yourself to yourself. Now is not the time to tell secrets.

AQUARIUS (Jan 21-Feb 19)--Experimental behavior could lead you far from your goal today. Stick to methods you know have been successful in the past.

PISCES (Feb. 20 - Mar. 21)--A good day on the employment scene. Carry your mood of accomplishment home with you; younger members of the family may need help.

Open Burning Must End: Pollution Control Expert

BY RICHARD CRABB

The problem of open burning - now illegal under both state and Cook County statutes - must be faced immediately.

This is what members of the Northwest Municipal Conference were told Wednesday evening by Albert J. Mullins of the Cook County Air Pollution Bureau. The March meeting of the conference was held at the Wheeling Village Hall.

"We are concentrating on the elimination of open burning. It is our No. 1 objective," Mullins said.

"There isn't a village in the county that isn't bursting at the seams for places to put their refuse."

Mullins conceded that enforcement of the air pollution laws as applied to open burning poses grave problems for many municipalities.

The air pollution officer said that there were only two practical ways of solving the problem, and both are expensive:

One is to use an effective landfill program; the other is to develop a modern incinerator, in which all solids and harmful gases are eliminated.

"We are getting complaints every day," Mullins said. "This is a problem that must be met now."

ACTION WILL be taken against all persons and organizations involved in open burning, Mullins reported. The owners of the land on which burning is being done are held responsible. The individual, firm or government unit involved also is held responsible.

Earlier Wednesday, Mullins had taken part in a court hearing in the south Cook County suburb of Oak Lawn.

The problem there stems directly from the tornado damage inflicted on the village last spring.

"This might be considered an emergency situation," said Mullins, "but we have gotten compalints and the burning of refuse left by the storm is clearly against the law."

The second 1968 objective of the Cook County Air Pollution Bureau is to prevent industrial firms from polluting the air.

The number of businesses in suburban Cook County has grown in the last 20 years from 200 to 4,000, Mullins reported.

HE TOLD OF conferences he has been holding with the Commonwealth Edison Company. The company is using hundreds of tons of coal a day in the production of electricity. The utility plans to convert completely to gas.

"Properly burned" Mullins reported, "gas offers almost no air pollution problems."

The Cook County Air Pollution Bureau maintains 16 air sampling stations. They are located on the roofs of high schools throughout Cook County.

Both the locations and the equipment used are approved by the federal air pollution authorities. The nearest checking station for this area is located on the roof of the Palatine High School.

The lowest rate of air pollution has been recorded at Palatine; the heaviest, at the Cicero reporting station. The monitoring stations operate during three 24-hour periods.

Four Groups to Press Vandalism Charges

The vandals who broke into John Hersey High School Sunday morning will face charges from four sources if they are caught.

According to Jack Martin, assistant to the superintendent for public and personnel relations for High School Dist. 214, the vandals or their parents will have to make restitution for the $10,000 damages with the school district, the contractor, and the insurance company of the school.

In addition, he said that the school probably would press criminal charges against the vandals. "I am certain we would," he said.

In this case, the vandals would be sent to either a local adult court, if they are more than 17 years old, or to Chicago Family Court if they are younger than 17.

The charges would be criminal damage to public property.

Martin said that any punishment handed down by the court would be in addition to payment for the losses incurred by the school district, the insurance company and the contractor.

Other schools in the district are Arlington, Prospect, Forest View, Wheeling and Elk Grove.

Citizen Advisory Panel Quizzes Park Board

Three members of the Citizens' Park Advisory Council Monday night questioned members of the Board of Park Commissioners of the Arlington Heights Park District.

Daniel Baumann, Charles Ewert, and Lloyd Meyer, members of the council subcommittee on administration and program development asked questions about personnel, vandalism and supervision of recreation programs.

Basically, the subcommittee members learned that the park district needs trained supervisors and that vandalism to park property is a constant problem.

AN APPRAISAL of the park district by a University of Illinois recreation team pointed out that the district was short of trained supervisors.

Presently the district has vacancies for three recreational supervisors. One supervisor, Mrs. Alice Geils, is leaving the district for a better-paying job with the Skokie Park District.

Charles Cronin, president of the park board, said the lack of supervisors was a "serious problem". Demmarec Sunkel, superintendent of recreation, said the district could manage the summer programs with part-time personnel but "when we're going to feel it will be in the fall."

CRONIN SAID the goal of the district is to have one supervisor for each major park site. He said the salary offered by the district is "in line" with other park district but salaries still create a problem in hiring personnel.

"A male college graduate with no experience can earn $7,000, which is pretty good, but living in Arlington Heights, it's kind of rough," said Thomas Thornton, superintendent of parks.

He said a supervisor's job schedule does not permit a man to hold a part-time job to supplement his income.

"DO YOU HAVE a problem of behavior with children that is beyond the control of the park district employes," asked Ewert.

Thornton said the supervisors have called the Arlington Heights Police to assist when they thought they could not handle a situation in the parks.

Cronin told subcommittee members that the board was approached by the police department to have a policeman patrol the parks exclusively. He said the park district was asked to purchase a motorcycle for the policeman and to pay a part of his salary.

"It got a little costly for us so we dropped the idea," Cronin said.

THE COMMISSIONERS said certain groups of youths in each park could be called "troublemakers" but he said acts of vandalism attributed to individuals were difficult to prove.

The subcommittee is expected to make a report at the April 4 meeting of the Advisory Council.

Northgate Walls Blowin' in Wind

What's happening at the Northgate Shopping Center?

The answer is blowin' in the wind.

For the second time in less than one week the concrete walls in the Northgate Shopping Center now under construction yasterday were blown down.

Arlington Heights Police Officer Jay Plaisted said he saw the crumbling 200-foot wall going down as he was cruising by the site of the future shopping center.

NORTHGATE IS located on about 20 acres of land at the intersections of Rand, Palatine and Arlington Heights Rds.

Officer Plaisted said he "arrived there as the last portion of the east wall, which runs north-south was falling down."

He said he searched the area for workers or children who may have been playing there, but there were none.

An employe of the Northern Illinois Power Co. passing by on a tractor escaped injury by a few inches.

The concrete walls are not re-inforced with steel, according to police.

Shipments of steel which were expected here on March 15 have not yet arrived and any unsupported wall can be blown down, police said.

Dist. 59 Board To Get School Addition Bids

Bids for the additions to John Jay School in Mount Prospect and Adm. Richard E. Byrd School in Elk Grove Village head Dist. 59's agenda for tonight's special meeting.

The meeting starts at 8 p.m. at the administration building, 2123 S. Arlington Heights Rd., Arlington Heights.

Also on the agenda are proposed changes in the transportation agreement Dist. 59 has with the Davidsmeyer Bus Co., and recommendations for a new administrative center.

Dist. 59 schools are Low in Arlington Heights; Dempster, Frost, Forest View Elementary, Holmes, and Jay in Mount Prospect; Devonshire, Brentwood, Einstein, and High Ridge Knolls in Des Plaines, and eight Elk Grove Village buildings.

Developer Asks Trimming Of Plan's Commerce Zone

The developer of Brandenberry Apartments has called upon experts to convince Arlington Heights trustees that his former request for commercial zoning of nine acres adjacent to the apartments was wrong.

Edward Zale, owner of Zale Construction, Skokie, last night succeeded in convincing a special committee of the board of trustees to rezone five of the nine acres to apartments.

The commercial property would be located on Rand Rd between the existing Randhurst Shopping Center in Mount Prospect and the Northgate Shopping Center under construction in Arlington Heights.

A FINANCIAL expert, a planning expert and a mortgage expert told the committee it would be impossible to put a shopping center or office buildings on all nine acres.

They said the construction of Northgate, which occupies about 20 acres, reduces the market to almost nothing for Zale.

Zoning of the Zale property was set after Northgate was zoned.

The special committee of the trustees last night agreed to recommend the rezoning to the board, which is expected to act on the proposal in about two weeks.

"We made every conceivable effort to get a financier to develop the nine acres as commercial, but nobody wants to do it," said Norman Karlin, attorney for Zale.

Trustee Frank Palmatier said that the critical point in making Zale's initial plan unprofitable could be that Northgate began construction first.

The announcement that Jewel Tea Co. will rent space in Northgate resulted in the construction of the whole shopping center before Zale began his efforts, according to Palmatier.

THE DEVELOPER of Brandenberry said that he would use approximately four acres for commercial, which he expects to develop "without much difficulty."

Brandenberry Apartments is a one- and two-apartment complex with 420 units at Rand and Camp McDonald Rds. An additional 72 units on the five acres are proposed by Zale.

Weld Machine Taken From Building Site

A welding machine was reported stolen from the construction site of the Northgate Shopping Center yesterday at the intersections of Rand, Palatine and Arlington Heights Rds.

Harry Arndt, superintendent for Midwest Steel Erector, Chicago, told police that the machine was there when workers left the site Tuesday, but was gone when they returned Wednesday.

The value of the machine was estimated at $1,300.

High School Board Votes Conduct Code

How a student may be suspended from school was decided by Dist. 214 Board of Education Monday.

However, the board decided not to predetermine causes of suspension, leaving evaluation of each case to the schools' administrator.

A principal may bring a student before the board if he feels this is necessary, according to the policy proposed by a student committee.

Proposed suspensions will be the subject of two types of meetings. At one, only school officials and board members will be present. At the other, the student, his parents and another person named by the student may appear.

Opposes Vietnam War

Collegian Joins McCarthy Forces

BY LINDA GAMMILL

Jeff Bates is a graduate of Prospect High School, a former Knight athlete, a freshman at Colgate University. He also opposes the war in Vietnam.

So Bates, along with a college pal, Jim Hommeyer from Minnetonka, Minn., has decided to back Eugene McCarthy, Democratic senator from Minnesota who also opposes the war in Vietnam, in his bid for the presidency.

The two boys have decided to travel to Madison, Wis. during their spring vacation to work with McCarthy backers campaigning in the primary elections.

"MY OPPOSITION to the war grew out of spending part of the month of January, 1968, in Washington," said Bates, 18, who lives at 1317 E. Campbell, Arlington Heights.

"I went into Washington very much a Hawk," he said. But he said he changed his mind after talking to political officials in and around the nation's capital.

Bates took the Washington tour with a group of 15 students and a professor from Colgate. He said he had talked with the Indonesian ambassador to the United States and had been told that the Asian people consider the conflict a civil war and not an international matter.

This will be the first experience in political campaigning for Bates, who said he had not backed anyone in the 1964 presidential election.

Hommeyer participated in the New Hampshire primary earlier this year by canvassing neighborhoods.

He also said that he had chauffeured actor Paul Newman around while the Hollywood star was making public appearances in New England on McCarthy's behalf.

"Many of us in school are opposed to the war in Vietnam and this was a constructive way to voice our opinion," said Hommeyer, one of a group of 25 Colgate students who travaled to New Hampshire.

BATES SAID THAT hitting the campaign trail for McCarthy elected is a "big attraction" to college students. "Kids can work within 'the system' by campaigning," he said.

Bates said that he also favors Bobby Kennedy, but will campaign for McCarthy in Wisconsin because Kennedy is not entered in the primary there.

The Arlington Heights collegian, tall and neatly dressed, said he could not back the present administration. He said, "The President seems frozen and unable to change his course even if he wanted to."

Nursing Program Draws Single and Married Women

BY MAXINE TYMA

For many northwest suburban residents, the goal of being called "nurse" is only a year away.

They are the students enrolled in the nursing education program offered through Harper Community College.

The women come from a variety of backgrounds, educational experience and occupational training. Several are married women with families. Others are working in a hospital in occupations related to nursing. A few are finishing the nursing training they began years ago. One girl is a professional model. Several entered the program after being graduated from high school.

Miss Joanne Heinly, coordinator of the nursing program said the varied backgrounds of the 37 students enrolled in the courses help to provide the students with the broad background they need.

"The insights of those who have families help much more than the instructors can help," Miss Heinly said.

"The mothers are able to talk about childhood behavior, trips to the hospital and their personal experience with young children. The broad background really enriches the experience of each student," she said.

One of the eight married students working for an associated degree in nursing at Harper College is Mrs. Beverly Olfoy of 3604 Jay Ln. South, Rolling Meadows.

SHE AND HER husband, Herbert, are the parents of two boys, Kevin, 6, and Daniel, 10.

"I always have wanted to be a nurse, but most of the programs require single girls," Mrs. Olfoy said.

"A friend told me that Harper College was accepting married women for their two-year program, so I enrolled. I always thought about going back to school and this was the perfect opportunity to do what I really wanted to do," she said.

Mrs. Olfoy said she was taking some night courses at Wright Junior College in Chicago, so getting back to the habit of studying was not a big problem for her.

The schedule of the classes and practical working time at Northwest Community Hospital gives her time to be a full-time student and to spend time at home with her family, she said.

"This is an ideal program for married women. I can study on weekends and during the day and still have time to do housework," Mrs. Olfoy said.

She said friends help her by taking care of young Kevin when he returns from kindergarten at Carl Sandburg School. Daniel is a fifth-grade pupil at Jonas Salk School. The boys seem to enjoy a special camaraderie with their mother when they see her going to school too.

"Dad has to work, though, so he doesn't go to school like us," Daniel said.

MRS. OLFOY spends two days a week at Northwest Community Hospital as part of the Harper program and attends classes four nights a week.

"We are on a regular nine-month school schedule, so I am off when the children are home from school. We spend the entire summer and vacations together, so it really doesn't interfere too much with our regular routine," Mrs. Olfoy said.

Miss Heinly said the program's first class will be graduated next year. She said registrations already are coming in for next year's class, but, because of the limited facilities at the temporary campus at Harper Grove on the Elk Grove High School campus, the number of students accepted must again be limited to 40 students.

"We have admitted two men to the program and we anticipate more men next year. There is a great need for male nurses and the opportunities for them are increasing," Miss Heinly said.

Open Burning Must End, Pollution Expert Says

They are activated on Tuesday, Thursday and Sunday. The stations were put into service March 10, 1964.

Mullins exhibited filters taken from the stations at Palatine and Cicero. The Palatine filter was a light gray color, while the Cicero filter was jet black.

Mullins reported that there are four major sources of air pollution in northern Illinois. They are, in order of importance, burning of fuels for heating, incineration of refuse, transportation and industrial plants.

The Cook County bureau is at present concentrating on the second and fourth -- burning of refuse and industrial plant pollution.

MAYOR JOHN Woods of Arlington Heights reported on the meeting earlier this month of the Northeastern Illinois Planning Commission at which NIPC adopted the modified "finger plan" of development for the Chicago suburbs.

The modifications were made in deference to objections of the Northwest Municipal Conference. The present cities of Joliet, Aurora, Elgin and Waukegan were designated as satellite cities.

Next meeting of the Northwest Municipal Conference will be held April 24 at Buffalo Grove.

Day by Day

Goodbye to the Chandelier

By Catherine O'Donnell

One of the quaintest and nicest gift shops in the Northwest area is within days of closing its doors forever. Laverne Look, proprietor of the Chandelier in downtown Arlington Heights has decided that staying home and possibly going back to interior decorating school looks better than staying in business.

The remodeled old house has long been a focal point for many women of the town as a meeting place, as a place for picking up that little something different and as a place to bring friends to browse through the two floors of new gifts and antiques.

Laverne could have sold the contents to an interested buyer but he backed down when he heard about the downtown improvement program that tears down old buildings that do not conform to the village ordinances. "Improvement," said Laverne, "seems to be tearing down anything that isn't made of glass, brick and steel and is usually too large for a city the size of Arlington Heights.

I THINK this town needs a few places with color and atmosphere to help preserve the idea that the name implies. We're still called a village.

There is a definite place for my sort of business. I don't know how many compliments I received for the painted fence in the parking lot.

The painted fence is white trimmed in many colored flowers and one of the things that made the Chandelier distinctive. Fran McGrath, who worked for Laverne for five years, is sorry to see the place close.

"I always enjoyed the fun, the contacts and the search for something special that our customers needed. We had customers who came all the way from Indiana once a year and we had many people from the East who used to be pleased to discover that I'm an Easterner, too.

I OFTEN THINK of how well a town as large as Park Ridge did in preserving that charming old atmosphere without destroying all of it's traditional buildings. It could have been done here." Both Laverne and Fran want to thank all of their customers for the past pleasant associations.

One thing that Laverne especially would like everyone to know is about an incident that happened just before Christmas of this year. She tried to publicize it at the time but encountered some difficulty.

During her years in the city, she had three robberies, including one on Christmas night one year. Last year on the Sunday before Christmas, three teenage boys noticed that her front door had been left open. They stood guard while she and the police were notified.

"SO MANY TIMES we read so many detrimental things about teens I wanted everyone to know that those kids were wonderful." Their names are hidden somewhere in the accumulation of office materials but Laverne remembers that one was named Broderick and she thinks he lives on S. Belmont.

If anyone remembers, Day by Day will be glad to tell everyone about these fine young men who are one of the reasons that Laverne and Fran and another woman, Donna Garland so hate to say, "Goodbye."

HOME AGAIN

Despite the headlines in a local school newspaper young Gary McCarter of N. Pine is home and doing great. He was sitting on the front porch sipping a coke and eating an apple yesterday when Day by Day called.

Every day he walks into downtown Arlington with one or both of his brothers, Rick and Jack. The boys and their parents Mr. and Mrs. Earl McCarter would like to thank all of the people who prayed for Gary and those who took the time to send cards.

There are few indeed who are not convinced that Gary's quick recovery is due directly to the prayers. Gary came home from the hospital last Thursday and it was a very happy homecoming. The McCarters live on N. Pine.

Peony
for your garden

This beautiful peony plant, developed exclusively for us by the Charles Klehm & Son Nursery, is yours if you deposit now $100 or more in a new or present savings account at Arlington Heights Federal Savings.

It is a gift to help celebrate our 15th anniversary year and it is yours as long as our supply lasts. There is a limit of one plant per family.

The Arlington Federal Peony is described by Carl G. Klehm, owner of the Arlington Heights nursery and peony farm which developed and trademarked it, as "a fully double soft shell pink with the large blossoms produced in abundance on rigid, strong stems." Flowers grow as large as 8 inches in diameter.

Make your deposit now and receive your certificate entitling you to the Arlington Federal Peony. Since September and October are ideal months for planting peonies in this climate, certificates will be redeemable on or after September 10 at the Klehm Nursery.

"KING of the FLOWERS"

The peony has been rightly called "The King of the Flowers." It has been rated among the most beautiful, both in plant and in flower. Whether or not in bloom, it is an asset to the garden because of its full foliage. Moreover, peonies last a lifetime. Thousands are growing today that were planted fifty or more years ago.

Purple Martins

The Birds Are Coming

BY MARILYN HELFERS
Woman's Editor

(Part 1 of 2 parts)

The birds are coming -- but these are the "good" kind. They're Purple Martins and they love to eat mosquitoes. It won't be long now and the martin scouts will be arriving in our area to look for just the right house for nesting.

The first martins arrived in the continental U.S. early in January, according to the PURPLE MARTIN CAPITAL NEWS, and by mid-March the first scouts normally reach their capital -- Griggsville, Ill.

That's right -- Griggsville, Ill. is officially known as "Purple Martin Capital of the Nation." and THE PURPLE MARTIN CAPITAL NEWS is published once a month and is devoted to birds and bird news -- especially martins.

ANOTHER group devoted to this mosquito devouring bird is the national Association for the Protection and Propagation of the Purple Martins and Bluebirds of America, Inc. A.H. Schreyer of Des Plaines, vice president of this group, brought the following notice from this dedicated group:

"Purple Martin Sale . . . Twelve and one-half cents each. That's the price set by a court ruling at Jefferson City, Mo. The catch is that they are all dead; 2,000 were massacred by five men armed with shot guns to appease a state official.

"Each were fined $50 making a total of $250 which would not pay the court costs, besides making the population count of the martins considerably lower for the next year or so . . . We are urging more bird lovers to join with us and erect more houses for martins to use to produce more young."

WHY DOES ONE bird receive so much interest and so many dedicated fans?" Purple martins are credited with the capacity to eat 2,000 mosquitoes a day. They prefer to live near people and can clear the air of bugs readily. So if you attract martins to your backyard you won't have to worry about spraying the patio during the summer. And once you have martins you become hypnotized by their summer antics.

Indians used gourds to attract and house martins, apparently a long time before the white man came to this continent. "The Indians desired the martins because the martins would chase vultures, hawks and other larger birds and keep them away from venison and other meats hung out to dry. The Indians called the martins "The-birds-that-never-rest."-

WITH THE COMING of the white colonist the native habitat of the martin began to disappear. Intensive farming and urbanization claimed the areas preferred by martins.

The disadvantages of gourds for housing include their short life expectancy, the difficulty in cleaning them and the high percentage of loss of young birds by lack of protective devices and excessive heat in poorly ventilated gourds.

No one is quite sure when the first wooden houses were introdued in the U.S., but by the time John James Audubon painted martins in the early 1820's in Louisiana, he observed, "Almost every country tavern has a martin box on the upper part of its signboard, and I have observed that the handsomer the box, the hetter does the inn generally prove to be."

Around 1840 the people of Greencastle, Pa. started the first community effort to attract martins to their community, and their project has been in existence ever since. The oldest known purple martin house is a house at the Barge Canal Museum in the center of Syracuse, N.Y.

According to Wayne Bell Jr. of Cornell University "It definitely has been there since 1883 and may have been there even longer."

MANY OF TODAY'S modern martin houses are made by the Trio Manufacturing Co. and are aluminum. In 1962 the Griggsville, Ill. Jaycees asked J. L. Wade to suggest a community insect control program that could be conducted as a civic project.

Wade suggested martins and ha and representatives of the Jaycees conferred with Dr. T. E. Musselman of Quincy to learn the requirements of a purple martin. The result was a house that "has revolutionized the industry and has changed very little since the first 28 houses were erected on the square and W. Quincy St. in Griggsville in 1963."

Griggsville now has a 40-foot 504-compartment purple martin tower in its square that has been nicknamed "The Empire State Building of the Bird World." This distinction is being threatened by The Lake Charles Peace Memorial, dedicated to Americans serving in Vietnam, being built by the Young Men's Business Club of Louisiana. The Lake Charles tower will have aluminum houses with well over 1,000 compartments.

Mrs. Mamo Named Speakers Bureau Chairman for LWV

Mrs. Anthony Mamo, presently of Arlington Heights, has been named Speakers Bureau chairman for the Arlington Heights League of Women Voters.

Mrs. Mamo was a charter member of the Des Plaines LWV and was active in league work there for nine years prior to moving to Calif. in 1966. During her year's stay on the west coast she was a member of the Whittier LWV.

Mrs. Mamo is planning to send letters to organizations in the area outlining a complete list of programs available. "The Illinois Constitutional Convention, which will he on the ballot in Nov., will be the highlight of our talks this year," she said.

The LWV is also supporting the water bond referendum which will he voted on in Nov. This referendum calls for issuance of bonds of the State of Ill. to provide funds for control of water and air pollution, flood control and recreational facilities.

Other program topics include talks on local government decentralization of the juvenile court. Persons in the area who would like more information or to book a speaker may call Mrs. Mamo at 253-7252.

Nurses Club Meets Tonight At Hospital

Miss Mary Dugan, R.N. and faculty member at Harper College, will speak about "Nursing at Harper" at 8 tonight at the Arlington Heights Nurses Club meeting in Northwest Community Hospital.

Hostess for the evening, Mrs. Thomas Maver will be assisted by Mrs. P. R. Cornell, Mrs. John Ramsey, Mrs. K. L. Frandsen, Mrs. Albert De Guilio, Mrs. John Langhenry and Mrs. Stafford Brown.

Delta Kappa Gamma Annual Convention Here This Weekend

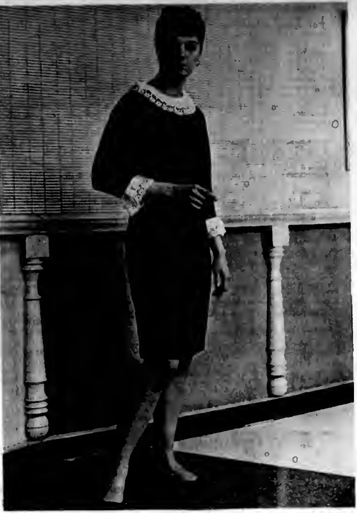
The annual state convention of Delta Kappa Gamma, international honor society for women in all levels of education, will be held March 29-31 at O'Hare Inn.

Attending the convention will be a large delegation of local teachers, members of the Alpha Psi Chapter for the northwest suburban area.

Featured speakers at the convention include Mrs. Nell B. McMains, international president of the society, and Mrs. Lorraine Green, member of the Chicago Board of Education and honorary member of the state organization.

Mrs. Green will speak on the topic "Personal Values" at the Presidents' Dinner Saturday evening. Alpha Psi Chapter president, Martha Stucki of Northbrook, will he honored for her service at this dinner.

Mrs. Edgar W. Trout of Palatine, chapter president-elect, will attend the executive board meeting Friday night as an observer. Gretta Pulley of Arlington Heights and Elizabeth Dorris of Palatine will attend special meetings for chapter officers to be held Saturday afternoon.



Carson Pirie Scott and Co. presents the romantic look of lace and ruffles in half sizes. Anne Carter shows her adaptation here in crepe and lace. Her fashions will be informally modeled at Randhurst Saturday, March 30 from 11:30 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Dialogue

... with George Hamilton

"I see where the black boxes used by the military are going into civilian life."

"What black boxes? You mean the ones they keep the A-bombs in?"

"No, those are in psychedelic colors, I believe. What I'm referring to are airborne electronic devices, which are gradually being adapted to civilian use.

"Take the airborne weather radar, for example. It began strictly for use on military planes. But now, almost all private and commercial planes carry it."

"So? There's nothing new about that."

"I know. But then there's airborne distance measuring equipment, which tells the pilot how far he is away from the airport. That was an outgrowth of military research.

"What is heading for civilian use are AIDS - Airborne Integrated Data System - which permits the crew to keep an eye on hundreds of the plane's components. The computer has preset norms for each item and automatically sounds an alarm if anything begins to go wrong."

"How will that benefit civilians who don't get to fly around the country all the time?"

"The commercial applications are numerous. Hospitals could use the computer to keep track of patients. Preset norms of temperature, blood pressure and so on could be established and the computer would monitor the patient and let the staff know if there are any significant changes.

"And I understand they are developing computers with personalities to avoid an entirely impersonal culture. RCA has a teaching machine which, when switched on says:"

"What is your name?"

"If I were to type 'My name is George,' the computer would reply:"

"Good morning, George."

"And now I hear the U. S. State Department has adapted a computer to what must be considered a semi-civilian use. The rumor is that a buzz-phrase generator is being used by the State Department."

"What is a buzz-phrase generator?"

"I'm glad you asked. It's a simple computer with three columns of words numbered from zero to nine in each column. Think of any three-digit number at random between zero and nine. Then take the corresponding word beside the numbers in each column and put the words together.

"For example, if you choose the numbers 4-5-5, the generator will give you 'Functional Logistical Concept.' A 1-6-7 gives you 'Total Transitional Capability' and 7-4-3 means 'Synchronized Digital Mobility.'

"I understand that a State Department official at a press conference recently was at a loss for words suddenly and he revealed that he too uses the buzz-phrase generator. His remarks went something like this:"

"What we are striving for is more . . . is . . . 9-2-9, I mean, Balanced Monitored Contingency."

Caught in the Middle

The middle class -- the hardworking, consuming, saving, taxpaying middle class -- is the strength of the nation, we are often reminded. That strength is much put upon these days.

A defendant in a criminal case, for instance, is better off being flat broke than having a small nest egg, two legal experts said recently.

According to Warren H. Lehman and Dallin H. Oaks, professors of law at Washington University and the University of Chicago respectively, the defense which the state can supply through its public defender system is better than that which a defendant in the lower middle class can afford.

The indigent defendant also has the advantage of having the costs of his appeals paid for by the state, whereas the defendant with limited funds may be forced to be content with an adverse lower court decision.

Something similar is true in regard to medical costs today. Thanks to Medicare, the poor are enjoying health care they have long deserved and have long been denied. But it is the middle class which is feeling the effects of the general rise in doctors' fees, which coincided with the advent of Medicare.

None of this is going to make poverty attractive or discourage people from trying to better themselves. What it could do, however, is spur demands that Medicare, or "Legalaid," or perhaps even government-provided automobile insurance or home mortgages be made available to all the people.

For if no person should be denied the benefits of society because he has no money, neither should anyone be denied those benefits because he has just a little money. And it follows logically that if no one should be penalized because he has just a little money, neither should anyone be penalized because he has a little bit more than just a little.

Some will call it socialism; some will call it merely inevitable. It depends on how it is handled and how far it is allowed to go. Call it social equality insurance. But as with any kind of insurance, whether privately run or government-run, someone ultimately has to pay the bill.

Which brings us back to the middle class.

Asparagus Heralds Arrival of Spring

Spring and fresh asparagus arrive together. April through May is the peak market for asparagus.

The arrival of tender spring asparagus at the grocery store heralds the coming of spring. This is the time that fresh asparagus is at its peak—from April through May. Look for the thin spears because they are the most tender.

To cook asparagus: Wash about three pounds. Break off each stalk near its base. Cook asparagus, covered, in a small amount of boiling water until tender. Drain, if necessary. Serve with one of the following sauces. Makes 6 servings.

GOLDEN GLOW SAUCE

Melt ¼-pound butter. Stir in 1 tablespoon chopped chives and 1 hard-cooked egg, coarsely chopped. Makes about ¾ cup.

LEMON PARSLEY BUTTER SAUCE

Melt ¼-pound butter. Stir in 2 tablespoons fresh lemon juice and 2 tablespoons chopped parsely. Makes about 2|3 cup.

DOUBLE CHEESE SAUCE

1 teaspoon fresh minced onion
1 tablespoon melted butter
1 tablespoon flour
1 cup milk
½-teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon Worchestershire Sauce
½ cup grated Chaddar cheese
½ cup grated Swiss cheese

Saute onion in butter until golden; blend in flour. Stir in milk, salt and Worcestershire sauce. Cook over madium heat, stirring constantly, until mixture thickens and boils. Add cheeses; stir until melted. Heat just to serving temperature, stirring constantly. Makes about 1 cup.

Here's $25,000 Prize Cake

What would be your first thought if you could bake something that might bring you a $25,000 prize? Mrs. Albert Lidert of Oak Lawo, winner of the Pillsbury Bake-Off contest, loves to cook, and said, "My husband loves anything made with poppy seed."

She combined poppy seed with ingenuity and won the contest. The cake is a rich buttercream pound cake with a light lemon flavor.

BUTTERCREAM POUND CAKE

1 package Pillsbury Buttercream Lemon Frosting Mix
2 cups butter, softened
6 eggs
4 cups Pillsbury's Best All Purpose Flour (self rising flour is not recommended for use in this recipe)
2 teaspoons baking powder
1 can (12 ounces) poppy seed cake and pastry filling confactionars' sugar or glaze

In large mixer bowl, cream dry frosting mix and butter at medium speed, until light and fluffy, about 5 minutes. Add eggs, 1 at a time, beating well after each. Gradually beat io flour and baking powder.

In small bowl, combine 3 cups of the batter with poppy seed filling; blend well. Spread half of plain batter over bottom of greased 10-inch tube pan. Then alternately add spoonfuls of poppy seed batter and remainiog plain batter.

Bake at 325 degrees for 1 hour and 30 mioutes to 1 hour and 45 minutes. Cool in pan 15 minutes before removing. Cool completely. Sprinkle with confectioners' sugar or drizzle with glaze, made by combining 1 cup confectioners' sugar with 2 tablespoons milk or lemon juice.

Jewel's Miracle Food Prices Save You More! Jewel's Miracle Food Prices Save You More!

Now it doesn't matter when you shop. Just where.

Once upon a time you couldn't shop for food whenever you felt like it.

If you wanted the best bargains, you had to wait until the weekend specials were available. Then you went shopping. So did everybody else. The parking lots were crowded. The stores were jammed. And you were tired and miserable.

Weekend shopping hasn't changed any. It's still the same as ever. The only thing that has changed is that you no longer have to shop on weekends in order to enjoy the lowest prices. You know that Jewel has thousands of "Miracle Prices" every day of the week. So you can shop for groceries any day you like. Even better, now Jewel offers you over 100 reduced meat prices Monday through Saturday — one more reason why you can feel confident you're saving no matter what day you visit.

When you shop is, of course, up to you. But, if you want the best bargains, Jewel is where you'll find them. Every day. Every week. Every time you visit.

TV Technician Training Center Opens

A "first of its kind" training program was described Tuesday at the RCA Service Company training plant in Rolling Meadows.

Chicago area retailers attended an open house and took a tour of the facility which opened last summer at 3105 Toll View Dr.

RCA officials were joined by Roland Meyer, mayor of Rolling Meadows, in a dedication ceremony.

THE CENTER is one of six facilities opened in key metropolitan areas across the country to assist the television industry in solving the problems of a shortage of skilled technicians.

"Without an all-out attack of this kind on the problems of recruiting and training, the nation's television viewers might soon be forced to wait weeks or even months just for routine service on home receivers," said William E. Thackery, central regional manager of RCA Service Co.

Through the program, the company is hiring employes without previous television experience or electronic education.

WHILE ON THE RCA payroll, they are put through a training program that can enable them to progress from apprentice, through a series of intermediate skills, to journeyman television technician.

Thackery estimated that an additional 25,000 color television service technicians will be needed in the industry in each of the next five years to keep pace with the increase of color television sets in the home.

Traditionally the service technicians have come from the ranks of men who receive electronics training in the military or who have completed at their own expense, courses in television service in trade school.

"These sources of manpower are inadequate today to meet the needs of this booming industry," Thackery said.

THIS YEAR, the six training centers are expected to graduate a total of 2,796 men with a schedule of 5,632 man-weeks of training, according to W. W. Cook, manager of technical training at the RCA Service Co. home office in Cherry Hill, N.J. This is an increase of 50 per cent over the number trained last year.

Since the Chicago facility began operating approximately 150 men have been trained in a variety of programs.

In addition to the Chicago center, located in Rolling Meadows, training centers are in operation near New York City, Philadelphia, Miami, Detroit, and Los Angeles.

Basic training in electronics is offered by RCA Service Company at new center in Rolling Meadows in first-of-its-kind program in television industry to ease critical shortage of skilled television service technicians. Center, one of six opened by RCA in key metropolitan centers across the country, was formally dedicated Tuesday by L. F. Holleran, staff vice president of RCA, and Roland Mayer, mayor of Rolling Meadows. Center is located at 3105 Toll View Dr., in the suburb.

Shortstop John Caltagirone flips to second baseman Tom Bartlett as Forest View's keystone combination practices the double play. Caltagirone and Bartlett are the only two returning lettermen on the Falcons' squad. Caltagirone, a junior, hit .285 last season, while Bartlett, a senior, maintained a .330 average.

Caltagirone, Bartlett Only Vets

Falcons Rely on Keystone Pair

Talking over the timber, first baseman John Macior and third baseman Stu Yakes meet at the bat rack as Forest View get ready for the 1968 season. Falcon coach Hal Sprehe is counting on the two seniors as regulars.

Forest View's 1968 baseball keystone combination--shortstop John Caltagirone and second baseman Tom Bartlett--will have to literally be the base of any Falcon success.

Bartlett and Caltagirone are the only lettermen coach Hal Sprehe has returning from the team that recorded a 10-6 overall record and finished fourth in the Mid-Suburban League last season.

THE FALCONS open their season April 3 at home against York, and Sprehe says his infield and top battery are set.

Flanking Caltagirone and Bartlett will be Stu Yakes at third base and John Macior at first base, with Al Ernst pitching and his twin, Mark, catching.

In the outfield, Sprehe has yet to decide among Tony Lanzaratta, Randy Weaver, Frank Russo, and Bob Savage.

Complementing Ernst on the mound, the Falcons have Bill Teichert, Frank May, and Keith Bauer, all right-handers.

OF SPREHE'S leading athletes, four--Caltagirone, Russo, May, and Bauer--are juniors; the rest are seniors. And other than Caltagirone, a .285 hitter last year, and Bartlett, who hit .330, the talent is relatively untried.

The Falcons' schedule

Date	Opponent	P

All scheduled games begin at 4:30 p.m.

Al Ernst pitches to his twin brother, Mark, as Forest View practices for its 1968 opener against York April 3. The Ernst twins are rated by coach Hal Sprehe as the Falcons' top battery.

Elk Grove Sets Sights on .500 Tennis Season

Elk Grove's 1968 varsity tennis fortunes will rest on the performances of a small group of experienced lettermen from last year's outfit that went 2-9 in dual competition.

The first singles slot will be filled by senior letterman Jerry Budz while the second and third singles honors will go to senior lettermen Pete Tullio and Doug Thomas.

Head Coach Lothar Piestrup hasn't decided yet who will handle the doubles chores for the Grens this spring. Seniors Randy Zerfus, Steve Blair, Pete Loiselle, and Rich Blass will have to fight off juniors Andy Lefnicak and Rich Mark for the two doubles slots.

Piestrup is optimistic despite the Grens rugged 13-meet schedule.

"Our goal is to be close to .500 for the season" Piestrup says." "It'll take time and we'll develop slowly, but I think we can win half of our meets."

The Grens host such tough area teams as Arlington and Prospect in addition to Glenbard East, a perennial non-league power.

More Sports on Page 10

Walt Storm, 49, is in his second year as Prospect's head track coach. He spent two years as head football and track coach at a Tatum, N.M., high school, and 14 years as head track and assistant football coach at Mattoon, Ill. High School before coming to Prospect, where he is also a football assistant. Storm holds a b.s. degree in physical education from Eastern New Mexico University (Portales) and an m.s. in physical education from the University of Illinois. He played end in football and was a high jumper in track at Eastern New Mexico.

Hersey Gets Gym Coach; Von Ebers

The Dist. 214 board of education has approved the selection of Donald A. Von Ebers as head gymnastics coach at Hersey High School, which opens next September.

Von Ebers has been assistant golf and gymnastics coach at West Leyden High School in Northlake for five years and was head gymnastics and assistant tennis coach at East Leyden in Franklin Park for 12 years before that.

He's a University of Illinois graduate, and worked on the trampoline, parallel bars, and long horse and in tumbling for the Illini as a collegian.

VON EBERS -- WHOSE son Steve was a Mid-Suburban League champion tumbler for Arlington this season -- has seen the caliber of competition he'll be coaching in and said Wednesday he's looking forward to it.

"The teams in the area are tough, but gymnastics is more emphasized in the Dist. 214 area than it is where I've been and I'll be glad to make the move," Von Ebers said.

The luck of the boundary draw will keep Steve at Arlington, but the elder Von Ebers will start out with a promising crop of transfers from Arlington and Wheeling.

AMONG THEM WILL be versatile Gary Morava, who took fifth on the trampoline and fourth in tumbling in this season's MSL varsity meet as a Wheeling sophomore. From Arlington, Hersey will get Lance Boyett, parallel bar champion and third in all-around competition in the 1968 MSL frosh-soph meet, Greg Sjogren, third on the rings in the underclass meet, and Bob Wilson, a standout freshman ring man.

Von Ebers also expects to have the services of Jeff Farris, sixth in the frosh-soph all-around competition for Wheeling last season.

Von Ebers' appointment leaves Hersey athletic director Dick Kinneman with head coaching vacancies only in track and cross country.

The Hersey head coaching staff announced thus far: Leonard Burt, football; Ken Carter, golf; Steve Chernicky, baseball; Lothar Peistrup, tennis; Thomas Porter, wrestling, and Von Ebers.

Tired Cards Push Past Niles North, 55-54

Shot-putter Tom Chandler won one of seven Arlington first places Wednesday as the Cards squeaked past Niles North, 55-54. Chandler's win placed a 1-2-3 Arlington finish, with Paul Tollefson taking the shot put second place and Jim Ulrich third.

A tired Arlington varsity track team dredged out a 55-54 dual meet win over Niles North Wednesday at Niles East.

Card coach Bruce Saamore said Wednesday he had pushed his team hard in practice Tuesday, preparing for the Wildcat Relays at Wheeling Friday.

BUT ARLINGTON had just enough left Wednesday to push past the Vikings, winning seven firsts in the process of making its dual meet record 2-0.

Tom Swanson won the two-mile run in 10:05.9, leading a 1-2-3 Arlington finish ahead of Jim Stubbs and Dave Marszalek.

Dave Steele, with an 8.2 second dash over the 60-yard high hurdles, Bill Price, with a 55.4 second 440-yard dash, and Bob Graham with a 7.8 in the 60-yard low hurdles, won the Cards' other track firsts.

ARLINGTON ALSO took three field events, Todd Somers winning with a 19'6" long jump, Tom Chandler taking the shot put, and Gary Fagerson pole vaulting 12'6" to a win.

Niles North got some consolation by whipping Arlington's frosh-soph, 58-51.

Jeff Kowalski in the two-mile run, Ken Malcolmson in the half-mile, Sam Wit in the long jump, and Fred Harth in the pole vault earned the Cards' only firsts.

5 Lettermen for Grens

Most coaches have a rough time in their first year with any school. Elk Grove's new head baseball coach, Larry Peddy, has a bigger than usual job in that he inherits a team in a new school which only won two of eighteen games in its first varsity year, 1967.

The Grens' new coach has a small group of only nineteen candidates to mold into a ballclub. But he also has five lettermen, all seniors, returning as a team nucleus.

THE TEAM WILL be formed around last year's doubleplay combination of all-conference shortstop Bob Artemenko and second baseman Jim DeVito, both seniors.

"Our club is much improved defensively, but pitching is going to be the big question," Peddy says. "We lost senior letterman Gary Lemke with injuries, and our other pitchers are young and inexperienced, so I expect we'll come around late in the season around tournament time."

Cathy Rowe and Claudia Gentzler were two of the Northwest Suburban YMCA girl swimmers who won individual races as Northwest swamped Indian Boundary 259½ - 48½ last weekend. Northwest will send 42 swimmers to the state finals this weekend in Alton.

YMCA Girls Rack Up Another Win

The unstoppable Northwest Suburban YMCA girls swim team zipped to another win last weekend, overturning Indian Boundary Y 259½-48½ in a warm-up for this weekend's Y state finals at Alton.

Northwest had three double winners against Indian Boundary. Midget swimmer Lee Doehler took the 25- and 50-yard freestyle races, prep Jan Takata captured the 100-yard individual medley and tied for first with teammate Claudia Gentzler in the 100-yard freestyle, and junior Ann Tobin won the 100-yard backstroke and breaststroke events.

THE NORTHWEST intermediates had five winners: Connie Foster in the 50-yard freestyle, Karen Sigfussen in the 100-yard freestyle, Cathy Rowe in the 100-yard butterfly, Ruth Ann Gabler in the 100-yard backstroke, and Liz Tobin in the 100-yard breaststroke.

Five junior level swimmers won for Northwest, Kathy Dalton taking the 50-yard freestyle, Liz Di Francesca the 200-yard individual medley, Jan Allen the 100-yard backstroke, and Sue Ivisen the 100-yard freestyle, to complement Miss Tobin's wins.

Sandy Gabler won the 50-yard butterfly for the preps, who also had firsts by Kay Nielsen in the 50-yard freestyle, Jan Lesniak in the 50-yard backstroke, and Sue Stahnke in the 50-yard breaststroke.

GAIL SCHLAK in the 100-yard individual medley and Margaret Gabler in the 250-yard breaststroke joined Miss Doehler as Northwest midget winners.

Dawn Grunwald in the 25-yard freestyle, Pauline Di Somma in the 25-yard butterfly, Judy Gran in the 25-yard backstroke, and Ann Di Francisca in the 25-yard breaststroke won for the cadets.

Four Lettermen Provide Prospect Tennis Base

The Prospect tennis squad boasts four returning lettermen this year.

Two are juniors: Dave Johnson, probably the number one singles man, and Chuck Hughson, who will play number two or three, according to head coach Jim Wright.

The number one doubles tandem from last year, Jerry Stocking and Bill Wichmann, is also back for another season, and will probably be the first team again. Both boys are seniors.

THE ONLY OTHER senior on the team is Craig Webber.

Rounding out the varsity squad are three more juniors, Mike Wells, Trey Schaeffer, and Bob Brubl, and a sophomore, Scott Russell.

"Russell will probably be doing a great deal of playing this year," says Wright. "He's pretty good."

WRIGHT SAYS that the chances for his squad in league competition this year are pretty good.

The Knights' first meet will be April 11 against Maine West. The Warriors are not a conference team, but "they are real good," said Wright. "The match will provide an excellent experience for our team."

Coach Says Falcons Can Better Mark

Things look encouraging for the Forest View tennis squad this year, according to head coach Roger Steingraber.

"We should have at least a 50 per cent win total," he says.

"We've improved every year since six years ago when the school opened."

The Falcons couldn't manage to come up on the plus side of any of their matches then.

LAST YEAR, Forest Views' netters won "about two-thirds" of their meets, and there are four returnees from that squad. Jim Musgrave, the number three singles man last year, looks like the number one man this year, says Steingraber, but Dave Ericson, Gordon Folkman, and Tim Ebel are also back this year to give Musgrave some competition for the number one berth. All are seniors.

Four juniors, up from the frosh-soph squad of last year, are in contention for the varsity team this spring. They are Mike Kinneman, Brian Finch, Alan Spiegler, and Rick Knudsen.

In addition to his upperclassmen, Steingraber is giving three sophomores a chance to work out with the team.

FOREST VIEW opens its season April 5 with a bout against Glenbrook North. The Falcons whipped the Spartans last year, 5-0.

"They had a young team last year and we beat them pretty badly, but most of them are back this year, so I expected a tougher match," said Steingraber.

Forest View has played all of its 1968 opponents except Addison Trail at least once in previous outings.

Jim Musgrave is expected to be Forest View's no. 1 singles representative when the Falcons open their 1968 season against Glenbrook North April 5. Musgrave, no. 3 man last year, will have to beat out Dave Ericson, Gordon Folkman, and Tim Ebel to hold the no. 1 job.

Ducey, Rohrback Win 2 Firsts As Knights Mash Pirates, 55-54

Prospect's varsity track team got two first place performances each from Dan Ducey and Steve Rohrback and coasted to a 74½-34½ win over Palatine Tuesday.

Ducey won the high jump at 5'10" and took the 60-yard high hurdles in 8.4 seconds, leading Bruce Busse and Miles Rodgers in a Knight sweep. Rohrback's 19'9½" long jump and 54.6-second 440-yard dash also earned firsts.

Ducey in the 60-yard low hurdles and Rohrback in the 50-yard dash also took seconds, accounting overall for 26 of the Knights' points.

PROSPECT ADDED firsts in five other events, sweeping three of them.

Dick Paulson, covering the half mile in 2:06.7 led a 1-2-3 Knight finish ahead of Bruce Oswald and Dan Dittman, while Herb Imhoff, Bruce Boult, and Maurice Loeffel all pole vaulted 11', Imhoff winning because he had fewer misses.

Doug Bach, running a 10:22.9 in the two-mile race, paced the third sweep ahead of Bill Treece and Don Dall.

JEFF SCHNEIDER won the shot put at 45'2½", and Oswald, Paulson, Ted Passarelli, and Rohrback teamed to add a first in the mile relay in 3:46.7.

The victory improved Prospect's dual meet record to 3-5.

The Knights' underclassmen tore into and past the little Pirates, snatching all 13 first places and a 102-7 win.

Mike Skop won three of Prospect's firsts, with a 9.9-second high hurdle dash, an 8.6 in the low hurdles, and a 10'6" pole vault.

MIKE DITTMAN won the two-mile run in 11:09.6, Bill Butz took the long jump at 16'7", Chris Anderson zipped to a first in the 50-yard dash in 6.2 seconds, and Bob Pomrenke led the half-mile field in 2:14.1.

John Manning's 59.1-second quarter-mile, Don Spry's 40'1" shot put, Keith Matthews' 4:50.5 mile, and Steve Reynolds' 5'10" high jump accounted for Prospect's other individual firsts.

Ken Pitts, Chris Anderson, Ed Anderson, and Scott Szala teamed to win the half-mile relay in 1:48.8, and Pitts and Szala came back to join Pomrenke and Manning in sacking away the mile relay in 4:02.5.

Stays Down, But Thinks Up Too

BY TED LACEY

"I'm tired," Air Traffic Specialist Jim O'Malley said as he left the partial darkness of the radar room to go home.

He is one of the 72 technicians who man the Federal Aviation Administration's control tower at O'Hare International Airport around the clock.

He spent the last hours of his shift in the radar room, watching lines of eerie green light sweep across radar screens marking the positions of aircraft, and red and white lights blink on instrument panels.

"We had a radar unit go out this morning," he said. "Then you have to scramble a little more. There was really no danger, but you have to react so much faster and work a little harder."

The day was foggy. The fog requires a little more effort in the control tower, but on such a day there are few private airplanes being flown for sport. So even though operating conditions are worse, there is some compensation.

ON THE SAME day, a cargo plane, for still undetermined reasons didn't make it off the runway. It veered sharply, crashed and burned.

Problems like this can tie-up a runway, but don't increase substantially the strain on the air traffic men. They can merely channel traffic to another of the six air strips.

It's the FAA administrative men who feel the pressure of mishaps such as this. Assistant Control Tower Chief Robert Schwank, 526 S. Dryden, Arlington Heights had to roll out of ben at 4 o'clock that morning to help in the investigation.

O'Malley didn't spend his entire eight hour shift in the gloom of the radar room. During the first part of it he was in the wall-to-wall windowed room that crowns the control tower.

The men swap posts during their work periods. The change keeps them alert, and prevents them from being over strained at the busiest jobs. Then every week, they change shifts.

It can get pretty tense in the control tower. Taking his turn O'Malley helped to organize air traffic approaching from and departing to all points of the compass.

He maintained radio contact with all the pilots, and got the ones circling overhead to slow down to the right speed to keep the right safety interval in the right pattern.

After he "cleared" a runway he gave landing instructions.

He lined up outgoing planes on the ground, gave them taxiing instructions, and coordinate their take-offs with other's landings.

IT'S LIKE directing traffic on a street, except you have three dimensions to worry about instead of just two, and a mistake at this intersection could result in substantially more than a dented fender, said one of O'Malley's colleagues.

How do you get yourself into this kind of work?

Says Edward Hayes, FAA administrator in charge of personnel at O'Hare:

"All the men here now have had military traffic. They make the best candidates.

"But previous aviation experience is not absolutely necessary to get in, as long as you pass the civil service exam."

"I started at the Godman Army airfield at Fort Knox, Ky.," O'Malley said.

"But they only teach you basics in the Army."

He applied for his present job six months before his discharge from the service. After he passed a civil service exam, he was accepted for a six week classroom training session.

Then he passed the required air traffic control specialist examination, demonstrating knowledge of all phases of control work: air route traffic control, civil air regulations, airports, communications, flight service, aviation weather and air navigational aids.

After passing the milestone, O'Malley underwent 18 months of supervised on-the-job training. His progress through each phase of training had to meet periodic check-out dates. If he missed one, he would have been washed out of the FAA.

"THERE IS an awful lot of pressure when you start out," O'Malley said. "You're just out of the military and you're looking for a better job. It's your big chance. If you miss it, you're just out.

"When you finally pass all the tests and get a rating and license from the government, it's really a weight off your shoulders, especially if you've got a family relying on you to make it.

"I started here with a class of 14 or 15. Now there are two of us left. Some of them didn't make the check-out dates, some didn't pass tests, others who made it later moved to places where there was less pressure.

"It's an interesting profession," O'Malley says after eight years at O'Hare. "It's always challenging from day to day--there's nothing dull about it.

"IT'S A BIG responsibility, and everyone is quite nervous for the first year, but you get over that.

"There have been planes wrecked here, but you can't let yourself dwell on that fact. You have to just continue to do the best job you possibly can.

"You have to regulate your life a little more with this job than you would with most others. Sleep is very important for staying alert. If you're tired or if you have a cold, you're better off not coming in. Sicknesses that normally wouldn't prevent you from going to work, do prevent you from working effectively here."

Of the men's desire to work here in what FAA people call the "big league," O'Malley said:

"They just want to work at the world's busiest airport."

Right -- A novice air controller receives some pointed instructions from a veteran during a training session in controlling traffic patterns held in the tower.

Air Traffic Control Specialist James O'Malley, Chicago, said of his job in the Federal Aviation Administration control tower at O'Hare International Airport, "It's always challenging."

Your Horoscope

FOR FRIDAY

ARIES (Mar. 22-Apr. 20)--Take advantage of your knowledge of old methods of doing things and you should be able to make a new idea bear profitable fruit.

TAURUS (Apr. 21-May 21)--Where co-workers are concerned, it would be best to gain their confidence in small things before trying to lead them in a large one.

GEMINI (May 22-June 21)--The more check you can keep on your emotions today, the better. This is no time to show either anger or too much affection.

CANCER (June 22-July 23)--An excellent day for translating an idea into action. Make every effort to gain the support of higher-ups.

LEO (July 24-Aug. 23)--Under no circumstances be neglectful of your duty today. Now is the time for taking on responsibility, not shirking it.

VIRGO (Aug. 24-Sept. 23)--Encourage another in his or her efforts to succeed. Avoid any show of contempt--no matter how strongly you may feel it.

LIBRA (Sept. 24-Oct. 23)--Domestic affairs may be in need of your practical hand before they will yield to family efforts to straighten them out.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22)--Present work project should be completed at the earliest. Take a rain check on social affairs until this is done.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 22)--Search for the cause of inequalities rather than chafing against them. A good day for getting to know another's ideas on the subject.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 23-Jan. 20)--Enlarge your horizons through some new hobby. All work and no play may make you impossible to get along with.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21-Feb. 19)--Take a good look at your method of operation if you find production down. This could well be the time for a change.

PISCES (Feb. 20-Mar. 21)--Don't delay any longer in straightening out affairs in the home — especially where children are involved.

2 Juveniles Held in Hersey Vandalism

BY MAXINE TYMA

Two 13-year-old boys have been arrested by Arlington Heights Police and charged with criminal damage to property for the $10,000 vandalism spree at John Hersey High School.

Both boys are Arlington Heights residents and attend an elementary school. They are scheduled to appear in Family Court April 11 with their parents to face the charges.

The arrests were made Thursday afternoon after an investigation by Lt. Maurice English, Sgt. George Ekblad and Det. Joseph Schrieber of the Arlington Heights Police Department.

A third youth will be questioned by police for possible involvement with damage to outside equipment at the site.

The school, now under construction at 2100 E. Willow Rd. in Arlington Heights, was vandalized last weekend. It is the sixth high school in Dist. 214 and is scheduled to open for students in the fall. The school is being constructed for $6.5 million.

The cost of damage to the inside of the building and to equipment at the construction site has been estimated at $10,000.

THE SCHOOL was vandalized Sunday afternoon and the incident was reported to Arlington Heights Police Monday morning. Approximately 75 gallons of paint were overturned and smeared on the walls and floor of the partially-finished rooms. A skydome and all the windows on the second floor of the building were broken. The vandals apparently entered the building by breaking a window on the first floor.

Heating ducts and equipment on the ceiling also were damaged.

Construction equipment on the outside of the building was damaged. Carbuerators were reported missing and equipment damage to a large crane also was reported.

The youths and their parents spent almost two hours with police last night for a station adjustment. During that time the parents were shown pictures of the damage that were taken by Arlington Heights Police at the scene.

Police said the parents were "shocked", but were cooperative during the investigation. The father of one of the boys reportedly told Sgt. Ekblad that he was impressed with the efficiency of the police in the apprehension of his son and the other youth.

RESTITUTION FOR the damage will be settled between the parents and the school district and contractors.

Earlier this week Jack Martin, assistant to the superintendent in Dist. 214, said the district may press additional charges against the vandals. The school district's insurance company also would be involved in any restitution arrangements.

Financial arrangements probably will be settled after the youths' appearance in Family Court.

Other schools in Dist. 214 are: Arlington, Prospect, Wheeling, Forest View and Elk Grove high schools.

Girl Scouts Plan School Board Candidates Night

BY RICHARD CRABB

If there is any question about young people taking an interest in public affairs, the candidates night to be held Monday evening at Faith Lutheran Church in Arlington Heights should settle the matter.

The Cadet Girls of the Arlington Heights Girl Scout Troop 131 are sponsoring a candidates night for the five persons who are running in the April elections for vacancies on the school boards of High School Dist. 214 and Arlington Heights Elementary Public Schools of Dist. 25. About the only indication that the event is student sponsored are the hours--from 7 to 9 p.m.

THE GIRLS ARE sponsoring the candidates night as a part of their "active citizenship" responsibilities as Scouts. Members of the League of Women Voters have helped the girls arrange the event.

Invitations have been extended to Mrs. Leah Cummins and Richard A. Bachhuber, who are running for the two positions on the Dist. 214 board, and to Ted Seiler, Robert Bates and Roland Gasser, who are running for the two positions on the Dist. 25 board.

PAM MILLER, an eighth grader, will be moderator for the event.

Motor Skills COULD Topic

"Motor Facilitation Program" is the topic to be presented at a meeting of the Northwest Suburban Council on Understanding Learning Disabilities (COULD).

The session will take place next Wednesday at 8 p.m. in room 306 of Prospect High School, 801 W. Kensington Rd., Mount Prospect.

Making the presentation will be Georgia Nicholson, a psychologist, and Donna Obrecht, director of the program at Wheeling School Dist. 21.

Financed partly with federal funds, the Wheeling program is planned to help develop skills of children from kindergarten through junior high school.

Meadows City Council Vetoes Willow Bend

The proposed $8.5 million Willow Bend apartment project was disapproved by the Rolling Meadows City Council in a 7-1 vote Tuesday evening.

The ultimate fate of the 652-unit project was not discussed during the session. Approval of the proposal had been recommended conditionally by the Plan Commission Monday.

Park Dance To Feature Endless Reign

The "Endless Reign" will appear at the Side Door at Recreation Park tonight at 7 p.m.

The activity, for junior high school students, is sponsored by the Arlington Heights Park District.

Admission will be 50 cents. The dance program will end at 9:30 p.m.

Cans Taken

Three new garbage cans were taken from the rear of the home of Douglas Strong, 838 S. Highland.

Strong told Arlington Heights Police Thursday the three cans were valued at $12.

Des Plaines firemen fought a blaze in an abandoned building on Beau Drive in their city yesterday afternoon for more than an hour. The building was termed a total loss by fire officials. The smoke from the fire caused a traffic jam on nearby Illinois 83 as home-bound motorists paused to watch the firemen in action.

11 Burglaries Cleared After Youths Return

The return of two missing 15-year-old Arlington Heights boys, implicated in the recent burglary of the Recreation Park fieldhouse, has resulted in the clearance of 11 burglaries in the village.

The youths were reported missing from their homes Tuesday. They were found in Wauconda Thursday by the parents of one of the boys.

Tuesday a 14-year-old boy told Arlington Heights police the two youths and he were responsible for the weekend burglary of Recreation Park.

THROUGH investigetion and questioning of the boys, police said either one or both of them were responsbile for the burglaries of North School, the Evangelical Free Church, Todds Shoes, Kensington School and the Arlington Market Shopping Center and Bob's Meat Market, and the burglary of the garages of two Arlington Heights homes.

A total amount of property damage and items taken in all the burgleries was nnt available.

Police are continuing their investigation. The youths and their parents met with police last night for a station adjustment.

Stavros Suit Demands Three Lakes Secession

By Charles Mouratides

A petition to disannex the 230-acre Three Lakes Golf Course end Subdivision from Arlington Heights was to be filled today with the Cook County Circuit Court.

Attorney William Moore, representing James Stavros, co-beneficiary of the property, said Thursday he expected to file the petition today.

Stavros said he instructed his attorney to file the petition because the demands of the village would make development of his property within the boundaries of Arlington Heights unprofitable.

Moore said, however, thet he will proceed with negotiations with the village.

Others listed as beneficiaries of the property are Stavros' brother, Gus, and N.M. Nessett.

Village trustees have asked Stavros to pave the streets around the development, located at Nichols and Shaeffer Rds. They also requested a land dedication for school and park sites.

Stavros said that he cannot afford to pave the streets. He also maintained that he should not be required to dedicate any land because he is providing open space with the golf course.

The 18-hole golf course would be the only one in Arlington Heights. It occupies about 130 acres.

The rest of the development is designed for 200 homes and small apartment and commercial areas.

GUS STAVROS told the legal committee of the trustees about two months ago that he would agree to dedicate nine acres to the schools and parks if he is allowed to build additional apartments elsewhere.

"I will scrap the golf course and build apartments, he told the trustees at that meeting.

Members of the Village Board, when they approved the zoning of the development last fall, said that the golf course was an especially desirable feature of the development.

James Stavros said that Village Manager L.A. Hanson was putting extra-ordinary demands on the developers.

"Why did they mention nothing about the dedication of land until the very last meeting?" he asked.

The developers maintained that the trustees should have brought up the dedication issue earlier in the negotiations for zoning.

Hanson said thet land dedication is a standard requirement of the village and that the developers should have been aware of it all along.

"We don't ask them to do anything we don't ask other builders," Hanson said.

He said that roads such as New Wilke, Thomas, Hintz and Goebbert have been or are being developed by the builders of adjacent sites.

HANSON SAID that, as far as he can remember, this would be the first time any developer has disannexed property from Arlington Heights.

Stavros said he has the right to do so because that was one of the options provided to him by the annexation agreement between the village and the developers.

"We reserve the option to disannex if we do not agree with the zoning they give us. We need more apartments in order to make a profit on the development. We cannot find any financing for the project with the kind of demands they are putting on us."

Hanson said it might not be as easy to disannex as Stavros thinks.

A state statute reportedly prohibits disannexation if a piece of land is adjacent to another village. The Three Lakes is contiguous to Buffalo Grove.

BOLI Votes Paving, Sewers for 2 Streets

The Board of Local Improvements (BOLI) last night voted a special assessment estimated at $125,000 for sewers, and road paving in the Central-Kirchoff triangle in Arlington Heights.

Walnut, one of the streets originally included in the special assessment, was left out of the final resolution passed by BOLI so that it may be improved through a private contract.

A private contract is expected to cost considerably less than the special assessment.

Mitchell and Highland are the two streets in the triangle that are part of the special assessment.

The streets will be improved with paving and a storm sewer. A storm sewer also will be installed on Chestnut, from Central to Kirchoff.

Several Chestnut residents last night protested the inclusion of their part of the street in the special assessment. They reportedly will be charged for the construction of the sewers, but not the paving costs.

BOLI MEMBER Harold Klingner said the storm sewer was part of a slow-moving program to provide separate sanitary and storm sewers to alleviate damage from floods.

He did emphasize, though, that the new sewers would not necessarily guarentee total flood control in case of heavy rain.

Richard Howorka, 926 S. Chestnut, said it would be absurd to spend money for a project that was not foolproof.

"We are trying to be honest with you," said Klingner.

The village trustees are scheduled to act on the project April 15.

Computer to Run Water System

By Charles Mouratides

(First of Two Parts)

A long, wide tape in Arlington Heights' public works department faithfully reflects the Day-By-Day routine of the village's residents.

It shows when father goes to work and when he returns. It shows the time most of the village's 13,000 families water their lawn and when they sink into their chairs with martini in hand to watch the early show.

Then at 10:15 p.m., immediately after the newscast, the tape shows that people here take a break from their television sets.

ALL THAT is shown automatically in the new water management control center of the public works department. A pen continously inscribes on the tape the consumption of water in Arlington Heights.

The rate of use of that commodity is a sure indicator of most large scale activities in the village, according to Gene Willroth, director of public works.

"It's a sure thing," Willroth said. "In spring or summer you would think that all commuters go home, take off their jackets and go to work on the lawn.

"When the night newscast is over something similar happens. It seems the whole village suddenly stops watching television. Water faucets start running and toilets flush."

A DEEP RED line inscribed on the tape by a little mechnical arm indicates the water demand and the available supply.

High consumption of water is indicated by downward trend of a deep red line on the tape.

Low consumption is shown by an upward trend of the line.

Numbers on the tape crossed by the red line show the water level in Arlington Heights' eight wells which are in operation -- or "on line" as it is called.

That's one of the fundamental functions of the computers in the water management program.

THE PROGRAM has three phases and next week the department will embark on the second phase, says Willroth.

Once the second pahse has begun, the village will be saving about $40,000 annually, which will pay the cost of the whole program in about three years, according to Willroth.

In about three years the computer also will be used for compilation of financiel and police records, he said.

THE FIRST phase of the water management program is supervision of the water network.

In thrt phase the computer electronically measures the pressure of water in the network's wells and pipes and alerts the center to any malfunction.

An operator is at hand around the clock to respond to an alert.

The operator can feed a well into the line or cut one out by turning a switch in the center. The wells are located in many different parts of the village.

THE SECOND phase of the program provides for completely automatic control of the system.

The computer will read the flow of water in Arlington Heights, and operate the wells without human help -- and will bill the almost 14,000 customers of the system.

The mechanical brain will scan the entire water network every 15 minutes, record the exact location of irregularities and indicate mathod of correction.

THE FIRST two phases will cost the village about $75,000.

The village administration has asked the trustees for almost another $20,000 in the proposed 1968-69 budget to finance the third phase of the program.

That item of the budget is in the $1,500,000 capital outlay account for new facilities and maintenance.

The capital outlay account will be financed through a revenue bond if Village Manager L. A. Hanson's proposal is accepted. The bond would not affect the village tax rate Hanson said.

THE THIRD phase of the program will help maintain a standard flow of water in all the wells.

Pumping water of of one particular well is often less expensive than pumping it from another. The depth of the well and the water level influencing the cost of pumping the water.

The computer will select the well which most economically will produce the amount of water in demand at any particular moment, Willroth said.

That final phase of water management control will bring the computer center to the threshhold of the technology of the future.

The time is fast approaching when reading water meters and checking their mechanical condition will be done by telephone.

NEXT: The way of the future Remote reading of water meters by dialing a phone number. Village manager says it will be used here within five years.

The deep red ink line, a sure indicator of the day-by-day routine of the village's residents, is the computer's way of recording fluctuations on water demands in Arlington Heights. The pencil is pointing at approximately 10:20 p.m. when the night television newscast is over. Photo by Bob Richardson.

The Prospect Heights School Dist. 23 Board of Education met last night in an executive session to discuss teachers' salaries.

Technician Held in Rape

Ron Mahon, 25, of 301 Park Pl., Arlington Heights, a laboratory technician at Northwest Community Hospital, surrendered Wednesday night to Arlington Heights police after a warrant had been issued for his arrest on a charge of rape.

A Bensenville woman, in a complaint to the State's Attorney's office, charged that she was raped March 15 by Mahon in an x-ray room in the hospital where she had gone for an examination.

Mahon was released on $5,000 bond for appearance April 26 in the Arlington Heights Branch of Circuit Court.

A hospital spokesman said that Mahon has been suspended from his job. Hospital authorities and police are investigating.

Harper College OK's Next Year's Salaries

BY BETSY BROOKER

An interim salary program for the college year 1968-69 was approved by the Harper Junior College Board of Education Thursday.

At the last regular meeting March 19, approval of the schedule was postponed after board member Jim Hamill objected.

He said then it was contrary to policy for a board to act on the same evening a proposal was submitted, and asked for more time to study the schedule.

THE SALARY range is: instructor, $8,000 to 12,500; assistant professor, $9,150 to $15,000; associate professor, $10,300 to 17,600; and professor, $11,450 to 20,300.

Hamill and Mrs. Jessalyn Nicklas voted to amend the schedule to lower the base salary figure of $8,000.

"A $8,000 base figure would work a hardship on us in public relations, in our family of junior colleges, and with the state junior college board," said Mrs. Nicklas.

"Lowering the base figure won't hurt us. Harper is not on a step system where promotion is proportional to the base figure," continued Mrs. Nicklas.

Position on the salary schedule will be based on an evaluation system to be presented by the faculty. Rank will be determined solely by qualifications.

Jim Hamill objected, "This base figure is going to be banded around the state. We will be branded what we've been branded before, a gold plated junior college."

"There is no need for such a high base figure," said Hamill. "We had no trouble in hiring teachers last year."

"THE BASE figure is meaningless. It designates someone with no experience and we've never hired anyone with that rank," continued Hamill.

Dick Johnson, chairman of the board's salary committee, suggested leaving the base figure blank since it is meaningless.

Faculty representative Tom McCabe, assistant professor in math, objected to any lowering of the $8,000 base figure. He said the faculty voted to accept the figure when it was first proposed.

"If we are concerned with what others think of us, we want them to look up to us," said Larry King, assistant professor in history, another faculty representative.

"We are setting up a junior college and should act independantly," said board member Dr. LeRoi Hutchings.

Johnson pointed out that high schools in College Dist. 512 had salary schedules with a base figure for a master's degree as high as $7,500. The college cannot afford to pay salaries lower than the local high schools.

A second section of the salary schedule concerning part-time, temporary and summer school teachers also was approved at the meeting.

The salary committee recommended that the salary of these teachers be increased by $50.

Mrs. Nicklas objected to including these three groups of teachers under the same specifications. She said the part-time teachers shouldn't be included in the salary increase

According to Dr. Herbert R. Pankratz, dean of instruction, Harper had trouble last year in attracting part-time teachers because of the low salary schedule. He said he did not think the increase was too high.

THE THIRD section of the salary schedule recommended that any surplus funds remaining after the close of summer school be distributed to the summer school instructors.

It was decided by the board to table this proposal to allow the board attorney time to study the legal implications.

'More Common Sense Needed In Crime Cases: Undersheriff

Common sense is lacking in some U. S. Supreme Court rulings, Cook County Undersheriff C. Bernard Carey told Wheeling Township Republican Women's Club Thursday night.

Speaking about crime and rioting, Carey also thumbed down the Kerner Commission report – "I don't buy-white racism -" "I'm not responsible for what my father and grandfather did" and the press, because reporters incite riots by their presence at the scene of disturbances, he claimed.

"What's happened to good ol' common sense?" he demanded rhetorically.

"The problems we have in jail are symptomatic of the crime we have in the street," he answered himself.

Carey listed three types of crime: amateur, organized – and civil disobedience.

AN INDIVIDUAL has as much responsibility for a crime committed in a group as if the deed were done on his own, he said.

To back up his disagreement with the opinions of the country's top magistrates, Carey cited incidents in which a criminal would confess to a policeman, only to be set free later "because the patrolman had his badge on crooked."

Policemen need laws that protect them, Carey went on. After last year's riots, many law enforcement officers had to face charges of brutality – and, he declared, "policemen in a violent situation can't be expected to make the same decision in three minutes that it takes a court months to make." "About 200 policemen in the United States were killed last year on traffic stops," he said.

"Most patrolmen are ordinary men who do their jobs, not goons," Carey said.

"They tell us we can't prepare for riots, but every nut in the country can."

The main purpose of riots and marches -- the undersheriff linked the two activities -- is to upset organized government, he believes.

He called for more police manpower to cope with this even as he explained that the National Guard is not the answer to riot problems.

FOR ONE THING, the militia is politically controlled, Carey said. And "you can't get snipers with tanks" but "we can't run around with flowers in our hair either."

"If you think the death penalty is not a deterrent to crime, why do you think members of the Casa Nostra don't squeal on each other? he asked.

Carey defended Sheriff Joseph Woods' posse proposal, which fizzled soon after it got under way.

Unlike Chicago, the rest of the county does not have enough peace officers to police its area if a riot breaks out somehere, he said.

Workshop

The Teen Theatre Club, part of the drama program of the Arlington Heights Park District, will meet Saturday for an action workshop.

Miss Judy Speer will coach the students in preparation for a summer production of a play.

Miss Speer says the spring program will lead into the summer series of meetings beginning June 22. The students will work on a full length production to be given July 26.

The closed circuit TV program room at Miner Junior High School is turned into a stage for the Miner Bowl contests. Here are members of two contesting panels and the moderator, TV Programmer Lee Eakright. Ten eighth grade homerooms at the Miner School compete in contests held once a week during the spring. Finals are scheduled for late April.

Quiz Bowl Spotlights 8th Graders

BY RICHARD CRABB

This may be the slow season for the bowl competition in places like the Rose Bowl or the Cotton Bowl, but for the Miner Bowl matters are just now reaching the fever pitch.

The Miner Bowl is a unique creation of the eighth graders of Miner Junior High School. Taking advantage of the school's closed circuit television, the Miner Bowl is conducted in the manner of the student battle of wits seen on area or national TV networks.

Taking part in the bowl contests are the 10 eighth grade homerooms or sections. Each homeroom elects a team of four plus one alternate. The students pick the members who they believe have the widest background of information and who think quickly "on their feet."

During March and April there is a series of runoffs until there is a champion, runnerup and winners of third and fourth places.

THE CONTESTS are conducted in the school TV studio, set up as a stage, with panels seated together on the right and left, and the moderator's rostrum in the center. The show is sent via the closed circuit TV into each of the 10 eighth grade homerooms.

Not only are the panels made up of eighth graders, but much of the production work is done by students too. The stage decorations, the set design and the visual aids are produced by the art and industrial arts departments.

The teachers responsible for each subject taught in the school select the questions. In this way the bowl becomes a "refresher" for everything being studied by the eighth graders. For each contest, there are one or more questions on current events or on general knowledge.

An example of a current events question used recently is: What is the name of the leading American actor who was injured in an auto accident en route to New York's Kennedy Airport?

The answer was "Cary Grant."

A general knowledge question is: What is the name of the artist who painted the ceiling of the Sistine Chapel?

The answer is "Michaelangelo."

From the literature teacher comes the question:

Identify the following quotation: "Friends, Romans, countrymen lend me your ears." The panel gets half-credit for identifying the play Shakespeare's "Julius Caesar."

For full credit, the panel must reply that the quotation is from Mark Anthony's funeral oration in the play.

A total of 10 contests are required to establish the champions and the placement of three other teams.

A new set of questions is used for each contest. Contests are held once a week.

The competition now stands at about the halfway mark. The finals will be held after the Easter vacation.

Could You Win In This Bowl?

If you can answer eight out of 10 of these questions, you might be a winner in the Miner Bowl, a closed circuit television quiz program in which Miner School eighth graders compete.

1. Napoleon was victorious against the Germans, Spaniards, Austrians and Prussians. In what battle did he meet his most decisive defeat?

2. The tendency of an object at rest to remain at rest and of an object in motion to remain in motion is called what?

3. What is the name of the actor who plays the male lead in the Academy Award winning motion picture, "Dr. Zhivago?"

Teen-ager Helps Eight-Year-Old Gain Confidence

BY MARILYN HELFERS

Having the companionship of a teen-ager when you're only 8 years old can be a big help to a boy.

But if you're blind and aren't quite as wall coordinated as other boys your age, it really helps to have a 14-year-old friend like Mike Gill.

Mike, son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Gill of Wheeling, has been helping Bob Howland of Prospect Heights build up his muscles so that the younger boy can keep up with the other blind children in his class.

Mike is a sophomore at Wheeling High School and for the last three months he has been working with Bob for two and a half hours each Saturday.

Mike had a grandmother who was blind, and had gone through grammar school with a blind classmate.

He had been attending a training class for teen-agers who want to qualify as babysitters with handicapped children when he volunteered to help her 8-year-old son, explained Mrs. Harry Howland.

THE YOUNGER boy's poor physical co-ordination makes it hard for him to keep up with a physical education class for blind children at the Mark Twain School in Wheeling, Mrs. Howland said.

To learn how best to help Bob, Mike visited the special gym classes at the Twaio School and talked to Bob's gym teacher, Keo Ward.

"Mr. Ward told me that Bob was even falling behind the other blind kids in his class," said Mike.

"It wasn't until a year ago that Bob would let his feet leave the ground, just to jump, he was so scared."

"Mr. Ward said that Bob needed any kind of exercise to help him build up his muscles, so he could take part in the tumbling and gymnastics."

"Mike worked with Bob at our house for a few Saturdays," said Mrs. Howland. "They did exercises and other calisthenics.

"Then Mike started taking Bob to his house on Saturdays because he had more gym equipment to work with. Mike makes working seem like fun to Bob," she added. "Bob enjoyed working with Mike's punching bag so much that we just gave him one of his own for his birthday," she said.

"Mike has been playing ball with Bob. They use a plastic bell and bat, and Mike pitches the ball and tells Bob when to swing. Maybe one out of 10 times he hits it," said Mrs. Howland.

"THEY'VE ALSO bean playing catch with a large bell," she said, "Bob tries to throw the ball as close to the sound of Mike's voice as he can."

Mike's regular teacher at Mark Twain said:

"I feel that Mike is helping Bob capture the enthusiasm for participating in activities, so that he can learn to play like other boys."

"Mike's working with Bob on Saturdays," said Mrs. Howland, "has given Bob more self-confidence. It isn't easy for the mother of a child who has beeo born blind to let him take the bumps and bruises that are a part of his growing up," she said. "Getting advice from his teen companion seems to have helped Bob," Mrs. Howland concluded.

Scholarship Deadline Is April 2

High school seniors in the 3d District of northwest Cook County interested io seeking either of the two General Assembly scholarships sponsored by Rep. Eugenia Chapman (D-Arlington Heights) may make application through April 2. One of the full 4-year tuition grants is applicable at the University of Illioois. The other may be used at any other state university or college in Illinois.

Scholarships application blanks are avilable from the college counselors in any high school in the 3d District. Townships io the district are Wheeliog, Elk Grove, Schaumburg, Palatine, Haoover, Barrington and parts of Maioe and Northfield.

Awards will be made on the basis of academic achievement, motivation and need. Applications will be evaluated by a committee of area educators chosen by Mrs. Chapman and headed by W. D. Whiteside, co-ordinator of guidance and testing for High School District 21 '.

Page to Talk At GOP Fund Raiser

Ray Page, Illinois superintendent of public instruction, will be the principal speaker at the April 2 fund-raising dinner of the Republican Orgaoizational Voluoteers.

The dinner will be held in Chicago at the Diplomat Restauraot, 5600 W. Fullerton.

Larry Horist, chairman of the voluoteers, said Thursday: "We expect many of the Republican leaders in the state to be present including the gubefnaturial candidates. We will use the funds from this benefit dinner to buy a multi-purpose vehicle and other equipment to use for campaigning purposes."

Page is Illinois' highest elected Republicao official. He has held office since 1963. Page will be introduced by John Doremus, Chicago radio personality.

Moore Urged For Sanitary District Post

Thomas N. Moore, 1109 Ironwood Dr., Mount Prospect, will be racommandad for tha job of purchasiog agant for the Metropolitan Sanitary District.

The recommendation will be made by Supt. Vinton W. Bacon at the April 4 meeting of district trustees.

Scout Committee Sets 8-Year Goals

Scouting's progress in the northwest for the next eight years has been charted by the Northwest Suburban Boy Scout Council's Long Range Planning Committee.

The plan, called the "Road Ahead" by the group, is the outgrowth of a year-long study.

The survey was concerned with population growth and with how many boys the council could serve using available resources.

The committee found that between 1968 and 1976, an additional 300 Cub packs, Boy Scout troops and Explorer posts would have to be organized, according to Russell Larsen, its chairman.

THE GOAL IS to serve one of every three boys in the area, compared to one of every four boys now enrolled, Larsen said. By 1976, the council expects that 25,000 boys will be active in Scouting in the Northwest suburbs, he said.

To reach and serve these boys, it would be necessary by 1976 to recruit and train 9,500 adult volunteer leaders, Larsen said.

"We will have a greatly increased number of boys plus their leaders spending two weeks at one of the council's two summer camps. This number will progress rapidly, reaching 5,000 boys by 1976," he added.

The cost of serving adult volunteer leaders with expanded facilities, services and staff will bring the council's net operating budget to more than $500,000 by 1976, Larsen said.

Members of the long range planning committee include: Larsen; Dr. Edward Gilbert, Arlington Heights, membership study chairman; Morton Z. Levine, Skokie, office study chairman; A. A. Rose, Palatine, camp study chairmao; Robert Gillilan, Barrington, organization and manpower co-chairman, and Leslie B. Nelson, Arlington Heights, Scout executive.

Suggest Area Site for U.S. Bicentennial

John Hanry Altorfar of Paoria, candidate for Rapublican nomination for goveroor lo the June 11 primary, has proposed that Illiools and the Chicago metropolitan area be the host for the nation's 200th birthday celebration lo 1976. Altorfer made the proposal in talks dellvared Wed. in Chicago and Moline.

"Within tha next 18 months," said Altorfer, "the Congress will hava the respoosibility of daciding where to center this nation's official bicentennial. America's 200th birthday celabratioo in 1976, only eight years hence, will be an historic event of great potential impact and importance. It might well take the form of a world's fair. Whatever form the occasion takes, there should be no question about its proper location. Our Chicago metropolitan area is the most accessible to the rest of the nation by plane, train, bus and car."

Homeowners May Deduct Flood Losses

Residents of the northwest suburbs may be able to deduct their June 10 flood losses from their income tax, according to E. C. Coyle, Chicago's district director of the Internal Revenue Service.

The announcement came Monday on the heals of a report that property owners may receive a real estate tax break from the county.

Ralph Serpico of the county tax assessor's office earlier told this to Des Plaines residents who can prove their their property was damage by flooding.

Deputy Assessor Russel Johnsoo later said that Arlington Heights and Mount Prospect also would be giveo tax relief if warranted.

Coyle explained that the amount of the loss is the lesser two valuations:

The adjusted appraisal of the property is one; a decrease in its fair market value as a result of a disaster is the other.

Last summer residents filed claims with the Small Business Administration for loans to repair their property after the June 10 storm.

Dialogue

... with George Hamilton

"Say, there's something familiar about you. Are you related to...?

"A. Constant Reader,-- yessir, I'm his brother. Younger one, you know. Same initials A.C.R.;;

"Same initials? Man, will this be confusing!"

"No really. My middle name is Careful."

"What does the "A" stand for?"

"Another."

"Another?"

"Well, we're a big family, you see, and by the time I came along, Pa was running out of names. So when they told him he was once more the father of a bouncing boy, he simply said, 'Well, that's Another.' "

"I think I'll call you Careful, if you don't mind. What brings you here?

"Well, my big brother and I both find your presentation of the news refreshing and informative. But, speaking for myself, I'd like to suggest one way you might improve your service to readers."

"We have an open door policy and welcome suggestions from readers, -- especially careful ones."

"Well, this matter of names dreamed up by U. S. government phrase-makers for the federal programs is bad enough. Whenever I see "Upward Bound," or "Head Start," and so on, I always have to stop and feed it into my mental computer to make sure I know which program is the one under discussion."

"Well, ever since the days of the New Deal such alphabetizing of federal or even local agencies or programs has become common enough. WPA, NRA, and so on have actually been a boon to headline writers, and readers, too. Or don't you think so?"

"Maybe so. But some of those made up lately seem to have drawn on the talents of TV gag writers. For instance, a new group created by the President to handle a program of seeking job training prospects and landing jobs for hard-core unemployed is named National Alliance of Businessmen. So it winds up being called NAB."

"True, it does sound like a program to drag non-workers off to the nearest pokey."

"The contagion has spread to private enterprise, too, -- just the other day I heard a friend proudly describe himself as a FOOF. Actually I thought he was downgrading himself until he explained the term."

"And what is a FOOF?"

"A member of FOOF's -- a familiar term for "Friends of Old Films," the devotees of classic, historic cinema films. About two and a half million fellow Americans annually see movies at private showings, as part of the cultural kick. Film societies of FOOF's now total about 4,000 across the country."

"Let's get back to how we can improve our service to readers."

"How about printing a special daily Guide to Readers, explaining just what the alphabet-soup titles mean?"

"Have a heart. If we did that, we wouldn't have room for any news."

Benefits of Summer School

BY JAN BONE

Summer school can be a glorious experience for a child!

It can give him a chance to work on projects and experiments with much more freedom than a regular classroom can offer, a chance to acquire new skills and to be introduced to unfamiliar experiences.

Summer school can give kids who need confidence a chance to catch up - or a chance to improve their reading or math performance.

ALL SEVEN OF the grade school districts in The Day area, as well as High School Dists. 214 and 211, offer summer school.

Registration has already started for some of the programs.

Each of the summer school directors says he's glad to enroll children who attend parochial school throughout the year, but who live within his district boundaries.

What most parents here don't know, however, and what school districts don't think to tell you - is that if you want your child to go to summer school, you don't have to limit him to the courses offered by the district in which you live.

WITH ONLY one exception (Mount Prospect Dist. 57) all the other school districts in the Arlington Heights-Mount Prospect-Rolling MeadowsProspect Heights area will be glad to welcome your child to their summer schools.

Now there are some disadvantages to taking your child to summer school in another district. You're going to have to drive him there. Every day.

You may have to pay a higher tuition charge than you would if you sent him to summer school in the district where you live.

BUT IF YOU'RE willing to do this, you can give your child opportunities he may never get during his normal school program.

Typing for junior high kids, industrial arts (in some cases with electrical shop experience), sewing, cooking, first-grade readiness classes, and band and orchestra experiences are offered by some of the summer school programs.

Changing school districts in the summer may have a definite advantage, too, for the child who needs remedial instruction.

REMEDIAL reading class sizes last summer in Elk Grove Dist. 59, for instance, averaged 22 children. One class, according to a Dist. 59 principal, had 27 children.

In Arlington Heights Dist. 25, said curriculum director William Fritsche, remedial classes are set up so that each teacher works with no more than four children.

Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 last year kept remedial reading and math classes down to five children per teacher.

Here's the reason for the difference:

School districts here are using two different methods, or a combination, for financing summer school.

ONE SYSTEM of meeting summer school costs is the use of state aid. Probably the largest summer school program going is offered by Elk Grove Dist. 59. Last year, they had 3,166 children in classes.

Dist. 59 doesn't charge its residents tuition. What parents who live in its boundaries pay is a $5 fee per child for books and materials. (Some courses such as typing, or outdoor education, have additional charges).

Last year, its most popular courses were physical skills (880 children), and creative arts (835).

CLASSES WERE large, however, they averaged 25 children - and they'll be larger this year. The board approved going to a 27-child class average size so that summer school would be self-supporting.

Arlington Heights Dist. 25, which had 450 children in last summer's program, charged its residents $32.50 for its remedial classes, but put only four children in a class. A remedial language arts class for spelling and writing skills also was offered.

One popular enrichment course (last year's cost, $17), with a maximum of 15 children per class, was a critical reading seminar for children in grades 4-8.

FIVE OR SIX books were read and discussed by the children in a program which stimulated exchange of ideas.

William Fritsche, who heads curriculum in Dist. 25, says because tuition charges are set to cover teacher salaries and costs of materials, parents who live out of the district can probably bring their children for the same rate charged Dist. 25 residents.

Mount Prospect Dist. 57 might consider taking out-of-district students if they have vacancies, says business manager J. C. Busenhart, but sets its summer school up primarily for the benefit of its own residents.

LAST YEAR'S summer director Lester E. Brown said most popular courses were typing; a natural science course which included out-of-door work, lab experience, and films, and a tutorial reading program where a child came in twice a week for individual help, continuing with programmed learning material at home

Residents of Dist. 57 paid tuition charges from $15 to $25 (depending on the course chosen) for summer school. Busenhart said the district again plans to use the tuition method of financing, rather than a state aid program.

River Trails Dist. 26 has a combination method of meeting summer school costs that lets it keep remedial reading classes to a maximum of 10 children for a $10 cost-of-materials fee.

A POPULAR program last year gave kids two weeks of enriched social studies, plus math experience with programming a child-built digital computer.

Glenn Erickson, Dist. 26 curriculum director, says that besides enrichment and remedial courses, the district offers a review program for youngsters who need more work on concepts they've already been studying, but who don't need the intensive remedial training.

First, second, and third-graders also can take enrichment courses. One they enjoy, said Erickson, is creative dramatics, which includes poetry, choral reading, and plays.

ALL COURSES are open to out-of-district children for a $25 tuition charge.

Mrs. Marjory Beu, in Wheeling Dist. 21 (which includes Berkeley Square residents of Arlington Heights), had 1,400 children in summer school last year. This year, she may get over 2,000.

All Dist. 21's nine schools will be open for summer courses, and out-of-district residents are welcome for the $25 tuition charge. Children who live in the district will pay a $5 book rental fee. State aid helps the district meet its costs.

A complete band and orchestra program, sewing, cooking, and shop courses will be offered. Boys will get experience in wood, electrical, and metal-working, along with some drafting.

ONE EXTREMELY popular course is first-grade readiness, which includes special motor facillatation work. Mrs. Beau says that a number of children who'll enter parochial first grades in September, but who have not had kindergarten, usually enroll for this.

How do you find out about summer school?

Your school district in which you live will undoubtedly send home material on its own summer program.

If you're interested in finding out what other districts can offer your child, call the following people now, because registration is already starting. Each will be glad to give you information.

Arlington Heights Dist. 25, William Fritsche, Cl 3-6100. Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15, Marion Omiatek, 358-4400. Elk Grove Dist. 59, Sol Minkoff, HE 7-1000. River Trails Dist. 26, Glenn Erickson, 296-8410. Wheeling Dist. 21, Mrs. Marge Beu, 537-8270.

AND HOW TO kids feel about summer school?

Here's what one parent wrote last year:

"Our little girl attended First Grade Readiness. We were thrilled to see all the enthusiasm she showed every morning. She always left home in the morning with a smile, and returned full of excitement to tell us of all her morning endeavors.

"We feel she has gained knowledge through the realization that learning is fun. We will continue to use the summer school facilities in years to come."

Students Honored

Two area students presently attending the University of Illinois were honored this month by the U. of I. Mothers Association and recognition will be given the high schools in which they received college preparation.

George D. Myers, 206 W. Wing, Arlington Heights and James H. Phelan, 302 Wille St., Mount Prospect, both maintained straight "A" grade averages in their first semester at U. of I., Champaign-Urbana.

The high schools of St. Viator, of which Myers is a graduate, and Prospect, Phelan's alma mater, will each receive a significant book of their choice, with a bookplate bearing the name of the student and a citation of his excellence in the university.

Curb Temptation By Locking Car

If the automobile industry racked up even a 10 per cent increase in sales in one year, company executives would blow their minds.

Yet in one "industry" in which the automobile figures prominently, 1967 registered a 20 per cent increase over 1966, and a more than 100 per cent increase over 1960.

The industry is car theft.

The National Automobile Theft Bureau has just reported that 651,700 cars were stolen in 1967. That's better than one every minute of every hour of every day. They represented an estimated value in excess of $650 million - more than the value of all other larcenies combined.

Although the recovery rate of stolen cars has been more than 90 per cent, there is little comfort in that statistic. Many cars are found seriously damaged; others are stripped of components and accessories, often right down to the sheet metal.

Actual dollar cost of automobile thefts is placed at over $100 million, which is ultimately borne by everyone, either in direct losses, higher insurance premiums or increased taxes to pay for police, court and prison expenses.

But the highest cost to society, in the opinion of law enforcement and penal authorities, is the fact that some 50 per cent of the persons arrested for auto theft are under the age of 18.

Whether for a thrill, a joy ride or stripping for financial gain, the first theft by a juvenile is often the prelude to a career of crime.

An unknown number of youths eventually graduate into the class of hardened adult criminals who account for the other 50 per cent of car thefts and who steal cars either for profit or for use in connection with other crimes.

There is little the public can do about professional car thieves, who have ingenious methods of transporting and disguising cars, switching serial and motor numbers and counterfeiting ownership papers. But it can do much to deter the youthful beginner.

Cleveland, Ohio, which experienced a 58 cent jump in auto thefts last year, is launching a campaign to educate itscar owning citizens.

"An alarming number of stolen cars were left with keys in the ignition" says C. A. Lewis, campaign chairman. "Careless and lazy drivers who fail to properly lock their automobiles are inviting young people to break the law. The ease with which cars are stolen is amazing."

After an initial period of public education, Cleveland police will begin the strict enforcement of an ordinance prohibiting the leaving of keys in a street-parked car. The ordinance provides for removal of the keys by a police officer and the penalty of a fine against the owner.

While a locked car and the absence of keys will not stop the determined professional criminal, FBI figures show that auto thefts are much fewer in communities where similar ordinances are enforced.

Urge Further Merger Study

The Northwest Municipal Conference committee, appointed to study the possibilities of consolidation of northwest Cook County villages, made its first report to the parent body Wednesday evening.

The committee recommended that a grant of funds be sought from a private foundation in order that an objective and thoroughly professional study may be conducted by a competent firm. The committee is studying the opportunities to secure a grant.

Members of the investigating committee are Mayor John G. Woods of Arlington Heights, Mayor Jack Pahl Elk Grove Village and Village Manager Curt Olsen of Wheeling.

The committee recommended that the villages of the Northwest Municipal Conference take steps immediately to establish co-operative services. Closer cooperation is considered desirably by the committee in the areas of flood control, water supply, garbage collection and disposal, fire and police protection, planning to meet emergencies, health, fiscal controls, mass transportation, traffic, highway planning and control of Dutch elm disease.

The report urged that special committees be established be appointed to study each recommended area of village co-operation.

Let Children Make Own Easter Bunny Cake

Let your children make their own Easter Bunny Cake for the holidays. They can use their imagination, a little frosting and some candy and impress everyone at the holiday table with their special creation.

The Easter Bunny Cake can be prepared from your own cake recipe or from a package mix according to directions on the package. It requires only one 9-inch layer of white or yellow cake, depending on your preference.

The children can even prepare the cake, if you're willing to overlook a little extra mess in the kitchen.

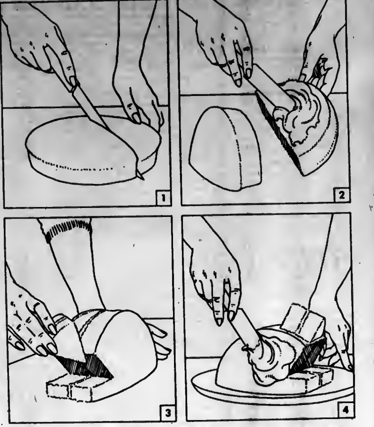
After the cake has cooled, cut one layer in half. Put the two halves together with a filling of whipped cream, your favorite fluffy white frosting or a seven-minute type frosting.

Stand the cake on the cut edge. Cut out a diagonal wedge to indicate the bunny's head. Secure the cutout piece for the head with toothpicks.

Now the cake is ready to be frosted and decorated. Frost with the remaining icing and cover the cake generously with coconut. Use white construction paper to form the bunny's ears. Color the inside of the ears pink with crayon.

The bunny's ears can now be put in place and assorted colorful jelly beans can be used for the eyes and nose. Green-tinted coconut and a few colored Easter eggs will form an attractive nest for the bunny.

Left--Let the children help create an Easter Bunny Cake for the holidays. The cake is prepared in a single layer, cut to form the shape of a bunny, frosted with fluffy white icing and decorated with coconut and colorful jelly beans. (West Bend Co. photo)



To make an Easter Bunny Cake: 1. Cut one layer of a 9-inch yellow or white cake in half. 2. Put the two halves together with a fluffy white frosting. 3. Lay the cake on the cutting edge and remove a diagonal wedge to be used as bunny's head. 4. Secure wedge with toothpicks and with the remaining frosting, glaze the cake and top it with shredded coconut. Use paper cutouts for ears, jelly beans for the eyes and nose, and tinted coconut for the bunny's neck. (Courtesy The West Bend Co.)

'Between Parent And Child' A Best Seller

BY LOU ANN BLAIR

Dr. Haim Ginott's book "Between Parent and Child" has finally become a best seller. Were you one of his readers back in 1965 when the book was first published?

You were definitely in the minority, because very few persons bought the book in 1965 or even bothered to check it out from the library. But thanks to the enthusiasm and word-of-mouth publicity of his early readers, an article was published about the book in the New York Times Magazine last May.

SINCE THEN the ball has not stopped rolling. Dr. Ginott first appeared on television on the Today Show and his crisp, entertaining, down-to-earth approach to parents' problems made him an instant hit.

Here was a man brimming with common sence telling mothers (and fathers, if they happened to be home that morning) how to converse as parents with their children; how to praise and criticize without destroying their children's sense of worth, and how to avoid self-defeating patterns such as sarcasm, sermons, threats or bribes, that do nothing but create havoc at home.

Dr. Ginott is a pyschologist and he is concerned with the mental health of both parent and child. He says "emotions like rivers cannot be stopped, only diverted" and his book provides insight and offers acceptable ways of coping with strong feelings of anger, jealousy and hate.

ONE OF THE things he says about anger is that parents are entitled to their anger without shame or guilt and should just accept the fact that children will make them angry.

But as parents, the important thing to learn is to express anger without attacking the personality or character of the child.

Dr. Ginott's book abounds with many examples and concrete suggestions. You will have no trouble identifying with some of the problems discussed. Do you have a new baby at your house?

HOW DOES YOUR four-year-old feel about him? Is your child lying or stealing?

Is it a daily battle to get your child to do his assigned chores?

Do you know how to discipline your child effectively?

Already over 250,000 hardback copies have been sold. Soon the book will be out in paperback. Is it any wonder that Dr. Ginott's name will become as well known as - you know who?

From now on it will be "Dr. Ginott says..." when mothers get together for a morning coffee klatch. And what a break for the kids - their parents are actually going to learn how to be first class parents.

Purple Martins: How You Can Attract Them to Your Yard

BY MARILYN HELFERS
Women's Editor
(Last of a Series)

You've decided you would like to attract martins to your yard, now how do you do it?

First you must erect the proper type houses with 2-¼ inch holes for doorways, ½-inch above the floor of the house. The rooms should be 6-inch x 6-inch x 6-inch. Place the house on a pole about 12 to 14 feet high in a cleared or open space that is away from tall buildings and trees, in the vicinity of some telephone or electric lines.

Place the houses near where there are people passing. This prevents the native birds from taking over the martins' house, since native birds are easily scared away by the presence of people.

ONCE YOU GET martins nesting in your houses, you should see that these houses are cleaned out before the scout martins arrive. This is the secret of attracting martins year after year.

If you are handy with a hammer and saw, you can make a martin house. Otherwise, aluminum houses with easily cleanable compartments are available. Some of the new retractable poles make martin houses easier to clean.

Martins rarely come to the ground. Their long wings and short legs and weak feet make it almost impossible for them to get off of the ground again.

IN MAKING their nests, they carry loose dirt or earth which turns to dust as it dries out, thus helping to control mites. You can help by putting loose soil into their nesting boxes after you have cleaned them.

Martins feed entirely on flying insects such as mosquitos and will perform their antics until the middle of August when they leave again for their winter homes in Brazil.

When they have left for the winter, take down their boxes and clean them and either replace them or store them for the winter. If you replace them on their poles, be sure that you close the doorways so that the native birds will not have the use of them.

In the spring, before the scout martins come, be sure the houses are in place, clean and with doorways open ready for the Martins to move in.

Trinity Meeting Changed

The Woman's Society of Christian Service of Trinity Methodist Church has changed its general meeting date to April 2 at 9:30 a.m. rather than April 9.

The program, presented by Jan Abbott, will be a Lenten meditation based on Christian symbols and symbolism. There will be group singing, accompanied by Louise Carlson at the piano.

The period of quiet in the sanctuary will be followed by Lenten brunch, served by Martha Circle.

Nursery care will be available. The meeting will close in time for mothers of school children to be home to serve lunch.

Preceding the general meeting, the Executive Committee will meet at 9 a.m. the same day. Morning nursery service will be available beginning at 9 a.m.

Day by Day

Fun in the Sun

By Catherine O'Donnell

The sun is shining right now and it's beautifully spring, but it's only a short time since everyone huddled against the wind and wished that now was then. When it is cold there's nothing like a vacation to shorten the long winter months.

There is usually much to tell and when Jack and Dorothy Covington returned last week from a vacation in the Caribbean, there were plenty of tales.

The one that Dorothy will spend years forgetting happened on the first evening spent in the British Colonial Hotel, a little bit of England on Bay st. in Nassau.

They unpacked after their arrival in the late afternoon and decided to join the other residents of the hotel in a hot game of bingo. Dorothy won $15 on the first game.

As the senior British citizen paid her, he said, "Good show, old girl." Without a sense of humor that could have ruined a beautifully coiffed and clothed vacation. It didn't.

The Covingtons were joined by John and Terry Lynch of Talbet in Arlington and by another couple from Hawthorne Woods. The Lynches had decided to go to Nassau and meet Dorothy and Jack after they'd heard them reciting paragraphs from the travel brochures.

"It made it a wonderful vacation," Dorothy said. "We kept busy all of the time with golf, swimming and all of the other nice things to do in Nassau."

The trip home included an overnight stay in Miami Beach at the Holiday Inn. The Inn had sold their room reservation and gave them the penthouse instead for the night.

"I didn't realize we were up so high," Dorothy told, "until I looked out of the window in the morning and saw a helicopter flying lower than the penthouse." The Covingtons live on N. Drury.

PROGRAM

The Arlington Heights Woman's Club will present Dr. Robert Schneideman who is an associate professor of drama at Northwestern at its next meeting. His subject will be "A Portrait of Man in Contemporary Drama".

Dr. Schneidaman has directed some 40 major productions ranging from Greek tragedy, Elizabethan drama, Restoration and contemporary plays with a particular emphasis on the work of Bertolt Brecht, Samuel Beckett, Brendan Behan and Harold Pinter.

He has also published various articles in the Educational Theatre Journal and critical works and reviews

Program chairman is Vera McDonald. Club president is Dea Jurco. Heading the slate of officers for next year is Jackie Lidge, present first vice-president.

The next club meeting will be held on Wednesday, April 3 at Recreation Hall.

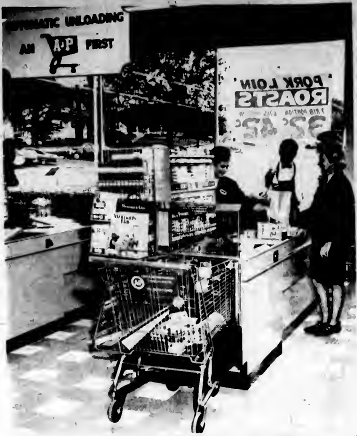
Carts Unload Themselves



A checkout counter that does away with unloading shopping carts item by item has been installed in the A & P food store at 1818 N. Arlington Heights Rd., Arlington Heights.

Carts used with this new "Check-O-Matic" system differ from conventional ones in that the bottom of the vehicle is actually a conveyor belt.

THE CUSTOMER places her groceries in the cart and pushes it to one of the special checkout points, where it locks into the stand. When the proper connection is made, a green light appears to indicate all is ready for unloading.

The cashier presses a foot pedal; the front panel of the cart slides up and a roller on the counter engages the cart's conveyor belt. The belt moves the merchandise forward slowly into an inclined conveyor system in the counter so that the purchases move to the cashier for checking.

WHEN THE CART is empty, the clerk pushes a button that releases it from the stand automatically, turns it and delivers it alongside the checkout.

The new carts are equipped with collapsible baby seats, so arranged that the child can remain in the cart throughout the entire unloading operation and be delivered, in the cart, to the mother alongside the checkout stand.

Skilled Manpower Needed for Housing

BY JAMES L. SRODES

WASHINGTON (UPI) President Johnson and the nation's homebuilders are faced with a problem-where to get the men to build 26 million units of housing in the next 10 years.

There are other problems too, of course.

Money, or the lack of it.

Demand, or the overabundance of it.

A HALF A dozen other problems ranging from Congressional indifference to bad weather.

But when the President called for a 6 million units of federally assisted low-income housing and 20 million more privately constructed units, he also was calling for the manpower to put those units into place.

And as anybody who has ever hit his thumb with a hammer knows, it takes a heap of skill to make a pile of lumber a home.

SO THE PROBLEM is not one of just rounding up enough manpower; it's getting skilled manpower.

To top it off, the nation's pool of skilled builders is shrinking.

Latest statistics indicate there are nearly 3.8 million men in the 20 building and construction trades, ranging from the unskilled to electricians, plumbers, marble setters and other skilled craftsmen.

TO KEEP PACE with demands for housing through 1975 alone, housing industry experts believe the pool will have to grow to 4.5 million men.

This does not take into account the six million-unit crash program for low and middle-income housing set by the President.

Simple arithmetic shows that the difference between 3.8 million and 4.5 million is only 700,000. But it isn't that simple.

One complication is that more men are leaving the building trades than are entering them.

THE AVERAGE age of skilled building trade laborers is much higher than for most occupations - about 50 years of age - and between now and 1975 a greater number of them will be dropping out of the labor pool due to retirement, changes to less demanding work and death.

So instead of 700,000 men, industry experts predict they will have to find 2.8 million men to make that 700,000 net gain. And again this gain is aimed only at keeping up the pace - not moving ahead on the 6 million units as the President has asked.

What the real figure will have to be to meet all the nation's housing needs is still being added up.

ONE SUGGESTED solution is to use the youth of the ghetto as a ready source for this trade pool. They could be trained, have their earnings boosted, help rebuild their own slum areas, provide better homes for themselves and ease the critical housing shortage for the whole country.

But this solution does not advance a way to actually get these young men on the job.

This raises other problems.

There is the problem of the racial discrimination which has riddled the building trades unions for years.

THERE IS the problem of motivating a slum youth to go through the long and difficult apprenticeship which the skilled trades require.

But problems or not, this is the proposed solution being eyed by both government and industry.

Whether it develops or is discarded, no one on either side of the conference table will - or can - say.

Ronald W. Mansdoerfer of 1827 S. Highland, Arlington Heights, has been appointed regional sales manager for the Kaahler Biacnit Cn. nf Elmhurst. He will be responsible for eight sales districts in the mid-western states and 150 personnel.

Martin J. Tampa Jr., Wheaton, Md., has been appointed planning co-ordinator for the product planning department of the Charles Bruning Co., Mount Prospect. Tampa was formerly office manager of Bruning's Washington, D.C., Branch office.

Expert: People Can Pay, But Don't Plan Properly

The most common reason why consumers have bad debts placed with collection service firms is mismanagement of the debtors' income, Leo Price, manager of Central Adjustment Bureau-Division of Des Plaines and Mount Prospect Credit Bureaus, said today.

This was reported in a survey of collection service offices affiliated with the Associated Credit Bureaus of America, Inc. (ACB of A), Price Said.

ACB of A is a national trade association of credit bureaus and collection services with which Central Adjustment is affiliated.

"PEOPLE APPEAR to have sufficient income but consumers who have bad debts placed with collection offices quite often have mismanaged their ability to pay", Price explained.

"They lack a financial plan when they decide to purchase on credit."

"The result is when they have a little illness or miss a paycheck, they have nothing to offset it", Price said.

ACB of A Collection Service Division members have an obligation to help consumers who have accounts placed for collection rehabilitate their credit record.

"We perform a service to the consumer when we work with him in paying a debt and clearing his credit record", Price said.

"A good credit report is vital today.

Price reported a 12.2 per cent increase in business volume in 1967.

Nationally, ACB of A reported a 9.6 per cent increase and $187 million in collections by Collaction Service Division members.

THE FACT that more money is being placed with collection service firms is not a reflection on the paying habits of the American consumer, Price said.

"It merely reflects more business being done on credit. When you sell more on credit, you are bound to have more accounts become available for collection service".

The amount of the average payment on a collection service account also has increased, Price said.

"In this period of high employment, people appear to have more money, and when they begin to repay these old accounts, they can afford a higher payment," Price added.

"Some consumers are paying old accounts with inflated dollars".

Olds Dealership's Home To Hold Four Buildings

Ground was broken last week for the new home of Ladendorf Oldsmobile.

Next October, the firm will be moving from its present location at 1628 Rand Rd., Des Plaines to Rand and Central Rd.

There will be four major buildings on the eight-and-a-half acre site.

The main structure will house new car sales and administrative offices.

The other three buildings will contain mechanical services and parts, a paint and body shop, and a car wash and wax facility.

THE BUILDINGS are to be of pre-cast concrete, with glass and brick walls. In addition to landscaped areas, the stie will have parking for about 650 to 700 cars.

The project was designed by Huebner and Henneberg, Architects, 5300 Golf Rd., Skokie. General contractor is S. DiMucci--Builders, 1000 Northwest Hwy., Mount Prospect.

Don Ladendorf, president and owner of the company, said that extensive time and study had gone into the plans for the new complex.

In almost three years, he visited more than 100 auto dealerships and related businesses including car washes, and electronic testing lanes.

THE LADENDORF family has operated the agency since 1926, when William J. Ladendorf, the founder, signed his first selling agreement with Oldsmobile.

In only two years, the fast growing company moved to new, larger quarters at the present location.

The company survived the depression, and the collapse of the Rand Rd. bridge, which closed the highway past the dealership. Even so, loyal customers found their way for service via back roads.

The founder's joined the company after leaving the U. S. Air Corps after World War II.

North Western's 10-Ride Tickets on Sale Monday

A new 10-ride ticket designed to make it more convenient for growing numbers of occasional riders to use its suburban service to and from Chicago was announced by the Chicago and North Western Railway.

H. A. Lenske, director of North Western's commuter and passenger services, said the new 10-ride ticket will be initiated throughout the road's suburban territory following a successful two-year experiment at three of the railroad's suburban stations--Glen Ellyn, Cumberland, and Highland Park.

"Our two-year test showed that a multiple-ride ticket, smaller than the 25-ride booklet now in use, appealed to a great many irregular riders," Lenske said.

"The new 10-ride tickets will enable the occasional rider to avoid the inconvenience of paying a cash fare aboard the train when a ticket agent isn't on duty at his particular station.

"The 10 rides will be honored on trains in either direction and at the same time will offer riders the cost benefits of the round-trip rate."

The 10-ride tickets will be on sale starting Monday. Tickets will be valid for six months from the date of purchase.

Churches React Strongly To the World's Problems

BY DAVID POLING

It is possible to sample the national mood by reading the sermon titles listed on the church page of your local newspaper. This may seem unscientific to pollsters like George Gallup and Louis Harris and naive to sophisticated samplers like Nielsen ratings or other wizards of consumer sentiment. But for those of us who can't afford their scholarly services and want to know quickly and honestly what's going on in Des Moines and White Plaines, N.Y., I highly recommend a weekly glance at the titles for Sunday's sermons.

They tell it like it is, what's going on in the world and how the church is reacting.

I was first aware of this church-page theory when the Russians launched Sputnik. I happened to be in New York City at the time and several days after the orbiting space shot, the New York Times church page was littered with sermon titles on science, theology, international competition and comforting relevance like "Outer Space and Inner Peace."

I DON'T RECALL any space-age anthems but there were plenty of Sunday sermons on "If I Ascend into the Heavens, Thou Art There." I can't vouch for the quality of these homilies, but the contemporary tone was throbbing with a rocket boost.

The death of President Kennedy was a national calamity. The people's sorrow was expressed in memorial services, pulpit pronouncements, and sermons eulogizing the young president. At least one volume of sermons has been collected from the thousands that were preached in that black November.

IN THIS time of such travail in Vietnam and soul-searching in Washington, the sermon title index is again a surprising barometer of our national condition. The other day the New York Times listed these sermons to be preached in city churches: "When Things Don't Go So Well, What Then?" (by Norman Vincent Peale); in Brooklyn's historic Plymouth Pilgrims, "Keeping Steady in a Crazy World." The same theme was heard up on the West Side with "Where Is God in Such a World?" preached at Riverside Church.

Bryant Kirkland spoke on "God and Our Violence" while Park Avenue Methodists pondered "On Coping with Frustration." With New York's garbage strike just a whiff away, Rev. Herbert Ehrenstain was frightfully current with his sermon, "Let's Get Away From It All."

Dr. Harold Bosley preached on "Devils Love a Vacuum" with this cryptic line under the sermon title - (U.N. Tour Following the Service)i

THE CHURCHES around me in Westchester had somewhat the same wave length, with a special emphasis on youth in a troubled world. At Bedford, N.Y., it was "Youth Speaks Out." The Unitarians of northern Westchester heard "The Trip to Nowhere" (drugs). Another congregation heard "Can Anyone Over 30 Be Trusted?" while another sermon was entitled "In Defense of Student Protests."

There are, of course, some violent deviations from my sermon title theory: One Yogi Gupta had his topic, simply, "Grow Vitamins in Your Kitchen." Another pastor broke the mood with "If George Washington Were President Today."

If you can't hear the sermon, at least read the titles.

A brief meditation will be given by Pastor Albert W. Weidlich and Harold Klumpp, director of music, has made arrangements for special music.

Cantata Sunday At First Baptist

A cantata "Olivet to Calvary" will be presented at 7 p.m., Sunday, by the members of the choir of The First Baptist Church of Arlington Heights, 1211 W. Campbell.

The musical program, written by J. H. Maunder, will feature guest soloist David Johnson and Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Fanstill.

St. James Talent Show Is Tonight

The Christian Family Movement of St. James Parish in Arlington Heights will hold a talent show "Talent Unlimited" at 8 tonight in the auditorium of St. James Junior High School.

The show will be presented by the students of the Grammar School and Confraternity of Christian Doctrine classes. Donations are $1 for adults and 50 cents for children.

Mrs. Shaw Named As Parish Caller

Mrs. Gilbert Slaw, 103 E. Hintz, Arlington Heights was recently installed as Parish Caller at the Lutheran Church of the Good Shephard in Prospect Heights. Her duties will include calling upon new families who move into the area and calling upon all homes in new sub-divisions.

Mrs. Slaw has been active in the Lutheran Church for a number of years having served as vice president of a congregational Lutheran Church Women Chapter, Altar Guild chairman and Sunday church school teacher.

The Parish Caller program is a mission of the Board of American Missions of the Lutheran Church in America and is an effort to keep pace with the rapid growth of the northwest suburban area.

Mark Third Anniversary

The Church of Christian Liberty of Prospect Heights, 203 E. McDonald Rd., celebrates its third anniversary this week. An anniversary dinner will be held tomorrow night and the guest speaker for Sunday morning worship will be Dr. J. Philip Clark.

The church is presently meeting in West Park Field House, Des Plaines.

this isn't a very serene church.. but then, this isn't a very serene world. Unitarian Universalists are concerned people. They work for the cause of brotherhood six days a week, and worry on Sunday. People say our church services are stimulating, provocative, controversial ... and beautiful, too. But never serene, never sleepy. If you've had about all the serenity you can take, perhaps you'd like to try our kind of worship. Why not come by next Sunday?

Orchesis Weekend in Dist. 214

Colored lights flashing, drums beating, and lithe forms interpreting emotions, areas, and ideas in modern dance will be seen in three Dist. 214 high schools this weekend.

It is the season for orchesis productions, and different dance teams in the area have been practicing for weeks.

Each school is presenting its own unique theme and chorography.

There is something about Farmington that puts life into its proper perspective. A down-to-earthness and freedom that seems impossible today. Here is simple, unhurried, peaceful country living complete with quiet ponds, winding lanes, woods and hills, and homes so perfectly conceived that they seem to grow out of the land. Farmington is not for everyone. But to those few who know the difference between a house and a home, we invite you to come home. To Farmington.

Homesites are a minimum of one acre, priced from $10,000 to $22,000.
By design, no two homes alike.

Palatine Trackmen Defend Wildcat Relays Title Today

Arlington will lead a pack of nine teams trying to and Palatine's domination of the Wheeling Wildcat Relays that begin this afternoon at 4 p.m.

Wheeling coach Jim Hoffman calls Arlington "the team to beat" despite the fact that Palatine has won the relays the last two years.

ARLINGTON WAS sophomore team champion in last year's meet, however, and had individual champions in three events, Dave Steele winning both the low and high hurdles, and Bill Price taking the 440-yard run. The Card underclassmen also had four second place finishes last year, by shot-putter Paul Tollefson, Todd Somers in both the long jump and pole vault, and Scott Butler in the mile run.

Card coach Bruce Saamore has back all his first-and second-placers from that sophomore team, which piled up 56 points to 35 for runner up Wheeling last season. Arlington was ninth in the 1967 variety standings.

Palatine had 65 points to win the varsity championship, with Wheeling's 38 points good for second and Conant third at 32.

THIS YEAR'S FIELD will include Deerfield, Glenbrook South, and all the Mid-Suburban League teams -- Arlington, Conant, Elk Grove, Forest View, Fremd, Palatine, Prospect, and Wheeling. Deerfield replaces Ridgewood, eight last year with five points.

The field events begin at 4 p.m. in the Wheeling field house, with track preliminaries starting at 5 p.m. and track finals at 7 p.m.

Competition will be on both varsity and underclass levels, with 12 events: pole vault, long jump, high jump, shot put, four- and 12-lap relays, half-mile and mile runs, 50-yard and quarter-mile dashes, and 60-yard low and high hurdles.

WHEELING POLE vaulter Bob Maslin, who won last with a 12'6" vault, is the only returning varsity defending champion from a Dist. 214 school. The Wildcats also have last year's underclass pole vault champion, Stew Oakley.

The only other sophomore champion from an area school back this year is Forest View high jumper Don Hammer, winner last year at 5'4".

The Falcon varsity was tied for fifth with Prospect last year with 11 points. Elk Grove was seventh.

Arlington Boys Called To Baseball Tryouts

Tryouts for the major league division (11 and 12-year-olds) of the Arlington Heights Boys' Baseball League will be Saturday and Sunday, March 30 and 31, at Recreation and Pioneer Parks in Arlington Heights.

All registered boys who have not previously been on a program major league team may try out. Boys living north of the Chicago & North Western Ry. tracks are asked to report to Recreation Park at 1 p.m. on both days. South side players should report to Pioneer Park, also at 1 p.m. on both days.

Each boy will be given an ample opportunity to display his talents, a league spokesman says.

2 Area Athletes to Battle For N.U. Football Spots

Two area athletes will be contending to fill vital openings on Northwestern University's varsity football squad when the Wildcats open spring practice April 11.

Junior end Bruce Hubbard, an Arlington High School graduate, is N.U.'s only returning offensive end with substantial game experience. He caught 16 passes as a sophomore last season.

Quarterback Darrell Splithoff, a Lane Tech of Chicago graduate who now lives in Arlington Heights, is one of six candidates for the Wildcat quarterbacking job. He'll be a sophomore next fall and will have to beat out senior Dana Woodring -- the only quarterbakc with varsity experience -- and at least four other contenders.

A Northwestern spokesman says coach Alex Agase, starting his fifth season with the Wildcats, will have 80 candidates, including 26 lettermen, when the month-long drill session opens. The practices climax with an intra-squad game May 11.

Mount Prospect Parks Offer Gymnastics Classes

A gymnastics program has been added to the Mount Prospect Park District's schedule for fifth-through-eighth grade boys.

The program is being held at the Prospect High School gym Tuesdays and Thursday at 6 p.m.

Richard Chew, coach of the Prospect high school gymnastics team that finished third in this year's state gym meet, is supervising the activities for the park district.

Tha series will continue through May 23, with days off April 9 and 11. There is no charge for the program or for registration.

Further information can be obtained by calling the park District at 255-5380.

Waycinden Plans Manager Clinic

The Waycinden Area Boys' Baseball League is setting up a clinic for its baseball managers and coaches.

The program will include a series of sessions covering different aspects of the game. The sessions are designed to help coaches and managers reinforce their knowledge of baseball fundamentals before teaching the basics to their charges.

Dick Schultz, head varsity baseball coach at the University of Iowa; Paul "Dizzy" Trout a former major league pitcher now in the Chicago White Sox organization; Allen Askew, psychologist from High School District 214; as as yet unidentified Cub player or coach; and Don Purcell of the Mount Prospect Boys' Baseball League will be on hand to teach their respective specialties.

The session will be held in District 59 and District 214 school. Further information may be obtained by calling Will Seefeldt, 439-0490.

Meet The Coach

Keith North, 30, is entering his second year as Forest View High School's head track coach. His coaching career began in Jesup, Iowa, where he took on the head baseball, football, basketball, and some track chores. Since coming to Forest View in 1962, North served as head swimming coach for four seasons, until he took over his track duties last spring. He holds a B.A. degree in biology from Cornell College (Iowa), and has a masters in secondary education from Northern Illinois University. North is married, has two children, and is currently teaching physical education at Forest View.

Steele Earns Day Athlete Award

Arlington's Deve Steele, called by Card coach Bruce Saamore "a natural hurdler" has earned this week's Day Athlete of the Week award.

Steele, a junior, was the only Dist. 214 athlete to win an individual championship in last weekend's Blue Demon Relays at Maine East, and he also took firsts in the high and low hurdles in Arlington's dual meet victory over arch-rival Prospect earlier in the week.

HE WON THE 50-yard highs at Maine East in 6.5 seconds, .1 second ahead of Wheeling's Nick Silvestri, as the Cards placed third in the Relays behind Maine East and Maine West.

Against Prospect, the 6-3, 190-pound Steele won the 60-yard highs in 7.9 seconds, .1 second ahead of teammate Bob Graham, and edged Graham again in the lows, 7.5 to 7.55 seconds.

This weekend, Steele and his Arlington teammates will be challenging defending champion Palatine and nine other schools at the Wildcat Relays et Wheeling. Steele finished first in both hurdle events in the sophomore half of last year's Wildcat meet.

Saamore says Steele has "all the God-given abilities a hurdler needs."

"He can become a really great hurdler if he wants to," Saamore says.

IT WAS SAAMORE who first introduced Steele to hurdling in competition.

"I was in Mr. Saamore's freshman gym class and one day we ran the hurdles," Steel recalls. "He asked me if I'd like to come out for track the next season, and I did."

Steele says he has always had trouble getting into condition and staying there. And he was handicapped this season because an ankle injury early in the basketball season sidelined him from that sport.

Despite the late conditioning start, however, Steele already has won five races this season, and this, Saamore says, "shows what kind of natural ability he has."

STEELE HAD one bad fall as a hurdler--last spring while working out on Forest View's outdoor cinder track. But he says that while he's running, et least, he doesn't worry about falling: "if you start thinking about the hurdles instead of just thinking of the race as a sprint, you're in trouble."

Steele says he isn't certain yet if he would like to continue hurdling in college, but is planning on working out this summer.

"I'll do some running, but I doubt if I'll compete in any meets," he says. "There's something about those summer meets that doesn't agree with me."

All area athletes are elibible for the Day Athlete of the Week award. Nominations, which can be anonymous, should be made at The Prospect Day office, 117 S. Main St., or by calling 255-7200, ext. 54.

Nominations should be made before midnight Monday for the previous week's award.

Company Offers Baseball Movie On Loan Basis

The Prudential Insurance Company of America has just released a new 28-minute, 16mm color movie entitled "The Name of the Game is Baseball."

The film, being made available on a free loan basis to interested schools, churches, clubs, and civic organizations, offers tips on hitting, fielding, base-running, and pitching from 13 American and National League stars.

ALSO SHOWN in the film are highlights of the 1967 World Series between the St. Louis Cardinals and the Boston Red Sox and highlights of the 1967 Little League World Series.

Requests for the film should be sent to: Modern Talking Pictures Services, Inc. 1909 Prudential Plaza, Chicago, Illinois 60601.

State Releases Event Calendar

The Illinois state Information Service began distribution of its 1968 calendar of events this week.

The 48-page booklet lists dates of community events and county fairs, baseball and football schedules, and tours offered by businesses, museums, and educational institutions.

A free copy of the calendar can be obtained by sending one's name, address, and zip code to Illinois Information Service, 406 State Capitol, Springfield, Ill. 62706.

Arendt Joins Illini Golfers

Jim Arendt, a senior from Palatine, is a member of the ten-man University of Illinois golf team that will be trying to better the Illini's eighth-place Big 10 finish of last season.

Arendt will be in his first year of varsity competition.

'Campaign Capers'

Ginny Gramm of 100 S. Wheeling Rd., Prospect Heights and Jim Hand of 104 S. Parkway, Prospect Heights rehearse a scene from the play "Campaign Capers," which will be presented March 29 - 31 in the Wheeling High School auditorium. The play is being produced by the Country Players of Prospect Heights.

Computer Makes Golf At-Home Game

BY JIM CROSSLEY

Have you an empty spot in your house 10 feet wide, 10 feet high and 27 feet long?

If so you can have your own golf course there.

Step onto the tee any time you desire. No standing in line. Play at night. Play in any kind of weather.

Oh yes, one other thing you need: about $10,000.

AS IT SEEMS to be doing in all other affairs of mankind, the computer has slithered into golf.

Experiencing a session with the computerized Golf-O-Mat game, or its competitior Gold-O-Tron, most will conclude, "Great! Welcome!"

Overlooking the missing sunshine and fresh breezes, using the machine is amazingly like playing the outdoor game.

THE PLAYERS tour some classic, turf, too. Between them both, the outfits offer rounds on any of these: Pebble Beach, Miami's Doral Country Club, the Congressional Country Club in Washington, Pinehurst, Firestone, Thunderbird and two Hawaiian layouts, Royal Lahaina and Oahu.

The player uses conventional clubs and regulation balls.

Color phots are projected on a 10-foot screen. He plays into the picture from tee to green, one hole after another.

He hits just as he does outdoors.

MEASURING the force of each stroke and the spot of impact on the screen, the computer advances the photographs so that for the next stroke the golfer is looking down the fairmay from just the right distance.

And it adjusts for hooks and slices.

With the Golf-O-Mat system there is a photo for each 10 yards and a smashing drive is accompanied by the blurred, whirling sensation of flight as the pictures of the film strip flash by.

AFTER EACH stroke the screen shows the player how many yards his ball has advanced and the remaining yards to the green.

It takes a foursome three and one-half hours to play 18 holes. One player works his ball to the green, then the pictures go back to the tee for the next man.

Balls are holed out on an artificial grass green. Each player is informed by the machine where to place his ball on the green.

ALL THE HAZARDS are there. In sand or water, there's a stroke penalty and distance. The pictures run backward until a playable lie is reached.

It's the greatest toy so far. No doubt.

Dist. 59 Summer Session Offers Wide Range

Registration will begin this week for summer school--Elk Grove Dist. 59.

Because the district uses state aid to meet summer school costs, it charges no tuition to parents who live within its boundaries. However, Dist. 59 residents do pay a $5 fee for each child attending to cover the cost of books and materials. A child can attend either the four- or the six-week session.

PARENTS WHO live outside Dist. 59 can send their children to summer school there, said Sol Minkoff, director of the summer program. Tuition charges for out-of-district children will be $25 a child for the four-week session, and $35 a child for the six-week session. No bus service will be provided for out-of-district children.

New courses include an Outdoor Education class for children who are attending grades one through five. This course costs $15 extra. Forest, field, pond, and swamp will be studied in a program that will give first- through fourth-graders two full days at Camp Reinberg, near Palatine. There will be an additional charge of $10 for this course. Fifth graders enrolled in outdoor education will get two days plus an overnight stay at Camp Reinberg.

Typing, industrial arts, home economics, junior high chorus, and band and orchestra also will be offered.

OTHER COURSES, for grades one through three, are creative art, creative dramatics, enrichment reading, enrichment math, physical skills and music for children using the Orff instruments.

Science, for children in grades four through eight will put some children into small groups of four or five, for intensive teaching by specially qualified personnel. Instructors for this subject will include William Labahn, Mary Stitt, and a University of Chicago professor.

Remedial math and remedial reading also will be given. For a child to enroll in these courses he needs the recommendation of his teacher or principal.

SUBJECTS MENTIONED so far are called "half-courses." A child must take two of them. Minkoff suggests that not more than one be remedial.

A "full course"--children enrolled don't take anything else--will be given in Cultural Enrichment. Field trips to such places as Maxwell Street, Northwestern University, Ravinia and Grant Park Concerts, and other points of interest throughout the Chicago area will be coordinated with classroom discussion.

A $20 fee will be charged each child in this course. Enrollment is limited to children who are now in grades four through eight.

MAIL-IN registration will simplify things for parents, Minkoff said. Brochures and blanks will be sent home with Dist. 59 children. Out-of-district parents who would like to learn more about the program should call the Summer School Office at HE 7-1000.

Your Horoscope

FOR SATURDAY

ARIES (Mar. 22-Apr. 20)--The disappointment of this morning may be recognized as a blessing in disguise by afternoon. Let experience tell the tale.

TAURUS (Apr. 21-May 21) Be warned against the harm inherent in excess of any kind. Make this a Saturday for activity in moderation.

GEMINI (May 22-June 21)--You can have fun today and still demonstrate yourself to be a mature person. The practical joke is not for you.

CANCER (June 22-July 23)--The sooner you begin to make preparations for the week ahead, the better. Don't let self-indulgence spoil your chances.

LEO (July 24-Aug. 23)--Keep age and physical condition in mind as you indulge in physical activities. You don't want to pay for overdoing tomorrow.

VIRGO (Aug. 24 - Sept. 23)--Take another's wishes into consideration--but don't allow yourself to be dictated to. A good day for selfassertion.

LIBRA (Sept. 24-Oct. 23)--Exert additional caution today as you go about usual Saturday activities. Warn children against carelessness.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22)--To ensure a successful day, see to the free expression of your own will. Make your own bed; you have to lie in it.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 22)--Make every effort to heal the breach in a friendship of long-standing. A helping hand should gain you much at this time.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 23-Jan. 20)--See that fun is a part of your day. Though problems may seem great, they are considerably less thorny than you imagine.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21-Feb. 19)--The Aquarius who has the ability to adjust quickly to changing situations should find this a satisfying day.

PISCES (Feb. 20-Mar. 21)--See to matters of health before you set about doing anything else. A day for restoring your mentel and physical house to order.

Shingle, Inside or Out

Any quiz on home remodeling should pose this question: what material will be equally applicable for roof, exterior or interior walls, and ceilings?

The answer, seemingly a bit preposterous, is: Western red cedar shingles and handsplit shakes.

Widespread use of the remarkably versatile material throughout the West by designers and architects has been bringing it to the attention of prospective remodelers across the nation. The smooth-textured shingle and the rugged handsplit shake have proved extremely successful on virtually all exterior and interior surfaces with effective and attractive results.

BASIC REASONS for considering its use in your own plans include the unique adaptation of the material to all design sizes and shapes, while their relative small size allows application to curving areas as well as flat planes. In addition, both shingles and shakes provide a wide range of line-and-shadow patterns, permitting effects from smooth to extremely rugged.

Any homeowner laying out a remodeling project is sure to be happy over the low initial installation cost and the ease of application.

Except for the roof itself, which usually calls for professionals, the average home handyman can apply shingles and shakes with only limited instruction. Even thoroughly "pro" work is nominal in cost.

INDOORS, the remodeler can achieve an eye-pleasing effect on den or recreation room walls. The material lends itself with taste and charm to all but the most formal of living areas.

Outside of course is where Western red cedar shingles and shakes can really strut their stuff and have the greatest impact. Beauty, durability, and all - weather performance are traditionally assured when you apply the material to your home, frequently transforming its entire appearance on the plus side.

BESIDES enhancing your home's public look, it's a snug thought for the homeowner to reflect on its low-maintenance service over the years, which brings the overall cost down even lower in the long run.

The Red Cedar Shingle and Handsplit Shake Bureau, 5510 White Bldg., Seattle, Wash. 98101 is headquarters for any inquiries of any northwest suburban homeowner in search of remodeling ideas.

A staggering effect is easily produced with red cedar taper-split shakes, with different widths and random application of the versatile material resulting in an informal atmosphere for this cosy corner of the living room. Dozens of different designs are possible, limited only by the homeowner's imagination.

Harber Named Branigar V.P.

Lester L. Harber has been elected vice president of the Branigar Organization, Inc., it was announced by Harvey W. Branigar, president of the large land development firm based in Medinah, Ill.

During his 15 years with the Branigar organization, Harber's activities included property development such as Indian Lakes Country Club, construction projects, and acquisitions of numerous properties for the many land developments of the firm, such as Lake Redstone near the Wisconsin dells.

Branigar is celebrating its fiftieth anniversary in land development, and during this time has completed over 80 major developments in the midwest, on the Gulf of Mexico, and most recently a community of tropical waterfront homesites called Kahiki Harbor in the Florida Keys.

Harber started his career with Branigar as manager of Mohawk Golf Course, one of Branigar's earlier developments which is still active today. He and his wife, Norene, and their three children live, at 23 W. 687 Goodridge, Roselle. Harber has served on the Bloomingdale Elementary School Board, Dist. 13, for the past five years, and has been president of the board for the past two years.

When Motor Won't Start?

The sound of the suburbs is no longer the chirp of crickets but the noise of small engines running power mowers, roto tillers, power-driven lawn sweepers, snow blowers and plows.

Simple maintenance of two and four-cycle engines will save you time and unnecessary repair charges. When yours will not start, there are several things to check before turning over the equipment to a repairman.

FIRST THE fuel. The four-cycle engine runs on gasoline alone. The two-cycle uses a mixture of gasoline and oil.

Check the fuel tank. It may be dry. Make certain you are using the fuel the manufacturer recommended. While most use ordinary gasoline, some call for white or unleaded gasoline. Follow the instructions for the right oil-gasoline mix for two-cycle engines. Most require one-half pint of SAE 30 oil to one gallon of gasoline.

While there are many things that may go wrong, most engine failures are in the fuel system or the ignition system.

EVEN IF you have enough fuel, the engine may not be getting any. Most engines have a fuel-line shut-off valve. Make certain it is open.

The cap of the fuel tank is a tiny vent hole. Make certain it is clean and open.

Dirt in the fuel may be causing trouble. On most models, you can drain the tank completely by removing the fuel-line shut-off valve and then removing the tank by unscrewing several retaining screws. With the tank off, rinse it with fresh, clean gasoline. Work in a well-vented area, away from flame or sparks.

Small engine carburetors need adjusting just as do the ones on automobiles. Look for the needle valve on the carburetor. Check the parts list with your engine if you are not sure. Close it fully, then open it 1½ turns.

START THE engine and let it warm up. Then slowly close the needle valve until the engine starts to lose speed.

Open it again until it starts to run unevenly. You will have to strike a balance between these two points for the engine to run smoothly.

Manufacturers recommend cleaning and re-oiling the air filter every 25 hours of operation. Kick up some dirt with your mower and you will have to do it sooner. Rinse the sponge element in kerosene, squeeze it out and re-oil it.

IGNITION TROUBLE can be more complicated, but thereure some steps you can take. Unscrew the spark plug and clean it. Reset the electrode cap if needed. Spark plugs are cheap, and you only use one, so replace if in doubt. If the electrode is dry when you pull the plug, fuel is not reaching the engine. Take the engine to a repair man.

Other maintenance tips: check oil frequently; make certain nuts, bolts and screws are tight; keep equipment clean; remove grass clippings from mowers.

Pets In Apartments Do Pose Problems

Increasingly today the American family includes a four-footed member – usually a pet cat or dog, occasionally something more exotic.

For homeowners, pets present few problems; not so for apartment dwellers.

Apartment house landlords are notoriously skeptical of animals -- and with some cause. At the drop of a hat almost any one of them can tell you of tenants who let their pets rule the roost. Others have even wilder tales.

ONE Manhattan building superintendent, for instance, tells of finding the second bedroom of a recently vacated apartment had been converted with iron bars into a giant cage to house a monkey the tenant had been keeping secretly.

The managing agent of another apartment was surprised when a tenant asked to be evicted. Seems he wanted a good excuse to make his wife get rid of dozens of turtles she kept as household pets and which were making him feel like an intruder in his own apartment.

Some apartment buildings have a firm rule against pets. You are not allowed to keep a pet in a middle or low-middle income city or state supported project. Most other apartment owners, however, are open to reason and will not object to a pet that is well behaved.

NORMAN Buchbinder, head of the management department of Sulzberger-Rolfe Inc., which manages apartment buildings housing more than 9,000 families in the New York metropolitan area, says 10 to 15 per cent of its tenants keep pets. Five years ago in most buildings, he said, between 5 and 10 per cent of residents kept a pet. He feels the ratio will continue to climb.

The tenant who makes a home for a dog or cat, Buchbinder says, faces a number of trials and tribulations. "First of all," he says, "as soon as his pet moves in, the tenant probably is in violation of his lease."

Buchbinder points out that a standard clause in the usual apartment lease states expressly that no animals of any kind shall be kept on the premises unless in each instance the landlord gives his consent in writing. Once this permission is given, the lease also states, it is revocable by the landlord at any time.

WHILE many tenants do request such written permission, Buchbinder says, "for all practical purposes, once a tenant brings a pet into his apartment and the landlord makes no immediate effort to have it removed from the premises, tacit approval has been granted and the tenant is in no danger of having the pet evicted unless it becomes destructive, a nuisance, or a danger to the safety of other tenants."

FROM ITS study of pets in Sulzberger-Rolfe apartment buildings, Buchbinder said, the company has come up with some suggestions designed to prevent a pet from becoming an object of controversy among the rest of the building's occupants. It recommends:

--Don't use too long a leash on your dog. It allows him too much headway and you lose control of him. Dogs should be on a leash at all times both in and out of the building.

--Don't take your dog into the elevator if there are any children on it. When possible when taking your dog in and out of the building try to use the service elevator.

--Don't take your pets to the roof for exercise.

--IF YOU are a cat fancier, keep the number of feline occupants down to one or two. When there are a large number of cats all under one apartment roof, an odor problem can arise.

--Keep your dog away from the outside wall of the building. Most buildings use some form of repellent to discourage soiling but nothing is more effective than a master who will not permit his pup to pull him over to the first inviting edifice.

--Take your dog for a walk at least once every six hours. One of the most common tenant complaints is of a howling dog that has been locked in by his owner who expected to be back within a few hours, changes his plans and leaves the dog for an entire day and part of the evening. Buchbinder says some tenants go away for a weekend, set out some food for the dog and leave him on his own in the apartment. When such a situation is discovered the A.S.P.C.A. is called and appropriate action taken against the owner.

--DON'T TRY to keep too large a pet in your apartment. A very large dog is not suited for apartment living, riding on elevators and the confinement of close quarters.

--Don't ask the doorman to walk your pet. His responsibility is to stay on duty at the door and anything that takes him away from that is disservice to all tenants.

--If your pet should accidentally soil the lobby, elevators or corridors in the building, be sure to tell someone -- don't forget about it. For your own protection you should be sure your pet does no damage in your apartment because you stand to lose the security deposited with the landlord when you move out.

Respect the rights of other tenants. If you use common sense and consideration in your actions, no one is likely to object to your having a pet.

And Now, The Mini Project

What used to be a maximum do-it-yourself effort is today a simple mini job.

Time was, when a major home interior improvement entailed the summoning of a painter, a carpenter, and assorted other artisans, conferences, and a messed-up home for protracted periods.

Then, do-it-yourself ideas came to the rescue of the homeowner eager to change the shape of things in his home surroundings. This got rid of the experts called in to do the job, but the messed-up look lasted even longer, as a rule, and family frustration often set in, until Dad had groaned his way through to the bitter finish. And how often it was just that, -- bitter, both in the end result and the final cost.

NOW, MANY of those improvements, desired for a basement, a den, a bedroom, a living room or attic, are easily obtainable by selecting the suitable type of paneling, pre-finished to your taste, and tackling the job, on a mini effort basis, usually over a weekend.

The merest amateur handyman can achieve spectacular results by first making himself familiar with the four basic types of paneling and choosing the one in his budget range.

There are of course solid wood planks available, which lend themselves to ynur particular option of stain or varnish to match the room decor.

Veneer panels are formed by the placing of actual wood to particleboard, gypsum board or plywood.

HARDBOARD is paneling made by compressing wood fibers into the desired shape, then printing or simulating a wood grain by embossing into the surface.

Printed plastic paneling is made by bonding a sheet of plastic to a base; or laminated plastic can be the back-up material. The imitatinn wood grain is either printed on the plastic, ordinardily surface-printed, sometimes back-printed.

Standard size is usually 4 by 8 feet. Prices start at about $5 a panel and you can move up to $15 fnr average jobs, with quite deluxe styles available at prices around $100 a panel.

THE REAL mini part of the job is the actual labor. Beyond a certain amount of measuring, cutting and fitting, the adhesives now in the market make the task of fixing the panels to the wall surface a fast and simple operation. You may prefer to nail the panels to studs or furring strips for that feeling of greater security.

An important item to remember when shopping for paneling is to consider how it will clean. If you can keep the chore of maintenance to a mini basis, you'll feel you've really achieved a mini job in every way, and one which will endear you to the women of the house.

What Did He Say?

"What is he talking about, anyway?'' asked one bewildered young husband of his new bride, as they were guided by a real estate salesman through one room after the other of their prospective home.

She didn't know either. The salesman was making the mistake of fancy-ing up the various areas of the house by using glamor titles.

He eventually closed the sale, but it would have made it a lot simpler for everyone concerned if he called the kitchen just that, instead of a ''chef center'' nr a "housewife's haven" -- and labeled a closet a closet, instead nf a "store-more room." Titling the bathrnnm a beautility area is confusing for some young couples, also.

IT'S TRUE that affluence, youth, and women are the three big factors in today's housing industry. It's also true that today's builders, aware that roughly half of the population in the United States is under 25 years of age, are slanting their sales pitch to the younger set, with more sophisticated tastes than their elders.

It's a better sales approach, however, if plain talk and simple terms are used by the salesmen in describing each room's functional values.

Smart Shades

A new development in window shade materials is offered in Vistaglass, which the Joanna Western Mills company declares is ideal for rooms with special needs such as family rooms, boys' rooms, and indeed for country and suburban living in every area which calls for color and texture in smart styling.

THE GLASS fiber construction of the new material is combined with scientific chemical coating to provide washability, color-fastness, flame resistance, and long wear.

Throw-Away Furniture

How about some new furniture for your home in Early Paper instead of Italian Provincial or American Colonial or French Empire?

Functional design, low cost, and disposability were the three leading features of the "Made With Paper" show in New York.

Besides home furnishings, the exhibit offered categories such as fine art, folk and festival, apparel and personal adornment, the medium of ideas and events.

PARTY PAPER dresses and women's fashion articles have already made names for themselves. But it is in the field of furniture that a real paper boom can be expected to come alive.

Inexpensive paperboard furniture is ideal for the family with growing children. Paper cribs, tables, chairs, are all so easily disposable . . . just junk them and buy the next size.

For newlyweds, the mass-produced furniture is a boon. They will not have to live with their mistakes in selecting whole rooms of furnishings. Tnss the offending pieces out . . ., and start afresh.

FOR OLDER householders who are outfitting a second vacation home or are even bored with the sameness of their traditional sofas, tables, chairs, -- here is an exciting and relatively low-cost way of splurging.

Oddly, few of the prototype designs and creations on display come from the major pulp-producing areas, such as Canada and Scandinavia. English and Japanese artists have set the pace in designing the new "paper-caper" items, but more Americans, Germans, and French are directing their talents to the field of functional or decorative items.

For those who think of paper articles as fire hazards or as fragile bric-a-brac, their fears can be set at rest when seeing how new techniques including plastic impregnation can make paper furniture weatherproof, structurally rigid, and fire-resistant.

Accents

Accent the colors in your home with a vase, planter or other piece of pottery to add the perfect finishing touch. Select such items with a warm rich glaze, either in harmony with the existing scheme nf the room, or in sharp contrast. Alsn, decide befnrehand if you want a traditional look nr something in the latest "mod" or "out" vein.

WARMTH is the mood created in this remodeled home through the use of Marlite's new textured paneling. The entry (at right) features a green tapestry pattern. Tapestry has the look and feel of expensive woven fabric, yet is plastic-finished for ease of maintenance. Use of textured travertine panels in the family room sets a distinctive mood, and blends harmoniously with the kitchen's wood-grain paneling. All Marlite panels are plastic-finished so they can be cleaned with the pass of a damp cloth. Wall-to-wall carpeting in rose unifies the entry and family room while decorative accessories repeat the green of the tapestry and carpet tone.

Light On Lamp Problems

Are you the girl Friday in your home every day of the week?

If you are, you'll probably know the answer to this problem, — why does a fluorescent lamp fail to light at once, or blink for some time before lighting?

If you're not, you'll be glad to know the solution.

You need a new starter, which is a small activator which plugs into the fixture at one end. The gas inside a fluorescent lamp must be heated to 50 degrees before it can transmit electricity. But the starter does this job instanteneously. When one burns out, replace it with a new one.

Pep Up Your Bath

There is a low-cost way to improve any bathroom.

Start with the walls. Fresh paint or vinyl wallpaper will make any old bathroom brighten up instantly. Average size of the bathroom in one-family homes is 5 by 7 feet. You can feep the cost well under $25. For extra zip, paper the ceiling. Add gay decals to the tile area.

Or take a hard look at the accessories such as towel bars, rings, hooks, — maybe all you need is bright shiny replacements or even the new color-coordinated fittings which add sparkle to the whole decor.

If you are tired of the antiseptic appearance of your medicine cabinet, replace it with one of real or imitation wood, which provides a warm look.

An infrared light installed in the ceiling will speed drying, while a sunlamp bulb over the washbasin mirror will furnish you with that year-round tan. Other good additions are: bath security grab bar, a grounded outlet for electric shavers or toothbrushes, and bathroom scales.

The maximum of luxury coupled with the minimum of maintenance was achieved by the designer of this exciting bath-dressing room. Featured throughout are plastic-finished Marlite panels which can be cleaned with an occasional damp wiping. In the lavatory area, textured wormy chestnut paneling blends effectively with the relief of the natural-toned travertine marble paneling.

Don't Be Swayed By Furniture Fads

Fads come and go. Nothing new about that.

What is new is that, in spite of what most older persons assume, the young newly-weds who are the ones buying furniture today are not led astray by the current craze for the "mod" or other unique styles offered today.

A survey of furniture salesmen in both the suburban and the urban areas indicates that while there is always a marginal group anxious for the odd and the off-beat in design, the young people who are setting the pace in furniture buying are displaying quite sensible and level-headed tastes.

THE TREND seems to evidence a desire for quality items, modern in styling, functionally simple, with heavy leanings on solid value, even if the initial cost is high. At the same time, there is a good market for items based on usage for today's needs but adapting yesterday's designs.

The latter demand is illustrated by the more ornate fixtures and accessories sought for bathrooms, and the color coordination offered by the Golden Dolphin shops, and by the use of Victorian commodes in the living room for casual display of art objects and trivia.

Provide Proper Venting

Just because your dryer is electric doesn't mean you can locate it smack in the middle of your home or apartment. You still have to provide proper venting for it.

True, it does not produce smoke or fumes. But you need exhaust ducts to carry the moisture removed from the wash to the outside. The shorter such ducts, the better. A long run of ducts builds up the moisture, eventually damaging paint and plaster caused by excessive condensation and humidity which you haven't pumped safely to the outside.

Pleasant Prediction

By the year 2000, most people in the United States will live in a completely controlled home climate, according to air conditioning engineers.

Occupants not only will be more comfortable, but they'll also be healthier because improved air filtration will lock out germs, noise, dust, pollen and polluted air. There will be balanced heat distribution, eliminating drafts and cold spots, and each family member will be able to adjust room or zone temperatures to his own comfort.

Worthington Corporation's air conditinning division, which makes this prediction, adds that units will be smaller and, because of more efficient systems and better insulated homes, equipment prices will be lower.

Marble Durable But Needs Care

Marble is hard and durable but not so impervious to staining as you might think. and don't let its hardness fool you. It is e porous material and stains that are not cleaned immediately will penetrate beyond the surface.

Marble window sills and table tops need care to maintain their beauty. The trick is to keep them clean. Wipe up immediately materials that will stain.

When stains do occur, it is necessary to remove the stain an then restore the polish to the marble.

Determine the type of stain and learn the cleaning materials that will remove it.

GREASY STAINS are those cuased by any greasy or oily substance - butter, oil, milk, cream, oily foods, etc. Washing quickly with ammonia and water will generally remove such stains. If the stain has been there awhile it may remain even after this cleaning.

To remove, epply a paste solvent. Use powdered whiting which you can get at most paint and hardware stores. Dry-cleaning fluid, gasoline and acetone are among the solvents that will work. Use all of them with caution. Make a paste, apply to the spot and leave for several hours. You may have to add fluid occasionally since this works only when moist.

STAINS FROM tea, coffee, tobacco and the dyes in paper and fabric are called organic stains. If caught quickly rinsing with water may be enough. If the organic stain persists, apply a paste of whiting and hydrogen peroxide and add e few drops of ammonia.

Paste solutions should be removed when completely dry. The residue should be washed ewey with plenty of hot water. Polish by rubbing briskly with e dry rag.

SOMETIMES, if a stain is left too long, it will begin to eat into the marble. Some substences will etch the surface immediately. These include acid-containing food and drink such as fruit juices, wine, vinegar and salad dressings.

Wash with clear water and bleach out the rest of the stain with one of the pastes described above. With the stain gone there still will be the problem of restoring the polish to the marble.

MOST HARDWARE stores and dealers who handle marble carry e polishing compound especially made for marble. It may be called putty powder or it may have a trade name.

This is simply sprinkled over the surface and rubbed with a damp cloth until the shine is restored. Then wipe off and polish with e dry cloth.

Marble surfaces can be protected with a coating of paste wax. If the marble is light-colored and the wax dark, purchase regular marble polish.

Aside from the problem of staining, marble is e durable material that will last indefinitely. With e little care you can keep it looking luxurious, too.

The Painters' Colorful Lingo

It's precticelly e new language for most homeowners to master. It's certainly not one listed by the Berlitz school.

The lingo painters use is colorful, indeed. (We're throwing in the pun for free.)

Let's start with "holidays." Not all holidays come around Christmes, New Year's or Labor Day. When paint takes e holiday, it means there is a bare spot on the wall.

SIMILARLY, "livering" has nothing to do with e medical check-up. It is the term describing an abnormal clotting or thickening of paint, resulting in masses or clumps which you cannot use.

"Painter's lake" is not a body of water, but a type of pigment.

"Blushing" has nothing to do with adolescents, but is a cloudiness in the finish, frequently caused by improper drying due to poor ventilation or dust in the air.

"CRAWLING" is the condition when the paint does not wet the surface adequately but runs together in drops.

"Rottenstone" is not a harsh way of discussing a sidewalk but is a soft abrasive similar to pumice.

"Bleeding" is nothing you can fix with e first-aid kit. It describes the unwanted fransfer of color from an undercoat to the top coat. This can be caused by an original coat of dark paint dissolving in a new film of light-color pigment. An intermediate coat of primer or shellac sometimes prevents this or reduces the unsightly effect.

There are more such terms with intriguing meanings in the painter's lexicon, but these will do you for starters.

Office Manage Course

A three-day educational course for real estate corporation owners and officers on "How to Manage a Real Estate Office Successfully" will be held, beginning April 16, at the Marriott Motor Hotel in Chicago.

It will be sponsored by the residential division of the National Institute of Real Estate Brokers, an affiliate of the National Association of Real Estate Boards.

Subjects to be discussed include: structure of office organizetion, staff requirements, selection and training of personnel, controlling overhead, treits of successful real estate brokers, and planning the office leyout.

INSTRUCTORS WILL be Realtor Art Leitch or San Diego, Calif., and Realtor Ire Gri'in of Encino, Calif.

In addition to owners and officers of corporetions, those involved in the real estate business may enroll if they are sponsored by a Realtor who is either a principal or proprietor of e firm.

Because of the many subjects vital to the operation of a successful real estate firm to be presented, enrollment will be limited in order to afford maximum participation by all students.

Further information on this course is available from the Residential Division, National Institute of Real Estete Brokers, 155 E. Superior St., Chicago 60611.

Plan Ahead To Avoid Flood Problems

As you plan to convert your basement into a recreation or family room, make this your theme song: "River, stay away from my door."

In brief, take steps to see thet you protect everything you plan to put into the leisure center of your home from the damage that can ensue from water.

THE BEST protection against basement flooding is a sump pump according to the experts in the plumbing industry. Also called e cellar dreiner, which probably describes it more plainly for most of us, the pump is installed in a pit or sump, hence the name.

When water in the pit reaches a pre-determined level, a float switch automatically starts the pump working end it keeps operating until all the water has been drained out, when the automatic shutoff cuts in.

Before you start studying the wide range of types, sizes, and price brackets of pumps, save yourself time, trouble, and later headaches: consult a plumbing contractor ebout the right item to buy and to install.

THE OLD HOUSE

While "house hunting" your Realtor will show you both old and new houses.

Should you buy an old house? An ambitious family can do wonders with an old house. You will tangibly contribute to the value of your home. This is a great source of satisfaction.

It is usually possible to remodel an old house quite thoroughly. Be sure you have made an accurate estimate of the cost of the improvements. Many couples have found they can save considerable money by buying an old house and remodeling. The changes that can be made are truly remarkable.

Many old houses seem in questionable condition. A closer look may reveal excellent workmanship in the foundation and walls. Your Realtor can point out the basic building materials used.

Renovating an older structure may be the most economical way to have your "dream house."

There are many gracious "older homes" available for sale in the Northwest Suburban Area. Our experienced sales staff will be glad to show you these homes and point out the many advantages and values of the "older homes" at your convenience ... please call any of the 3 convenient Nelson, Realtor offices. See our illustrated ad in this section.

Think Before You Climb

What kind of ladder you will buy, or if you even will buy depends a lot on just how much you plan to do around the house, the kind of house you own, even your own height and weight.

If you plan to paint your house, you will need a ladder that will put you within reach of the highest gable. If you plan to work on the roof, you will need a ladder that puts you above the eaves. If all you will need it for is checking and cleaning gutters, a shorter ladder will do.

Indoors, a step-ladder will serve every purpose. Smaller step-stools will take care of day-in, day-out reaching.

IF YOU ARE tall, you can provide some of the extra reach yourself. If short, make up for it with extra length in the ladder. If you tend to be heavy, get a good, sturdy ladder.

For the one-floor ranch-style house, a straight ladder (sometimes called a ranch ladder) should be enough if there isn't much of a roof overhang. If there is an overhang, remember that a ladder tall enough to rest against the overhang may put you too far away from the wall to reach it.

You may have to settle for more than one ladder and the best way to do this is with an extension - two ladders that can extend to a great length but which you could take apart, with one section fitting below the overhang.

For the multistory house, the extension ladder is the only thing.

THE COMBINATION ladder looks like a step-ladder until you notice that the rear rail has rungs. As a step-ladder, two people can work on it together, one on each side. The rear unit can be flipped up and used as an extension ladder. Or, like the extension ladder, the combination ladder can be taken apart and used as separate ladders.

Once upon a time, all ladders were made of wood. Now you have a choice of wood or metal and the metal is generally aluminum, sometimes magnesium.

Wood is heavier, is subject to rot, splinters, and may crack or split. But a good wood ladder does not go all at once, as a cheap metal one might, and there is a sturdy, comfortable feel to wood.

WHETHER WOOD or metal, when you buy a ladder buy the best. It will last a lifetime and your life - literally - could depend on its quality.

One big warning, though, in connection with metal ladders - don't tangle with electric power lines. The combination is lethal. Of course, even on a wooden ladder you should be staying clear of power lines.

WOOD LADDERS should be free of splinters, have smoothly rounded corners. Metal ladders should not have sharp edges or burrs. Better ladders have reinforced rungs. You may want to pay extra for flat steps, rather than round rungs.
